HOOVER FINDS 'STATE OF UNION' ALL CONFUSION

Events Test Nation's Fiber, He Asserts.

Calls on Democrats

Senator Vandenberg of Michigan urges all to unite in drive to defeat "third party" now in control at Washington. Co-operation of "real Democrats" invited. Details on page 9.

Senator Dickinson defends Supreme court as sole remaining guardian of constitutional liberty, in Lincoln day address at Greensboro, N. C. Details on page 9.

Senator George W. Norris, speaking for the New Deal's AAA substitute in the senate, proposed a law requiring unanimous decisions by the Supreme court to overrule congressional acts on the basis of unconstitutionality. Details on page 6.

Portland, Ore., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Herbert Hoover indicted the New Deal tonight for the "worst unbalanced" budget in history and charged before a cheering Lincoln day banquet audience that the administration was generating national confusion and fear.

The former President, given an ovation when he entered the banquet room, gave no hint of personal plans in the coming campaign as he asserted "the New Deal has been a veritable fountain of fear."

Mr. Hoover, rapping clenched fists on the speaker's table, declared "the faith of this nation can be restored. To that purpose and that purpose alone you and I are dedicated."

Speech Halted by Cheers.

Standing beneath a picture of Abraham Lincoln and against a background of American flags, Mr. Hoover declared "a balanced budget and a stable currency would put more men to work than the whole WPA." He was forced to wait while the cheers subsided.

The former President was particularly emphatic in declaring "an unbalanced budget and unstable currency are retarding recovery."

An audience of about 1,000 heard the address, after which the former President spent half an hour shaking hands with friends.

In the address delivered at a Lincoln day dinner of the Multnomah county Republican central committee Mr. Hoover asserted that, as in Abraham Lincoln's time, we again are "testing whether that nation or any nation so conceived and so dedicated can long endure." Such a test, he said, should be faced with a clear vision.

Muddle Solves Nothing.

But a state of confusion, he declared, exists in thought, government, economic life, and the ideals of liberty. Few national problems, he said, have been really solved in this "bewildering muddle."

"The President, in his message on the state of the Union, seems to fear that fear is prevalent in the Union," Mr. Hoover said. "He says 'the only thing we have to fear is fear.' He finds malevolent forces creating fear. Just so.

"The New Deal has been a veritable fountain of fear. The day after the New Deal was given life at the election of 1932 began the great fear which created the bank panic of March 4.

"The stock boom today is not from confidence in the future; it is partly from fear of inflation."

Unemployment Due to Fear.

Mr. Hoover said the unemployment of millions of men in the capital goods industries is due to fear of New Deal currency policies. He contended it was the Supreme court decisions "crashing through New Deal tyrannies which brought a gleam of confidence from the fears that had retarded recovery."

"The guiding spirit of the alphabet has not been love," the former President said, "it has been fear.

"The President, in reporting on the state of the Union, also found it alive with 'money changers,' 'seekers for selfish power,' 'dishonest speculators,' 'economic autocrats,' and 'entrenched greed.'

Red Herring Across Trail.

"However, that has points in consing the public mind. Any judge debate would admit it. It has

INVOKE LINCOLN SPIRIT IN FIGHT FOR U. S. LIBERTY

Col. McCormick Hits at Dictatorship.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Abraham Lincoln's immortal phrase—"a government of the people, by the people, and for the people"—echoed last night throughout a Lincoln day celebration that filled the Civic Opera house to the doors.

Chief speaker of the evening, Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE TRIBUNE, declared that American liberties, self-government, and the constitution are in as grave jeopardy under New Deal attack as in the days when Lincoln was the great defender of freedom.

"The unscrupulous, organizing mind of Tammany Jim Farley," said Col. McCormick, "is at work behind the smiling mask of Franklin Roosevelt to bring the end of self-government in the world.

Calls Congress Corrupted.

"The congress of the United States has been corrupted with bribes such as history knows no record of. Four billion eight hundred million dollars, or one hundred million dollars for each state in the Union, have been appropriated to corrupt the electors."

The United States Supreme court was pointed to by Col. McCormick as the Gibraltar of the rights of the people in a crisis when "dictatorship threatens to engulf the liberties of the American people."

The colonel held that the high bench and its decisions on New Deal collectivist laws are the bulwarks that today are keeping Americans free citizens instead of "subjects of an oriental despotism."

Crowd for Supreme Court.

Choruses of "No, No," from the audience answered questions which Col. McCormick propounded as to whether the Supreme court, under New Deal onslaught, should have its powers curtailed.

First of the questions had to do with the acquiescence of congress in passing unconstitutional "must" bills of the New Deal.

"It is boldly urged," said Col. McCormick, "that our courts shall be forbidden to prevent the enforcement of laws which oppress the citizens in violation of the constitution. Do you want that, my friends?"

A swelling chorus of "No" was the response from the audience.

Religious Freedom Upheld.

Religious freedom, as guaranteed by the constitution, was the subject of another question.

"One state," said Col. McCormick, "has passed a law making illegal the free exercise of religion, and the Supreme court of the United States has declared this law unconstitutional. Do you want the Supreme court made powerless to invalidate another such law?"

"No! No!" shouted the audience.

"The senate of the United States," continued Col. McCormick, "is daily violating the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures. Is it your desire that the Supreme court shall be powerless to protect them?"

"No!" came the response.

Lincoln the Constitutionalist.

Col. McCormick began his address with a eulogy of Lincoln and a brief

39 Diners Are Hurt; Parish Priest Is Hero

New York, Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Four persons, one a woman, were burned to death and at least thirty-nine hurt, many seriously, tonight in a fire in a three story building at Lexington avenue and 59th street, which caused a stampede among 150 persons in Lum's Chinese restaurant on the second floor.

About 100 of the men and women in the restaurant when the fire started at 9:20 p. m. were attending a dinner given by the Holy Name society of the Roman Catholic Church of Our Lady of Peace.

Spreading with lightning speed from the ground floor up through the restaurant, then to the vacant third floor, the fire created scenes of terror in which numerous Catholic priests, policemen, firemen, and civilians played heroic rôles.

Parish Priest Proves a Hero.

One of the heroes of the fire was the Rev. George Rosso, parish priest of the Church of Our Lady of Peace, the congregation of which is made up largely of Italian-Americans. Father Rosso assisted several women to the street, fought his way back into the blazing building, rescued some more, and then collapsed from smoke inhalation, burns, and bruises.

Patrolman Anthony Bergeles almost paid with his life for his heroism. Bergeles rushed into the building, heedless of the flames, and assisted several women to the street. He made a second attempt and was overcome by smoke and collapsed on the restaurant floor. A fireman carried him to the street.

Administer Rites of Church.

Six ambulances came from various hospitals and ambulance surgeons treated the injured on the sidewalks until an emergency hospital was set up in a furniture store.

About a score of priests from the Dominican Fathers monastery, as well as other priests who were at the Holy Name society dinner, administered the last rites of their church to many of the seriously injured.

The fire was first seen in a display window of the National Shirt shop, a haberdashery below the restaurant.

Spectators on the street said clothing of some of the victims was afire as they came tumbling out of the building. Other victims were bleeding from injuries they suffered when trampled in the crush.

Frantic Over Loss of Companions.

One girl staggered out of the fire into the ice covered street, minus her shoes and stockings, and crying for her escort, who, she thought, had been trapped upstairs. On the other side of the building a young man with burns on the hands and face refused medical treatment because he had lost sight of the girl he had brought to the dinner.

Eight Chinese waiters and kitchen workers managed to get to the roof of the building. They were standing

Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university, announced yesterday that a gift of $7,000,000 is made to the university in the will of Roger Deering, who died on Feb. 2 at Albuquerque, N. M.

Mr. Deering was the son of the late Charles Deering, former chairman of the board of the International Harvester company, and a grandson of William Deering, founder of the Deering Harvester company which later became a part of the International Harvester company.

Roger Deering's estate is being probated in Miami, Fla., where his mother, Mrs. Marion Whipple Deering of Evanston, has a winter home.

One of Largest Endowments.

Dr. Scott declared that the $7,000,000 bequest is the largest single endowment given an American institution of higher education since 1932 when George Eastman left $14,000,000 to the University of Rochester at Rochester, N. Y. It is the largest sum given Northwestern since a bequest of more than $8,000,000 from the estate of Milton H. Wilson in 1929.

According to Dr. Scott, the university will be established as residuary legatee of Mr. Deering's estate after bequests totaling $400,000 have been made to his mother and more than thirty relatives, friends and servants. Besides his mother, Mr. Deering is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick of Chicago and Mrs. Richard E. Danielson of Boston.

Gift Without Restrictions.

Mr. Deering provided in his will that the $7,000,000 gift should be unrestricted in character. The university's board of trustees has determined, Dr. Scott announced, that the money will not be placed in the building fund but will be used for educational purposes.

This large bequest is the culmination of almost sixty years of continuous giving to Northwestern university by the Deering family. Their record of gifts is unequaled by any other donor in the history of the university, said Dr. Scott.

Since 1876 the family has given the university a total of $10,300,000, including the $7,000,000 from Roger Deering's estate. Part of the funds were used to construct the Charles Deering Memorial library on the Evanston campus.

Roger Deering was never a student at the university. He was born on Oct. 26, 1884, and became ill soon after entering high school. Since then, according to Dr. Scott, he suffered from tuberculosis, which several times threatened his life. His death on Feb. 2 was due to pneumonia.

SNOWBOUND PASTOR, WIFE BURN RELIGIOUS BOOKS TO STAY ALIVE

Sturgis, S. D., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Rescued today from a week's snowbound isolation in the ranch community of Marcus, the Rev. Arie Dykstra, Presbyterian missionary, disclosed that he and his wife were kept from freezing to death in 20 below weather by burning 25 religious books.

"Two days before the rescue party reached us," said the Rev. Mr. Dykstra, "our fuel ran out. We burned 25 devotional books, and had enough more to last for a week. It was so cold that water froze in glasses near the kitchen stove. My wife and I couldn't even keep warm in bed."

Other snowbound ranchers in Marcus burned furniture, hay, fence posts, and parts of their homes. Twenty-five foot drifts prevented communication between houses.

Lake County to Pay $12 Each for Slain Wolves

A bounty of $12 for each wolf killed in Lake county will be paid by the county board of supervisors, it was announced yesterday by John D. Thomas, chairman of the finance committee of the board, at Waukegan. A bounty of $20 for each wolf was paid up to 1930, but these payments have been discontinued during the last six years as part of Lake county's economy program. The first bounty under the new order was paid to Frank Calzavara, 55 years old, of Johnson avenue, Libertyville, who slew a wolf which had been eating his chickens.

France to Court Martial Pilot Who Flew to U. S.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Marcel Deat, minister of air, told the aeronautics committee of the chamber of deputies today that Maj. Germain Bonnot will face a court-martial because of the upsetting of the French trans-Atlantic plane, Lieutenant De Visseau Paris, in the bay of Pensacola, Fla., last month.

2 Killed, 7 Hurt by Explosion in Sewer Tunnel

Two workmen were killed and seven others injured, three seriously, last night by a dynamite blast fifty feet underground in a tunnel of the southwest side intercepting sewer under construction near 38th street and California avenue.

The men killed were Allen Greene, colored, 34 years old, 4344 Prairie avenue, and Albert De Salles, 27 years old, 2561 Washington boulevard.

When the explosion occurred twenty-five men were working in the tunnel blasting through solid rock eastward along 38th street. One blast had just been set off and the men had returned to drill holes for a new charge when Greene apparently drilled into a stick of dynamite that had been left unexploded.

The three seriously injured men were taken to the West Side hospital. They are Joseph Lulich, 40 years old, 2821 West 25th street; William Oldham, colored, 33 years old, 3630 South Michigan avenue, and Jack Smith, 45 years old, 8208 South Paulina street. The other four were treated at the office of Dr. Mitchell S. Corbett, 1380 West Lake street.

The southwest intercepting sewer is an $8,000,000 project of the Chicago sanitary district, financed chiefly by Public Works administration funds. When completed it will dispose of sewage from the area bounded by the drainage canal, the lake, and 87th street.

HITLER PLEDGES UNCEASING WAR AGAINST JEWS

Catholics Target of Secret Police.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—Blaming Jews and their influence for every disaster, every political murder and all unhappiness that has befallen Germany since 1918, Reichsfuehrer Hitler today pledged himself to an unceasing fight against Jews.

He was speaking in Schwerin beside the coffin of Wilhelm Gustloff, Nazi leader in Switzerland, who was slain a week ago at Davos by David Frankfurter, young Jugo-Slav Jewish medical student. Hitler and other leaders canonized Gustloff as a Nazi martyr.

"We understand a challenge to fight, and we accept it," Hitler thundered. "This is our pledge: The crime against Gustloff falls back on its perpetrators—it does not weaken Germany, but it weakens the power which committed the crime."

Awakens Millions.

Hitler said Gustloff was the latest of hundreds of German martyrs slain and more than 40,000 wounded since 1918. He declared that behind all attacks was "our Jewish enemy, driven by hatred, who tried to subjugate the German people and make them slaves and who is responsible for all the disasters which befell Germany since then."

"No German or Swiss could be found to do this deed," Hitler said, and "the instigator had to do it himself." In other years, he said, Jewish enemies often were able to use Germans as tools against those "unselfishly devoted to the Fatherland."

"You, Wilhelm Gustloff, have not fallen in vain," Der Fuehrer pledged. "Little did your assassin dream that through his deed millions would be awakened to true German life. The deed strikes not at Germany, but at its instigators. Gustloff enters the ranks of our nation's immortal martyrs. He will be a patron saint of all Germans living abroad. His picture will hang in every Nazi office abroad."

Now in Valhalla.

The funeral was turned into a gigantic demonstration. Ernst Bohle, national leader of Germans Living Abroad, glorified Gustloff, while a Nazi pastor declared Gustloff was now in Valhalla with German heroes.

Hitler's sentiments were echoed in newspaper editorials. The radical anti-Jewish weekly Judenkenner even hinted that German Jews would be hostages for the safety of Germans abroad.

"The shots fired at Davos place on us the responsibility of considering whether we should not openly declare to world Jewry and its hodcarriers that for every German life on earth the Jews of Germany must answer with their lives," the weekly asserted.

Frankfurter, who killed Gustloff to avenge his German brethren, rendered poor service, Jews here fear. They are afraid fanatic Nazis will react to Hitler's message today. They find consolation only in the thought that authorities will do everything to prevent riots against Jews during the 1936 Olympic games in Berlin.

SECRET POLICE IN SADDLE

BERLIN, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Nazi secret police tonight controled the offices of civil district governors under a law designed to remove hindrances from police undercover activities against communists and Catholics.

The grip of the secret state police on public life was tightened today by a law made public through the official gazette after a series of swift raids, principally in the Rhineland, caused the arrest of more than 100 Catholics and communists on charges of allegedly conspiring against the government.

Henceforth, the Gestapo [or G. S. P., secret police] will be unhampered by civil officers and are empowered to issue commands to governors who in turn pass them on to local police officials. A decree published in the official gazette added, however, that the independence of ordinary justice would be unchanged. The G. S. P. is directed by Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, air minister.

"Striking Power" Freed.

Sentences and fines have been imposed on Catholic officials and members of other sects prohibited from holding meetings.

The new decree was described in official comment as assuring that the "secret police's striking power will be unhindered and guarantees close expert collaboration with civil officials."

The Rhineland drive apparently was halted for the moment or had come to an end since the first raids Friday which were climaxed by the arrest at Cologne Sunday of Ludwig Wolker, head of the National Catholic Youth movement, and a dozen others. Official reports contained the names of no new prisoners.

Charges that the Catholic church in Germany was being persecuted brought a sharp challenge from the official organ of Adolf Hitler's Black Shirt guards, Das Schwarze Korps.

The charge is as "old as the church itself," the "SS" organ declared, and always follows whenever the church's political ambitions are thwarted.

"No Catholic priest has been arrested because of his spiritual or welfare work," the paper said, "but priestly robes are no safeguard against punishment for treasonable activities."

Duties of Citizens Abroad.

The Black Shirts cited the case of Father Kenter of Dresden, sentenced to two years' imprisonment for "spreading communistic propaganda."

At the same time it announced the increased police jurisdiction, the official gazette also defined the duties of German citizens abroad regarding military and labor service in Germany.

Those citizens liable for such service were said to be required to report annually to their consuls for registration, even though they possess double nationality.

Exceptions would be only in case they are serving in foreign armies or navies or on account of physical or professional disabilities. Consuls are empowered to decide these latter factors.

INDICT GEORGIA WPA MANAGER ON FEDERAL COUNTS

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Alex S. Howell, brother of Chairman Hugh Howell of the state Democratic executive committee, was indicted today by the federal grand jury on five counts charging filing of false claims against the government and violation of the emergency relief act.

Howell, former manager of a WPA project dealing with a study of school records, was charged with using WPA workers to mail copies of the Georgia Woman's World, a publication alleged to contain political propaganda.

The publication, containing pictures of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt being escorted to an automobile by a Negro, was widely circulated at the recent Macon Grass Roots convention at which Gov. Eugene Talmadge, critic of the administration, was indorsed for president.

The WPA project in question was ordered halted by National Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins about ten days ago.

PLAN FUND DRIVE TO HELP JEWS IN GERMAN EXODUS

Seven hundred members of the Zionist Organization of Chicago met last night in the Morrison hotel, preparatory to launching their part in an international drive to raise $15,000,000 with which to take 150,000 Jews from Germany to a haven in Palestine.

In commenting on the challenge made yesterday by Adolf Hitler that Nazis would wage a world war against the Jews, Rabbi Solomon Goldman said that Jewry's answer to Hitler is: "We do not accept."

"Israel has fought her wars in the realm of the spirit," declared Rabbi Goldman, "and we will not descend to the level of Nazism."

TRIBUNE WOMAN CONGRESS OPENS AT NOON TODAY

All Sections of Nation to Be Represented.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The Woman Congress, an event of national significance, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will open at noon today in the Palmer house.

This third annual nonpartisan forum will take the measure of progress, or lack of progress, in many fields of activity and thought, not only in the nation, but in the world. Particular problems pressing at home will be presented in a thought challenging manner by men and women of opposite viewpoints. The range of the program extends from babies to stars, and from the corn belt to London.

Lady Nancy Astor, speaking over the short wave radio from London, where she is a member of parliament, will talk shortly after noon on the part that woman may play in peace and international coöperation. Her voice will be carried into the grand ballroom of the hotel and from there to other rooms if overflow rooms are needed.

15,000 Ask for Tickets.

More than 15,000 requests for tickets to the programs, which will last through Friday evening, have been received, and groups of women are coming to the congress from all parts of the country. The Woman Congress, which began as a midwestern gathering, has now become a national affair.

The congress will be called to order by Miss Ruth De Young, woman's editor, after an invocation by the Rev. John Evans, religious editor. The women will be greeted by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor of THE TRIBUNE. The keynote address on "Measuring World Progress" will be given by Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, dean of Stoneleigh college, Rye, N. H.

In the afternoon and evening programs of the first day the chief subjects will be social welfare, education, and problems of national government. This latter subject leads into the political field necessarily, but the nonpartisan character of the congress is emphasized here by the balancing of opposing schools of thought.

Will Hear Both Sides.

Here the Democratic senator, Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, will discuss the objectives of government from their standpoints, and Mrs. George B. Simmons, Missouri farm wife and mother, who electrified the grass roots convention at Springfield by her attack on New Deal government, and Justice George W. Maxey of the Supreme court of Pennsylvania will present their outlines of the critical choice in government that lies immediately before the United States.

There will be many other challenging ideas for the women, however, beyond the boundaries of present day politics and decisions. Science is opening a new vista of human possibilities, new methods of control of our fate by determining in advance a definite goal, learning the natural laws that cover progress toward that goal, then paying the price of effort to reach that goal.

Women Play Major Part.

This is particularly true in the field of child training and education, in both of which women play the major part. Mrs. Benjamin F. Langworthy, president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, will stress the responsibilities of the home, the true training ground of children. Escape from this responsibility by sending the children into the great standardizing mills of the schools will be discussed. Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of Northwestern university medical school and health editor of THE TRIBUNE, will speak on education for health.

After an entertainment interlude provided by Miss Ireene Wicker and Allan Grant, the story of what women have done toward municipal housecleaning in Cincinnati will be told by Henry R. Bentley, chairman of the charter committee of that city, which was responsible for putting through the city manager form of government. He will tell how women may become practical political reformers.

On Underprivileged Children.

Work that is being done for the underprivileged child will be described by Mrs. William J. Chalmers, founder of the Country Home for Convalescent Children, near Wheaton.

Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, is a high point in this first afternoon program. He will discuss "Educating for Social Mastery," a subject involving a long time program of educational effort for the molding of youth, the decision to seek for human values in the welter of American life that has followed the depression.

The five point program of the National Education association toward the awakening of women toward their political power and their opportunites as citzens will be discussed by Miss Agnes Samuelson, president of the association.

Problems of Government.

The first evening session will be given over to the problems of government, in which the great questions of personal liberty, autocracy, an amendment to the constitution, the dangers of socialism, the dangers of reaction, and the totalitarian state will be aired. This session will be opened by Miss Charl Williams, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, former member of the Democratic national committee of Tennessee. She will tell why her group of women have gone into politics. Her plea will be for tolerance. The famous Paulist choir will sing during an interlude.

The Friday morning program holds a great scientific treat. Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of Harvard observatory, one of the most noted astronomers in the world, will tell of the mysteries of the Milky Way, the galaxy in which our solar system swings. Dr. Shapley is the discoverer of the island universes beyond the Milky Way, and has broadened the conception of the cosmos into something illimitable.

Radio Wonders of Future.

NORMAN THOMAS IS ARRESTED AS STORE PICKET IN NEW YORK

Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Norman Thomas, the Socialist leader, was arrested late today on charges of disorderly conduct growing out of mass picketing of a Brooklyn department store.

He was released in bond of $500. He gave his age as 51 and identified himself as executive director of the League for Industrial Democracy.

Four women and four men arrested with him on similar charges brought by the store were not immediately freed.

Lieut. John Berg, who booked Thomas, asked, "Are you a communist?"

"No, I certainly am not," the onetime Socialist candidate for the presidency replied.

He told police it was the first time he had been arrested in New York City.

ZERO WEATHER GONE FOR TIME, CITY PROMISED

Arctic Air Plant in Far North Shuts Down.

Weather Forecaster C. A. Donnel last night came up with the best news Chicago has had in more than three weeks. He said there is no more zero weather in sight, at least for several days.

Because of atmospheric conditions to the west, there appears to be a good chance that Chicago may have snow from time to time, none of it heavy, Mr. Donnel declared. Today, for instance, may have a light snowfall, similar to yesterday, with the temperature around 15 degrees above zero, slightly colder than today.

Arctic Air Mass Breaks Up.

"Over a widespread region, extending in from the Pacific northwest, there is a very large low pressure area which is causing unsettled conditions and warmer temperatures," Mr. Donnel explained. "The huge mass of arctic air in the Mackenzie river basin of western Canada appears to be breaking up, and there is no meteorological condition at present to bring any of this cold air down on us."

A light snow sifted through Chicago yesterday, depositing only a fraction of an inch, while the mercury remained above zero all day, touching a high of 17 at 7 p. m. In Lake county, however, the prevailing northeast wind drifted a heavier fall across many of the country roads which had just been cleared after the Saturday blizzard.

Many highways to the west are again impassable because of the heavy snow which missed Chicago, the Chicago Motor club warned. Dixon lay under six inches of snow, and De Kalb was threatened with highway isolation.

Restore Roads to Winslow.

Winslow, a village of 350, in Stephenson county, saw its neighbors yesterday for the first time since Saturday, when drifts estimated as high as 50 feet, cut it off from the countryside. Behind snow plows a rescue party took in food and fuel, answering a plea for help from the mayor.

Subzero temperatures continued to scourge the frozen northwest, and below normal weather was general over the northern half of the nation. Temperatures ranged from 20 below in Montana and Minnesota to 82 above in the Rio Grande valley.

MONKEY UPSETS HARVARD'S POISE BY AGILE ANTICS

Boston, Mass., Feb. 12.—(AP)—A monkey which thinks nothing of leaping from a fifth floor window to the ground gave Harvard medical school professors and students the "jitters" today.

He escaped yesterday from the fifth floor of the school. He evaded laboratory assistants by hopping out a window. Pursuers found he had landed five floors below.

The chase then became erratic, with the monkey scaling buildings by climbing drain pipes. Later a posse organized by Dr. Carl W. Walters, head of the school's surgery department, thought they had the monkey cornered on the roof of a six story power house, but the animal scrambled to the ground.

What annoys Dr. Walters is that the monkey is not Harvard's. It was sent to the school on approval for research purposes.

"The monkey will be sent back the minute we get it," said the doctor, who has not slept for thirty hours.

REDS BACKSLIDE; URGE DANCING, WHITE COLLARS

MOSCOW, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Russia's advance toward communism presented today some concessions to the past. Long banished customs, once viewed as offsprings of capitalism, are reappearing as Red leaders build what they say will be a model society.

Dancing, for instance, was once considered frivolous and a waste of time. Now it is encouraged. For 17 years the soviet army held out against military titles other than that of "commander." Not long ago it was decided to fall back to the old czarist custom. Now there are lieutenants, captains, and other officers.

No one need be ashamed of a white collar in the soviet union today. Good dressing has come to have the same value and give the same prestige as in old-time Russia. Policies on divorce and the family are undergoing significant changes. Divorce was until recently a pure formality. Now such regulations as notification of the party to be divorced are in effect.

CIGARET CAUSES DEATH.

Michael Berger, 32 years old, 1634 Larrabee street, a gasoline station attendant, died last night in the Alexian Brothers hospital of burns incurred Jan. 31 when a spark from a cigaret ignited his clothing.

WE saw our cook making APPLE PIES awhile ago and they came out of the oven so unreasonably tempting with such a brown flaky crust and such a spicy fresh and apply odor that we STOLE one and we ATE it and we'd do it again! It's on our 40c BUDGET supper tonight but we've HAD ours. Don't TELL our cook.

TODAY—CREAM OF MUSHROOM SOUP —Unreasonably delicious, too!

Hunt Bandits Who Took $5,000 Rings from Movie Couple

BLIZZARDS, HAIL, SNOW AND FLOODS LASH CALIFORNIA

Gale Sweeping Coast Area Unroofs Houses.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Tornadoes struck four southern California cities tonight, injuring six persons. Flood and fire also figured in property damages exceeding $100,000.

Roaring twisters swept through Long Beach, Alhambra, South Pasadena, and Torrance, unroofing houses, uprooting trees, topping oil derricks, and starting fires.

Dorothy Compson, 11 years old, of Long Beach, was the most seriously injured. Both her legs were fractured when she was struck by flying timbers after her home was unroofed.

Harvey Connett, 62, suffered a fractured collar bone when an oil derrick toppled and struck his house.

"I was taking a bath," he said. "The next thing I knew, I was in the hospital."

Waders Hunt 15 Women, Children.

Fighting through water, neck deep, in darkness broken only by flashes from their torches, rescue workers tonight were attempting to reach fifteen women and children reported marooned by torrential rains in Big Tujunga canyon back of Montrose.

Reports of the marooned party back of the Big Tujunga dam were not received until some hours after torrential run off waters swept over an area which had been wrecked two years ago by a similar flood. Several homes were said to have been washed away by the rising waters, which in places run 50 feet wide.

Firemen tonight battled a blaze in the Torrance oil field where an oil well burst into flames during a tornado. Another fire raged in an oil field near Long Beach.

Blizzards, Hail, and Snow.

Blustering gales lashed the coast from Oregon to southern California. Heavy seas pounded the California coast. Blizzards raged in the high Sierras. Hail and snow closed the Columbia river highway and Rail gorge near The Dalles, Ore., but rotary plows reopened rail trafic.

A tornado drove a waterspout inland at Long Beach, thoroughly drenching the neighborhood with salt water.

A second tornado roaring out of the northeast struck Alhambra. The city park virtually was denuded of shrubbery and trees.

Storm Rages for Two Days.

The storm has been in progress for the last two days, originating at sea. A heavy downpour, coming down in steady streams, tonight caused hundreds of residents in the foothills near Glendale, Montrose, and La Crescenta to abandon their homes.

Flood control projects were said by county authorities to be taxed to their capacity. Lightning and thunder accompanied the rain and wind.

Downpours flooded streets in Sacramento, where the rainfall for 36 hours was 3.80 inches.

Floods Cause Damage.

An eight foot wall of water, silt, and rocks swept out of the mountains near Ontario, east of Los Angeles, causing damage estimated at $10,000.

One man was swept a quarter of a mile by the torrent. Another battled through the swirling water to rescue his wife and four children from an automobile.

A Hollywood motion picture company of 150 persons was snowed in at Brockway, north of Tahoe City.

The wind reached a velocity of 60 miles an hour at the San Francisco airport.

Link Two Robberies

Police said last night they believed the bandits who robbed Jackie Coogan and his fiancée, Betty Grable, young screen players, of jewelry valued at $5,000 early yesterday were the same ones who took $12,000 worth of furs and jewelry from Ethel Shutta, singer-wife of George Olson, orchestra leader, last week.

Coogan, one time boy star of the films, and Miss Grable went to the detective bureau yesterday in an effort to identify photographs of the robbers who overtook them after a wild chase around Chicago's loop. The young film players, who are appearing at a local theater, were returning at the time to their hotel after dancing until after midnight at the Congress hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Grable, Betty's parents, told Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan they believed the robbers may have intended to kidnap their daughter. Police expressed doubt of this, however.

MERCURY NEAR 50 IN GREENLAND; FLORIDA HAS 30

New York, Feb. 12.—[Special.]—While Florida shivered today with the mercury in the thirties, Greenland, nearly 3,000 miles nearer the north pole, enjoyed a temperature of nearly 50 degrees above zero. At the same time it was 30 to 40 degrees below zero in the Dakotas. This freak, meteorologists say, is due to a low pressure storm area off the coast of Labrador, which is sucking in warm air from the Atlantic ocean and spilling it over Greenland.

SCORES KILLED AS BLIZZARD HITS ALL OF EUROPE

LONDON, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Blizzards and gales raged over Europe and the near east tonight, bringing death and disaster. Shipping was paralyzed, and many small vessels sent word they were in distress in the Mediterranean, Adriatic, Black, and Marmora seas. Scores of fishermen were dead and others were missing when their fragile craft were blown ashore on the Italian coast of the Adriatic. The death toll for three days in Britain mounted to 27.

More than 20 died in a Bulgarian blizzard, including 15 who were killed in a train wreck. Many deaths were reported from Hungary and Greece. Twenty-five died in Macedonia. Only 20 per cent of the usual food supplies reached Paris markets.

A blizzard in Istanbul, Thrace, and Asia Minor wrecked numbers of small vessels. Nine persons drowned and many are missing. The famous Golden Horn bridge was carried away. Floods are submerging many villages on the plain of Smyrna.

LEAPS TO DEATH FROM AIRPLANE DESPITE PILOT

Oakland, Cal., Feb. 12.—(AP)—A man tentatively identified as Harold A. Sprague leaped to his death today from a taxi airplane 2,000 feet above San Francisco bay despite an attempt by the pilot to dive under and catch the falling body.

Seeing his passenger was about to jump, Pilot Emanuel Henderson nosed down the ship to try to hold the passenger in his seat. The man jumped clear. Then the airman vainly tried to maneuver the plane into the path of the falling body.

Identification was made from a wallet left at the Municipal airport. It contained automobile driver licenses and 82 cents in cash.

At his rooming house the landlord said he knew the man as H. A. Sprague, formerly of Denver, with a wife and child in Chicago.

BLAZE IN MEAT MARKET.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—A blaze tonight in the wholesale and retail meat market of John Fastige, 1013 North 3d street, caused damage estimated at $2,800. A big ice box and a loading platform were among the equipment destroyed.

4 ARMY AVIATORS BAIL OUT SAFELY; BOMBER CRASHES

Probe Ordered as Cause of Accident Is Disputed.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Four army aviators "bailed out" of a huge bomber and floated safely to earth today while the abandoned ship crashed and was demolished 16 miles southwest of here. A variation in accounts of the incident prompted the appointment of a military board to investigate it.

Members of the crew were Capt. Otto C. George of Hiawatha, Kas.; Robin B. Epler of Bonner Springs, Kas., and Sergts. George Russell of New York and Harry Hayes of San Antonio, Tex.

They abandoned the ship at 2,500 feet, shortly after taking off from Candler field, 14 miles from Atlanta. Three of them landed in trees and all escaped with only bruises and scratches.

Col. Ira A. Rader said he understood the plane ran out of fuel. Col. J. H. Houghton, commander of the flight in which the plane was participating, blamed engine trouble.

There was no immediate explanation of why the ship ran out of gasoline within ten minutes after leaving the field. W. M. Turner, on whose farm the ship crashed, said he saw gasoline around the débris.

Private Plane Crashes, 4 Hurt.

Albuquerque, N. M., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—A young woman was critically injured and three others were less seriously hurt today when their private plane crashed and was demolished in a forced landing at Acomita, 50 miles west of here.

The pilot and owner of the ship, B. C. Skinner, 46, head of a food machinery company at Dunedin, Fla., said a windstorm ripped fabric from a wing.

Skinner's daughter, Vivien, 22, was critically hurt. Skinner, L. B. Keller, 34, of Dunedin, and the latter's niece, Miss Beatrice Keller, were the others injured. All were brought to Albuquerque.

Two Crashes at Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Twelve passengers and a crew of three were shaken up but escaped injury tonight when a twin-motored American Air-lines transport plane crashed after an emergency landing at Bowman field here. The plane, on the New York to Los Angeles run, was rerouted through Louisville because of weather conditions. It was the second plane of the air line to crash here today. At 1 a. m. a southbound plane cracked up in a landing at Bowman field. None of the four passengers or members of the crew were injured, however.

FIND FLYER'S BODY AT FOOT OF CLIFF; PLANE MILE AWAY

San Bernardino, Cal., Feb. 12.—(AP)—The body of Lieut. John T. Helms, who had been missing since Dec. 30, was found today at the foot of a 30 foot mountain cliff down which he apparently tumbled after his plane crashed in the Sierra Madre mountains near Lytle canyon.

R. E. Jones, assistant supervisor of the San Bernardino National forest, said the body was a mile from the wreckage of the plane, indicating that Helms struggled down the mountainside for aid and fell over the cliff.

Helms' name was linked romantically with that of Toby Wing, film actress.

Lieut. Helms was lost on a flight from San Francisco to March field, his post.

Birthday Ceremonies Held Throughout City.

Lincoln's 127th birthday anniversary was widely observed in Chicago yesterday. Citizens gathered at numerous assemblies in the spirit of paying homage to the man of the past and also of seeking application of his still timely counsel to the national problems of the present.

In the afternoon 20 G. A. R. veterans and 300 other persons met in Memorial hall of the Chicago Public library for the annual Lincoln day program of the Grand Army Hall and Memorial association. Nineteen of the old soldiers at the meeting live in Cook county. The 20th veteran was George R. Streeter, 87 years old, a visitor from Hammond.

Veterans Led by Ambrose.

The Cook county veterans who attended are Thomas Ambrose, Illinois commander of the G. A. R.; George Mason, 96 years old, president of the Memorial association; Julius H. Reed, 93; John Hood, 93; John Burke, 88; James H. Lewis, 92, colored; Ezra Peebles, 89; Arthur Dawson, 90, chairman of the program; Frank Munsell, 92; Charles W. Beam, 88; chaplain; Isaac Adler, 95; James Crugom, 85; William J. Finlay, 88; Peter Angstrom, 91; James C. Thomas, 92; George McGuffage, 95; James C. Wade, 90; Alfred E. Gage, 91, and E. L. Graves, 91.

Several of them recalled contacts with Lincoln. Mr. Hood heard the Gettysburg address and described that occasion.

"Poor old Abe," he said. "He looked forsaken. The crowd was worn out from previous speakers. He got up and spoke only a few minutes, but the words he spoke were unforgettable."

The Rev. John Evans Speaks.

Lincoln's love for both God and man was responsible for his magnanamity and great mindedness, declared the Rev. John Evans, religious editor of THE TRIBUNE, the principal speaker.

Louis A. Warren, Lincoln scholar, addressed the Chicago Bar association at a Lincoln luncheon. He said that although Lincoln was born in humble circumstances his heredity was good and there were distinguished Lincolns before him.

Brig. Gen. John V. Clinnin spoke at a service at the Lincoln statue in Lincoln park in the morning.

SEIZED ON KIDNAP CHARGE OVER BOY HE THINKS IS SON

Dr. Gordon E. Mordoff, an osteopath, of 1721 Highland avenue, Wilmette, professed grief and astonishment last night when he was arrested on a warant charging him with the kidnaping of a child he believed to be his own. The charge was brought by Miss Margaret Mann, 24 years old, 1102 Church street, Evanston, who told the Wilmette police that the child, Reginald Arthur, was born to her May 19, 1932, in St. Vincent's hospital, Chicago.

When Reginald was 8 months old, she said, the baby was given to Mrs. Madge Quinn Mordoff, wife of the osteopath, to be boarded in the Mordoff home. Mrs. Mordoff died last Feb. 2, and soon afterward Miss Mann demanded the child from Dr. Mordoff. He refused, and Miss Mann went to the police.

Dr. Mordoff insisted that his wife represented the child to be her own, and he believed it to be his son. His wife told him, he said, that Reginald was born in Minneapolis, and got her brother, John P. Quinn, 8836 Euclid avenue, Chicago, to help her carry out the deception. Quinn confirmed this part of the story, according to the police.

Police permitted Miss Mann to take custody of the child and Dr. Mordoff will answer the kidnaping charge Saturday morning before Police Magistrate John Peters in Wilmette. Dr. Mordoff gave bond of $1,000.

FAIR REOPENED AT SAN DIEGO; NUDIST COLONY

San Diego, Cal., Feb. 12.—(AP)—The California Pacific International exposition—nudist colony and all—reopened today at Balboa park to thousands of visitors.

The weather favored the nudists—and thereby went one up on the show's officials who have adopted a policy of "wait and see" before acting further on protests against the colony. For the visitors it was see without waiting as pretty girls of the colony, encouraged by the sunshine, raced across the lawn of their enclosure.

3D REPUBLICAN PILGRIMAGE MADE TO LINCOLN TOMB

Candidates Join in Paying Tribute.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—The Illinois Young Republican organization made its third annual pilgrimage to the tomb of Abraham Lincoln today. The gathering was attended by a large number of candidates for places on the state and district tickets.

The organization members composed their differences, resolving to preserve complete harmony within the party and wage a bitter battle against the New Deal.

Several delegates came to the annual Lincoln day meeting with the idea of indorsing some candidates, but after a heated executive session, in which it was pointed out that such action would violate the organization's constitution, the young leaders agreed to fight for the party only.

Noble Johnson Named President.

After caucusing for nearly two hours the downstaters and Cook county delegates got together on the selection of Noble Johnson of Paxton as the new president of the organization. James Kable, Champaign, was named vice president.

Resolutions were adopted approving the action of the state central committee in selecting Harold Halpenny, Chicago, as director of Young Republican activities; commending the editors and staf of the Young Republicans' new newspaper, and resolving that the Young Republicans of Illinois put forth their greatest unselfish efforts in carrying on the party's fight.

Wayland Brooks of Chicago was an early arrival. He said he would not ask the organization to indorse his candidacy and would oppose any formal indorsement.

Other Candidates Present.

Other gubernatorial candidates present were John G. Oglesby of Elkhart, Walter M. Provine of Taylorville, and H. Wallace Caldwell of Chicago. Col. A. E. Ingless represented his father-in-law, former Governor Len Small of Kankakee.

Candidates for other state offices were Arthur Bidwill, River Forest, candidate for state auditor; Earl B. Searcy, Springfield, candidate for auditor; E. E. Nicholson, Springfield, candidate for auditor; Charles W. Hadley, Wheaton, candidate for attorney general; Mayor John W. Kapp, candidate for secretary of state, and G. William Horsley, Springfield, candidate for congress.

Included in the Cook county delegation were Catherine Ford, treasurer of the National Young Republicans; Thomas J. Downs, financial secretary; William Bemis, Glen Ellyn, assistant state director, and James Holliday, state secretary.

Pilgrims Place a Wreath.

The pilgrimage was made at 11 o'clock and a wreath was deposited at the cenotaph. Evan Howell of Springfield greeted the visitors at the business session, and Mayor Kapp delivered the address of welcome. William N. Erickson of Evanston, chairman of the executive committee, presided.

"We should make a study of the ideals of Lincoln and follow them diligently if we are to be successful," he said.

ROOSEVELT LEADS NATION IN PAYING TRIBUTE TO LINCOLN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today led the nation in observance of the birthday of Abraham Lincoln. He motored from the White House to the Lincoln Memorial in Potomac park and to bring a wreath to the statue of the martyred President.

Mr. Roosevelt remained at the foot of the steps of the memorial with Capt. Wilson Brown, chief naval aid, and assistant White House Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre while Col. Edwin Watson, chief military aid, carried the wreath to the statue.

The President remained while representatives of civic and patriotic organizations placed other wreaths and then returned to the White House.

LANDON BACKED FOR PRESIDENT BY HOME TOWN

Independence, Kas., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Gov. Alf M. Landon's home town heard him offered tonight as a candidate for President "if the people wish to return to the 'horse and buggy' honesty and common sense of Abraham Lincoln."

One hundred and twenty-five Third district young Republicans attended a Lincoln day luncheon at which a resolution was adopted saying:

"We believe that a young Republican of this district personifies those principles which have been forgotten by the President, principles which our people as a nation must regain in order to have a government of law rather than of men.

"If the people of this country wish to return to the 'horse and buggy' honesty and common sense of Abraham Lincoln, then we offer to the country our distinguished governor of this state as a candidate for President—Alf M. Landon."

INVOKE LINCOLN SPIRIT IN FIGHT FOR U. S. LIBERTY

Col. McCormick Strikes at Dictatorship.

recital of the Emancipator's fight for the constitution.

"We are here," he said, "to celebrate Lincoln, the great Illinoisan, the great constitutionalist, the apostle of republicanism, the embodiment of popular institutions. We are here to follow in his footsteps to save freedom again, to save the Union again, as he saved them by saving the constitution.

"In his rise from log cabin to White House Lincoln exemplified the opportunity which a republic gives to every man. In his adult years he expounded the constitution as the bedrock of liberty. As President he preserved it all through a terrible civil war, and finally laid down his life in martyrdom in the hour of his victory for the constitution.

"Never in quest of any political end or any personal gain did he so much as suggest evading it. Never, when clothed with the military power of a million armed and disciplined men, did he encroach upon its boundaries.

Liberty and the Constitution.

"Full well he knew that liberty and the constitution were inseparable, for he said:

"'No one who has sworn to support the constitution can conscientiously vote for what he understands to be an unconstitutional measure, however expedient he may think it.'

"'To the support of the constitution and laws let every American pledge his life, his property, and his sacred honor.'

"And he said:

"'Government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth.'

"We hear much attack upon our constitution these days from high places. This is significant because there are only two theories of government. They are as wide apart as the ends of the earth. One is western; the other is oriental. One may be called parliamentarian, republican, or democratic; but to be any one of these it must be constitutional. The other may be termed monarchial, imperial, Fascist, Nazi, or proletarian; it is inevitably tyrannical.

"Our theory is based upon the right of the people to select such officers as they wish to serve them and enact such laws as they desire for their protection and convenience.

"Theirs is built around a supreme individual who chooses his servants, dictates laws, and issues commands for the domination of the people.

Contrasts from History.

"Ours is the form of government which existed in the greatness of Greece and the grandeur of Rome.

"Theirs is the government of the Medes, the Tartars, the Huns, the Mongols, and the Japanese."

Democratic Greece and republican Rome, said Col. McCormick, fell into oriental despotism through the greedy ambition of their leaders. This doctrin of despotism was carried into the empire of Charlemagne and from it to the Austrian empire and the kingdoms of continental Europe.

But the struggle for political liberty was kept alive in the British Isles. Set back by the conquest by William of Normandy the struggle was carried on 700 years longer to produce the Magna Charta [the principle that the courts might declare illegal statutes infringing the rights of the people], the Bill of Rights, and the chartering of cities, "from which all the liberties of the world have come," said Col. McCormick.

In the New World.

It was the extension of charters to the British colonies which brought the principle of self-government to the new world at a time when France and Spain were establishing their colonies as the property of royal despots, Col. McCormick pointed out.

The attempt by King George III. to overthrow the rights which had been granted the colonists in writing brought on the American revolution. Thereafter the constitution of the United States was established "to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty."

"The 700 years' strife between the constitution and autocracy in England," said Col. McCormick, "the battles of barons and burghers at Lewes, the martyrdom of printers and editors, the sufferings of Hampden and Sayre, the sacrifices of the Cornish farmers at Sedgemoor, and the sufferings of our heroic soldiers on the plains of Quebec and Valley Forge now came to glorious flower.

The Constitution Set Up.

"The constitutional form of government conceived by our early ancestors was now set up in all its perfections: Local self-government in the states and their subdivisions, a national government consisting of two legislative assemblies, an executive sworn to enforce the law and uphold the constitution, the constitution itself a definite document setting up the powers and the limitations upon the powers of the public servants, protecting and reserving the rights of the people and the states, and, finally, the supreme achievement, a Supreme court before which differences of opinion as to the interpretation of the laws of the constitution could be taken so that forever it might be possible to avoid these sanguinary civil wars which marked the controversies between kings and people in England."

England enfranchised her people and freed her press, Col. McCormick said, but attempts at similar progress on the continent of Europe were slow and uncertain because there was no background for such government. The constitutional forms which had been adopted in those countries failed to survive post-war stresses.

New Despotism in Europe.

He pointed to the spectacle of Russia, Italy, Germany, Austria, and other nations suffering today under a revived despotism.

"This would be much too bad if it were all, but the worst is now at our door—dictatorship threatens to engulf the liberties of the American people," said Col. McCormick. "A band of conspirators, including our Felix Frankfurter, who like Adolf Hitler was born in Austria, impregnated in the historic doctrins of Austrian absolutism, plans to inflict this oriental atrocity upon our republican people.

"The congress of the United States has been corrupted with bribes such as history knows no record of.

"Four billion eight hundred million dollars, or one hundred million dollars for each state in the Union, have been appropriated to corrupt the electors.

A Vicious Circle Begun.

"The unscrupulous organizing mind of Tammany Jim Farley is at work behind the smiling mask of Franklin Roosevelt to bring the end of self-government in the world.

"They write statutes to violate the rights of our citizens and the rights of our states and send these to a thoroughly corrupted congress with orders to pass them in spite of their unconstitutionality. When their violations of the constitution have been passed they tell the Supreme court it must not question the constitutionality of an act of congress!

"And to you citizens they say: You are not intelligent enough to understand a constitution. You will be better off without one, under the rule of a dictator.

"I challenge this insult. The American people can understand this marvelous yet simple document of which Gladstone, the great English commoner, said:

"'The American constitution is, so far as I can see, the most wonderful work ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man.'"

Parts of Constitution Read.

Col. McCormick then read to his audience those sections of the constitution which specify the powers and duties of congress, of the President and of the Supreme court, and the amendments added to preserve the rights of the people.

"It is in this constitution and its amendments, set up by the people themselves, limiting the powers of government and preserving the rights of the citizens, that we Americans tower above the peoples of all other countries," he said.

"Where the people of other lands live under hereditary rulers and dictators who have usurped autocratic power by force, fraud and massacre, we live together under written agreements made with each other which preserve the rights of the innocent from the machinations of the unscrupulous, those of the weak from the oppression of the strong, those of the minority from the prejudices and passions of the majority, the liberties of private citizens from the tyranny, abuse and robbery of those who wield the powers of government.

Nation Facing Another Crisis.

"We are here because we see these rights jeopardized by a movement, financed with billions of dollars from the federal treasury, that seeks to replace our republic with a dictatorship, our constitution with the whim of an officeholder.

"Congress having been corrupted to acquiesce in this doctrin, it is boldly urged that our courts shall be forbidden to prevent the enforcement of laws which oppress the citizens in violation of the constitution.

"Congress did pass two laws, transferring the legislative powers to the executive in imitation of the parliaments of Germany and Italy.

"Had not the Supreme court of the United States declared these laws unconstitutional, you would not be free citizens of a republic today, but subjects of an oriental despotism.

"In this grave moment I recall to you those words of Abraham Lincoln which I read earlier this evening:

"'To the support of the constitution and laws let every American pledge his life, his property, and his sacred honor.'

"If we do this, 'a government of the people, by the people, and for the people' shall not perish from the earth."

Pageant Depicts Lincoln's Life.

The ceremonies at the Civic Opera house were sponsored by a Lincoln day committee composed of leaders of ex-service men's organizations and other patriotic groups. Julius Miner was general director of the program. Homer Guck was chairman of the evening.

A dramatic Lincoln spectacle with a cast of 100 was presented in the theater, portraying events in the career of the "Rail Splitter of the Sangamon" and the Great Emancipator, Lawrence Coghlan impersonated Lincoln.

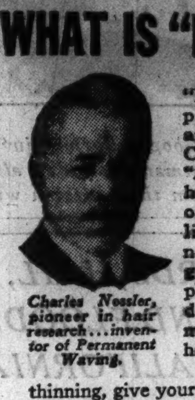
WHAT IS "PREMATURE BALDNESS"?



Charles Nessler, pioneer in hair research... inventor of Permanent Waving.

"Baldness is premature at any age," says Charles Nessler. "A man should have a full head of hair all his life.... Baldness," Nessler goes on to explain, "is often due to man's mistreatment of his hair."

If your hair is thinning, give your scalp the help it needs. Don't try to stop the normal process of falling hair. Instead, help your scalp replace hair that falls, with new, healthy hair. Charles Nessler's Pro-Ker Treatment is based on this sound, scientific principle of hair replacement. Only by replacing hair that falls can baldness be prevented.

NO DANDRUFF—ITCHING—OILINESS

The Pro-Ker Treatment does for the hair what exercise does for the body. This scientific method is working simply and successfully for thousands of men and women every day.

If you want to help your hair—if you want to encourage hair replacement—if you want to relieve such secondary conditions as dandruff, itching or oiliness, start at once on the Pro-Ker Treatment. Pleasant to use—not sticky or greasy. An excellent hairdressing too, free from alcohol. Get Pro-Ker at any drug counter. $1 and $1.50 the bottle.

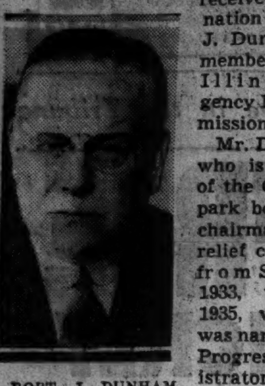
DUNHAM OUSTED FROM RELIEF JOB BY GOV. HORNER

Action Is Regarded as a Political Reprisal.

Gov. Horner announced last night that he had requested and had received the resignation of Robert J. Dunham as a member of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission.



ROBT. J. DUNHAM.

Mr. Dunham, who is president of the Chicago park board, was chairman of the relief commission from September, 1933, to May, 1935, when he was named Works Progress administrator for Illinois.

Politicians regarded the governor's action as reprisal against Mayor Kelly and the Cook county Democratic organization because of their refusal to support him for reëlection. Mr. Dunham entered public life at the behest of Mayor Kelly.

Mayor's Brother-in-Law Out.

It was considered significant that at the time of the Dunham dismissal Gov. Horner also announced that he had accepted the resignation from the IERC of John P. Roche of Chicago, brother-in-law of the mayor. Roche's resignation was submitted last summer and he had not been active in the IERC since that time.

The governor's dismissal of Dunham was regarded as only a gesture against his political opponents, because the IERC expires on May 1 by legislative enactment.

While Gov. Horner would not discuss his action yesterday, Mr. Dunham talked about it freely. He did not mention the political strife between the governor and the Cook county organization as a cause for his dismissal, however, but confined his statement to a recital of his activities as a member of the relief commission.

Stays at Hopkins' Request.

"About the time of my WPA appointment, Mr. Dunham said, "I felt that I should resign from membership in the commission. But the national administrator, Harry L. Hopkins, urged me by letter to continue as a member because of the close connection between the two positions. So I remained.

"Last fall I began to worry about what would happen on Jan. 1 to those many thousands of people on the relief rolls who would not be eligible for WPA jobs and I talked of that matter time and again at meetings of the commission, but somehow they were always executive sessions and the seriousness of the situation did not become known publicly."

Special Session Advocated.

"I said I thought the governor should call a special session of the legislature, but I didn't criticize him. I was only trying to make a fight for those people on relief who would be up against it after Jan. 15. The whole matter came out in the open early in January."

Mr. Dunham said that he had told John C. Martin, present chairman of the relief commission, whose resignation has also been submitted but has not been acted upon, that he would resign any time the governor wished him to.

Mr. Dunham has said repeatedly, since he became a public official, that he has no political ambitions nor any desire for the positions to which he has been appointed, save for the service he might render in them. He is independently wealthy.

"The middle of last week," said Dunham yesterday, "I had a call from Arthur O'Brien, the governor's secretary, who told me that the governor wanted my resignation. I said that I was a formal fellow and would like to have the request in writing.

"On Friday I received a letter from the governor which said that I could consider it a request for my resignation. Of course I complied immediately. I explained my reason for staying with the commission as long as I had and included a copy of the letter from Administrator Hopkins in which he asked me to remain as a member after I took over the WPA work in Illinois."

DEMOCRATS TO OPEN COOK COUNTY DRIVE FOR VOTES TOMORROW

With the return from Washington tomorrow of P. A. Nash, chairman of the Cook county Democratic central committee, the primary campaign in behalf of the regular organization candidates for state, county, and city offices will become active.

At a meeting of the county committee, to be called for Saturday, subcommittees are to be appointed to direct organization work. The organization's official pamphlet for Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, candidate against Gov. Henry Horner for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and for other members of the state ticket made its appearance in Chicago yesterday. One hundred thousand red, white, and blue pamphlets, bearing the slogan "B for Bundesen," and 50,000 blue lapel pins have been sent to state headquarters in Springfield.

Arrangements are being made by Bruce Campbell, state chairman, for a speech making tour which will take the state candidates into every county in the state. The trip is to start on March 2 and last three weeks. It is planned to send the caravan into more than 150 cities.

BORAH WILL MAKE MAIN CAMPAIGN FIGHT IN ILLINOIS

Primary Petition Is Filed; Leads G. O. P. Ballot.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, who filed in Illinois today for the Republican nomination for President, intends to make his principal fight in that state and in Ohio, in which he has announced he will enter his name for support.

The senator will make a number of speeches in each state, carrying to the voters his fight on the "old guard" which he accuses of designs to manipulate the nomination by means of uninstructed delegations and favorite son candidacies.

Whether he will enter the California primary and try conclusions directly with former President Hoover, the senator has not decided.

Plans Active Fight in 10 States.

The states in which he will be an active candidate will have a total of 213 votes in the national convention. They are Illinois, 57; Ohio, 52; Idaho, 8; Montana, 8; South Dakota, 8; North Dakota, 8; Minnesota, 22; Wisconsin, 24; Oregon, 10, and Washington, 16.

The senator's office was thronged today with deputations from many states who had come to urge Mr. Borah to launch his candidacy in their territory. Among them was a group from Iowa. The Iowans said the delegation from their state would be uninstructed but that a majority of the members would be favorable to Borah if the senator enters the contest in Iowa. Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa is no less confident that he will have the backing of the delegation.

The Illinois Pronouncement.

The filing of the Borah petition in Illinois was announced today by Carl G. Bachman, chairman of the national Borah for President committee in the following statement:

"Senator Borah has definitly entered the Illinois primary for President, and, if nominated, will be the first Republican candidate for President from Illinois since the election of Gen. U. S. Grant. All the petitions were filed today according to the primary law of Illinois.

"Senator Borah has also filed his written consent with the secretary of state.

"Senator Borah was born on a farm about five miles northeast of Fairfield, Ill., therefore he is a 'favorite son' of that great state. The Borah family were all farmers and outstanding citizens of their community. His father, William N. Borah, lived to be 92 years of age."

HEADS G. O. P. STATE BALLOT

Senator William E. Borah won first place yesterday on the ballot in the Republican presidential preference primary in Illinois when his petition and certificate of candidacy were filed in the Springfield office of Edward J. Hughes, secretary of state.

The Borah petition was filed by Attorney Edgar J. Cook, Chicago, who is acting under the senator's personal instructions. The only other petition filed was that of Col. Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, which was brought in later by Cornelius J. Doyle of Springfield.

Gets Top Place on Ballot.

The priority of the Borah filing will give his name the top place on the Republican ballot of April 14, according to the understanding of Lewis Vogel, chief clerk in the secretary of state's index department, and the opinions of other election officials.

Attorney Cook, who also filed for himself a nominating petition for delegate to the Republican national convention from the 10th district, announced that the Illinois Borah for President committee would open its headquarters tomorrow in the Congress hotel.

Petitions were being circulated by Illinois Democrats to enter the name of President Roosevelt in the state Democratic primary. The petitions are to be completed today and taken to Springfield along with a signed declaration of candidacy.

Although Borah has stated that he will enter the presidential primary in Ohio, today's written and attested declaration of candidacy was said to be the first such document filed by him. It was the first one to be filed by Knox also, and will be President Roosevelt's first. The Illinois primary comes before that of Ohio, which will be held on May 12.

Other G. O. P. Filings.

Two Republicans filed primary election petitions for congress yesterday with the secretary of state in Springfield. They are Harry C. Montgomery, Winchester, in the 20th congressional district, and J. Lester Buford, Johnston City, in the 25th district.

Others who filed petitions during the day are:

JAMES R. ZINN, 3814 South State street, Chicago, for Republican state central committeeman from the 1st district.

ANDREW B. DENNIS, Danville, for delegate to the Democratic national convention from the 18th district.

T. MAC DOWNING, Macomb, for Republican nomination to the state senate in the 32d senatorial district.

THOMAS A. POPE, 201 South Walnut street, Arlington Heights, for Democratic nomination for state representative in the 7th district.

ANDREW KNAPP, Tuscola, for Republican nomination for state representative in the 34th district.

Petitions for delegate to the Republican national convention from the 10th district were being circulated yesterday by the Rev. Paul J. Goodwin of Zion, pastor of the Grace Missionary church, a Borah supporter.

CHURCH GROUPS TO TRAIN YOUTH IN RIGHT VOTING

Young members of more than 30 Protestant denominational churches and Sunday schools who will be of age to vote in November will be enrolled this summer and fall in a movement sponsored by the International Council of Religion Education to enable them, "to vote intelligently."

One of many sectional meetings of the annual meeting of the International Council of Religious Education in the Stevens hotel, a joint committee of various agencies concerned with work among youth, including nonchurch groups such as the Y. M. C. A., met in the afternoon to discuss their "Christian Youth Building a New World" movement.

This movement was started two years ago, but a report to be given this morning from the "Christian patriotism" subcommittee will outline its first prosposed action, that of educating prospective voters.

More than 1,000 registered members of the council are attending the general meeting and sectional conferences. They include members of educational stafs of all Protestan denominations.

Harry Stock of Boston, national secretary of young people's work in the Congregational churches, who heads the subcommittee on Christian patriotism, explained its purpose in an interview last night.

"We feel that the older generation will vote emotionally at the next election," he said. "We hope the younger generation will use intelligence."

TWO MOTORISTS ARE KILLED WHEN TRAINS HIT CARS

Dr. C. M. Reyher Struck Hurrying to Call.

Two motorists were killed, one in Blue Island and the other in Gary yesterday when their automobiles were struck by trains. One driver didn't see the train which struck him until he was on the tracks, and the other's effort to stop his car was futile.

Dr. Christopher M. Reyher, 55 years old, 131 East 5th avenue, Gary, former city health commissioner there, was struck by a Baltimore and Ohio passenger train at the Clark road crossing in the Indiana city as he answered an emergency call from Mrs. William Bailey, ill in her lake shore home in the Pine station section.

Dr. Reyher, hurrying to cross the tracks before he was blocked by a long freight train, did not see the passenger train until he had driven in front of it, witnesses said.

Dr. Reyher had lived in Gary since 1910. He is survived by his widow and a son, Harrison. He was a fellow of the American College of Physicians.

Skids to Death on Track.

Charles T. Dwelis, 31 years old, 2620 Cochran street, Blue Island, was killed when his automobile was struck by the International Limited of the Grand Trunk railway at the 123d street crossing in Blue Island.

Witnesses said Dwelis apparently saw the northbound train as he neared the crossing, which is protected only by a cross arm standard, and applied his brakes. His car, however, slid directly into the path of the train, and was carried 100 yards before the limited could be brought to a stop. Dwelis, a telephone repair man, was dead when he was taken from the wreckage. He was survived by his widow and a 3 year old son.

A Soo line freight train struck an automobile yesterday at Thacker avenue in Des Plaines, injuring Albert Weisman, 34 years old, 892 Grant drive, Des Plaines, a garage employé, and Walter Tank, 55 years old, 831 2d avenue, Des Plaines, a railroad crossing watchman. Both were taken to the Northwestern hospital, Des Plaines, where the condition of Tank was said to be critical. Police reported that a flashing signal at the crossing was working.

Two Women and Boy Hurt.

Two women were seriously injured yesterday when two automobiles collided at Humphrey and Le Moyne avenues, Oak Park. A boy standing at the curb was knocked down by one of the cars. The women are Mrs. Julia Corbly, 49 years old, 619 Washington boulevard, Oak Park, and Mrs. Fred Crapo, 38 years old, 4728 Gladys avenue, who were riding in the car driven by Mrs. Corbly's son Parker, 25 years old. M. J. Conley, 29 years old, driver of the other machine, was not injured. The boy knocked down at the curb is Edwin Motto, 12 years old, 1110 North Humphrey avenue, Oak Park. All three were taken to West Suburban hospital.

Policemen and firemen worked 20 minutes yesterday to remove Raymond Stein, 38 years old, 1542 West Garfield boulevard, and Carl Geiger, 37 years old, 1289 Blanche street, from the wreckage of Stein's car after it overturned at Sheffield and West North avenues.

At 4 p. m. yesterday 118 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1, according to the coroner's office. During the same period 100 were killed and 1,750 were injured within the city limits of Chicago.

Joseph Wagner, 53 years old, owner of a tavern at 757 North Cicero avenue, died last night in St. Anne's hospital of injuries suffered last Thursday when he was struck by an automobile.

Sen. Norris Assails Supreme Court for AAA Ruling and Demands Unanimous Decisions

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Wailing that the entire department of agriculture and a great many other activities of government must fall under the recent Supreme court opinion holding the AAA unconstitutional, Senator George W. Norris, Nebraska radical, today urged congress to pass a law requiring unanimous decisions to overrule its acts.

Speaking on the New Deal's substitute for the AAA, Norris deplored the Supreme court's 6 to 3 decision as one of the most far reaching in its history and vehemently declared that "it cannot stand." He argued that the decision itself was unconstitutional by the court's own reasoning.

Says Court Violates Law.

"The regulation of agricultural production, they say, is unconstitutional because not mentioned in the constitution," Norris asserted. "Nowhere in that great document is there a syllable, a word, or a sentence giving to any court the right to declare an act of congress unconstitutional. Hence, when the court indulges in that pastime it is itself violating the constitution according to its own words."

Norris' attack on the Supreme court was the most violent ever delivered in the senate since the New Dealers first began their talk of restricting the powers of the highest tribunal, or packing its membership, or amending the constitution to change the form of government.

The radical senator from the great corn and hog state of Nebraska said the AAA decision itself was "an amendment to the constitution" and that "the people can change congress but only God can change the Supreme court."

New Proposal Goes Farther.

Norris at the last session introduced a resolution proposing a constitutional amendment whereby the vote of more than two-thirds of the Supreme court's membership [that is, seven members] would be required to hold an act of congress unconstitutional. Today, however, he went much farther, with the revolutionary proposal that congress itself pass a law requiring not 7 to 2 but unanimous decisions to overrule its acts.

Besides hearing Norris' long speech denouncing the Supreme court and accepting various so-called clarifying amendments, the senate today made no progress on the AAA substitute, which probably will reach a final vote under a unanimous consent agreement on Friday.

Borah May Make Reply.

Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], veteran constitutional authority defender of the Supreme court, listened intently while Norris spoke, and it was widely conjectured that he would have a reply to make before the passage of the bill. Senator Borah already has pronounced the new scheme to pay farm bounties and accomplish production under control in the name of "soil conservation" unconstitutional. Norris admitted at the outset that he doubted its constitutionality under the Supreme court's decision.

"But I am grasping at a straw," he declared. "I think it is conceded by everybody except the Supreme court that agriculture is the one fundamental industry of civilization and that it is the greatest problem, national in scope, which confronts congress and the American people today.

Must Aid Agriculture.

"Unless agriculture is revived, unless this fundamental industry of all industries can be placed upon a basis where free men and free women can earn a livelihood at it, in the end it means the destruction of the republic. We cannot indefinitly continue even apparently to prosper as a nation unless agriculture is lifted from the depths of despair into which it has been plunged."

Norris quoted from the majority opinion of the Supreme court holding that the regulation and control of agricultural production was a local affair reserved to the states and beyond the power of congress. Under that decision, he declared, not only the pending bill but "a large portion of the laws which congress has passed during the last hundred years are absolutely unconstitutional."

His lamentation then was reminiscent of the famous "horse and buggy" talk of President Roosevelt, who predicted, after the NRA decision, the fall of the AAA and the return of 5 cent cotton and 40 cent wheat.

Sees Other Acts Illegal.

"The law giving relief from the effects of the boll weevil, the law providing relief to grasshopper sufferers, the law providing relief for those who are injured by earthquakes, by wind, by storm, by hurricane, by drouth, by dust storms, are likewise, every one of them, unconstitutional," he declared.

"Every word creating and providing for the bureau of reclamation, upon which a large part of the west depends for its prosperity, is unconstitutional. In fact, there will not be anything left of the department of agriculture. It is all gone. All unconstitutional, and, by fair implication, a great many other activities of the government, too numerous to mention, will have to fall.

"Mr. President, I say that decision cannot stand if our country is to live and prosper."

Hits Tax Decision.

Norris assailed the Supreme court's decision in the second AAA case, which resulted in the return of 200 million dollars in processing taxes illegally exacted from the taxpayers, saying everybody knew that these processing taxes had been passed on to the consumer.

"In most cases," he declared, "they had also taken the tax from the producer. They deducted the tax from the producer when they bought the products, and they added the tax to the consumer when they sold the products. Now comes the Supreme court, in its magnanimity, and gives it for the third time to the processors.

"An eminent official, the secretary of agriculture, has publicly said that this is the greatest legalized steal in history. Perhaps it is too severe to call it a steal. It has the approval of the highest court in the world and it is probably erroneous to say that it is stolen. But it is a gift, the greatest gift since God made salvation free."

Continues His Attack.

Continuing his assault upon the court, Norris declared:

"Mr. President, for practical purposes, the way things are working out, the legislative functions of this government are given to three different bodies: the house of representatives, the senate, and the Supreme court. The members of the house of representatives are elected for two years according to population. They derive their power from the people; they are responsible to the people.

"Members of the senate are elected without regard to population, two senators coming from each state, but they are elected by the people. They are likewise responsible to the people.

Justices Not Elected.

"The members of the Supreme court are not elected by anybody. They are responsible to nobody, yet they hold dominion over everybody. The house of representatives and the senate have some jurisdictions peculiar to each one of these bodies. The house of representatives has exclusive right to initiate revenue legislation. The senate has exclusive right to pass on treaties and nominations made by the executive department.

"But the members of the Supreme court have no limit to their jurisdiction. They are not responsible to the people, they serve during life, and however great they may be, that power, as Jefferson once said, is too great to give to any man for life—unlimited power for life.

"Mr. President, this decision cannot stand. Congress under the existing constitution has the power to remedy the situation if it has the courage to do it. A part of section 2, article 3, of the constitution applying to the particular point I am making, reads as follows:

"'In all the other cases before it mentioned the Supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction both as to law and fact with such exceptions and under such regulations as the congress shall make.'

Must Be Reasonably Certain.

"It is a conceded proposition of law, I think, that an act passed by congress should not be declared unconstitutional unless it is unconstitutional beyond a reasonable doubt. The fact that such laws are held unconstitutional by our learned tribunal by five to four decisions of itself raises a reasonable doubt. Hence it should not occur.

"If the laws of congress should be sustained as constitutional unless they are unconstitutional beyond a reasonable doubt, it would follow as night follows day that any decision of the Supreme court holding a law unconstitutional would have to be agreed to by all the members of the Supreme court. That is not unreasonable. Congress can provide for it under the existing constitution if it will; and that is no disrespect to the court. That is no disrespect to any one.

"But it must be said, on the other hand, that if congress makes a fool of itself and passes a law which the people do not want, the people have a remedy by the defeat of that congress and the election of one which will repeal the noxious act. But if it is to be submitted to a body of nine men, five of whom can control, there is no remedy on the part of the people."

LEAP FROM TRAIN KILLS RUNAWAY CHICAGO BOY, 13

Jack Kirk, 13 years old, 3939 Lawrence avenue, who ran away from home on Feb. 5, was killed yesterday when he leaped from a Chicago bound Milwaukee road train at Truesdell, Wis., near Kenosha. Kirk and a companion, Chester Wysocki, 13 years old, 2035 Crystal street, who was also a runaway, were arrested by Milwaukee police Thursday and were being sent back to Chicago by the Travelers' aid when Kirk jumped from the train.

"We had been on the train about an hour," Wysocki told the police, "when Jack called me to the platform. He said: 'I'm going somewhere' and jumped off the train. I tried to pull me with him but I held on to the door."

WOMAN, THREE MEN PERISH IN N. Y. CAFE FIRE

there, seemingly calm and patient, when ladders reached them.

Dancers Trampled in Rush.

In the wild rush for the exits, a number of men and women were trampled. Others were caught in the crowd and burned as the flames ate the flimsy draperies of the restaurant.

One of the guests at the Holy Name society dinner said he saw two panicstricken men jump out of the restaurant windows. Two others clambered out to an electric sign, slid down its supports, and dropped to the sidewalk.

One of the dead was Harry Ma Ting-Chu, manager of the restaurant. Chu reached the street safely, but dashed back into the restaurant to get the receipts from the cash register and the safe. His body was found on the floor near the cash register. The money was in his pockets.

The two hat check girls escaped. Miss Adelaide Miller was at the Lexington avenue side and Miss Annette Dobson had the cloak room at the 59th street door.

Yell Creates a Panic.

Miss Dobson was sitting in her cubby when a man ran past her yelling "fire!" She just had time to snatch her own hat and coat when she was thrown down the steps by the first of the escaping throng.

Many of the survivors said they saw men and women stripped to the waist in the rush for the doors. One man had his shoes torn off by some one as he struggled for air at the bottom of a heap near the door.

About five minutes after the smoke was first detected, firemen appeared in the doors of the restaurant, bearing their equipment.

"One of the firemen stood there in the door," said Joseph Morisco. "'Get everybody out of here,' he hollered, and right then the excitement started."

"Men shouted, 'Let the women out first!' and others took up the cry, and, the first thing I knew, everything was confused. The men meant well, and they all tried to get their women toward the door first."

In the press of excitement women were jammed against the walls of the restaurant, with their escorts pushing other people aside in an attempt to clear a way to the staircase.

Morisco said the men and women trampled in the rush for the staircase were piled in struggling heaps—five or six deep—with blinded escorts making matters worse as they tried to get the women out of the piles.

The dead were identified as Martin S. Stettner, 29, of Manhattan; John J. Gardolla, 38, of Corona, Queens; Ma Ting-chu, 35, of Astoria, Queens, the manager, and an unidentified woman.

7 Dead, 8 Missing in Hotel.

Lakewood, N. J., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Seven bodies were recovered tonight as weary firemen dropped the search for eight others missing in the smouldering ruins of the Victoria Mansion hotel, swept by a disastrous early morning fire.

A score of persons were injured, eight seriously, as the guests, roused from sleep, dashed for the exits to flee the flames which swept through the 65-room, three-story structure.

Chief of Police Walter Curtis said that after a check of other hotels and private homes in this resort village, he was convinced the eight missing perished in the flames.

The search for bodies was abandoned tonight as a cold wintry night clamped itself on the town. The search will be resumed in the morning.

Family Burns; Farmer Held.

Jackson, Minn., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Paul Poelart, a farmer, was held under guard in a hospital here today while authorities investigated a fire at his farm home, 14 miles from here, last night in which his 75 year old mother, his wife, and two infant children were burned to death.

Theodore Alt, a hired man, told police that Poelart sent him to a neighbor's house last night to call a doctor, sherif and coroner. Upon his return to the Poelart place, Alt said, he found the home a mass of flames and the doors locked. He found Poelart in the barn semi-conscious, with a gunshot wound in his head.

NEW DEAL ROCKS FOUNDATIONS OF NATION, HOOVER TELLS LINCOLN AUDIENCE

'STATE OF UNION' ALL CONFUSION, ASSERTS HOOVER

Finds Events Test Very Foundation of Nation.

merit as a call to class war, a red herring across the trail of failure, an implication that all opponents are defenders of evil, a claim that righteousness now has refuge alone in Washington, and an avoidance of facts and figures.

"It is not the mold of debate of Abraham Lincoln. It does not heal the wounds of the nation.

"In any event, in opposing the New Deal, you did not know you were allied with those forces of darkness. You know it now."

HIGHLIGHTS OF HOOVER SPEECH

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The New Deal has been a veritable fountain of fear.

The stock market boom today is not from confidence in the future; it is partly from fear of inflation.

The outstanding state of this Union at this hour is a state of confusion.

The unemployment of millions of men in the capital goods industries is due to fear of New Deal currency policies.

A balanced budget and a stable currency would put more men to work than the whole WPA. They need confidence, not confusion.

Did it ever occur to American wage earners that the devaluation was a cut in wages?

Having opened the channels of greed, rightly the President may be worried over the greedy.

The New Deal is optimistic that with relief under political control from Washington, its dependents can be persuaded in their vote.

The poison of politics is mixed in the bread of the helpless.

The national debt now bids fair to rise to a minimum of 35 billion dollars.

No progressive mind will feel that the constitution shall not be changed to meet the needs of changing national life.

We are deluged with inconsistencies in action and conflict in purposes. Statements, propaganda, and philosophy collide every day. Many are half truths and some are murky on the other half.

These currency and credit policies [of the New Deal] have driven men all over the nation into a scramble of buying equities to protect themselves.

TEXT OF HOOVER SPEECH

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 12.—(AP)— Following is the text of former President Hoover's address at the Lincoln birthday dinner here tonight:

PART 1.

"In less than a year our country must make a decision no less fateful than that which confronted Abraham Lincoln.

"Since the great war liberty has fallen in a score of nations. In America, where it blazed brightest and by its glow shed light to all others, it is today impaired and endangered.

"Again, 'We are . . . testing whether that nation or any nation so conceived and so dedicated can long endure?'

"When that test confronted Lincoln he carried it to the people in national debate. No greater tribute can be paid him than that we shall devote this day of his memory to that high purpose.

Denounces Mud Slinging.

"If the truth and right decisions are to be found, this discussion must be held to the mold of courtesy, good humor, hard hitting, and, above all, to the intellectual honesty which Lincoln kept in all his fateful years.

"Personalities and mud slinging never clarified a national issue.

"There lately has been a new avalanche of oratory on behalf of the 'common people,' the 'average man,' 'the economic middle class,' and the 'rank and file.' That is right. These are the people for whom America was made. They carry the burdens of America. They make its moral fiber. They are the people whose interest needs defense right now. Lincoln said the Lord must have loved them because he created so many of them. There are others who love their votes.

"The President stated a month ago that the issue before us is 'the right of the average man and woman to lead a finer, better, and happier life.'

Issue Is New Deal Methods.

"That is an objective to which we all agree. That is the ideal of Americans since it first was mentioned in the Declaration of Independence. That is not at issue. The issue is the New Deal methods and objectives which are destroying this very thing.

"The issue is the attempt to fasten upon the American people some sort of a system of personal government for a government of laws; a system of centralization under a political bureaucracy; a system of debt; a system of inflation; a system which would stifle the freedom and liberty of men. And it can be examined in the cold light of three years' experience.

"It would seem that since the Supreme court decisions we have abandoned the issue of the more abundant life. That was found to contain many roads to trouble.

PART 2.

"It is the actual state of the Union that I propose to discuss this evening.

"The outstanding state of this Union at this hour is a state of confusion. Confusion in thought, confusion in government, confusion in economic life, and confusion in ideals. Few national problems have been really solved. I have time for only a few illustrations of this bewildering muddle which jeopardizes the liberty of a great people.

"And the test of it all is whether we are moving to the 'finer, better, and happier life for the average man and woman.'

"FOUNTAIN OF FEAR"

"The President in his message on the state of the Union seems to fear that fear is prevalent in the Union. He says 'the only thing we have to fear is fear.' He finds malevolent forces creating fear. Just so.

"The New Deal has been a veritable fountain of fear. The day after the New Deal was given life at the election of 1932 began the great fear which created the bank panic of March 4. The stock boom today is not from confidence in the future; it is partly from fear of inflation.

"The unemployment of millions of men in the capital goods industries is due to fear of New Deal currency policies. It was the Supreme court decisions crashing through New Deal tyrannies which brought a gleam of confidence from the fears that had retarded recovery. The guiding spirit of the alphabet has not been love. It has been fear.

Appeal to Class Prejudice.

"The President in reporting on the state of the Union also found it alive with 'money changers,' 'seekers for selfish power,' 'dishonest speculators,' 'economic autocrats,' and 'entrenched greed.'

"However, that has points in confusing the public mind. Any judge of debate would admit it. It has merit as a call to class war, a red herring across the trail of failure, an implication that all opponents are defenders of evil, a claim that righteousness now has refuge alone in Washington, and an avoidance of facts and figures. It is not the mold of debate of Abraham Lincoln. It does not heal the wounds of the nation.

"In any event, in opposing the New Deal you did not know you were allied with those forces of darkness. You know it now.

Wickedness Is Undefended.

"No one defends such wickedness. But it happens that after three years of the New Deal the same men direct business today that were there three years ago. But what has become of the new laws designed to reform the wicked? We have seen no indictments except political oratory. That is confusing.

"You will recall that three years ago the President gave the comforting assurance that 'the money changers have fled from their high seats in the temple of our civilization.' It would appear that after three years of the New Deal they have come back again with helpers. Also I had the impression that the New Deal had taken over the business of changing the money.

"The human animal has many primitive instincts that morals, religion, and the law have not been able wholly to eradicate. He has two forms of greed—the greed for money and the greed for power. The lust for power is infinitely the worse. The greed for money can be curbed by law, but the greed for power seizes the law itself for its ends. At least the greed for money does not afflict us with fine phrases and slogans as to what is good for us.

Greed for Power Destroys.

"The abuses of liberty by greed for money are weeds which grow in the garden of productive enterprise. If government is clean it can pull them up. The abuse of liberty by the greed for power is a blight that destroys the garden itself.

"The President states 'in thirty-four months we have built up new instruments of public power. In the hands of the people's government this power is wholesome and proper.' The President concedes that in other hands it would 'provide shackles for the liberties of the people.' That is confusion of dictatorship with democracy. The very origin of this republic was in order that nobody should possess such power over the people.

"These instruments of power march to the 'finer, better, and happier life' under a banner of strange device—'planned economy.' By this time you know this glittering phrase does not mean economy in government spending. It has proved to mean politically dictated economic life. It is of many battalions.

Cites Various Plannings.

"We have seen so far planned industry, planned farming, planned government in business, planned relief, planned credit, planned currency, and planned attack on the constitution. And I might suggest two more. They are planned deficits and planned politics.

"I need recall only those first two builders of confusion, the NRA and the AAA. These two towers of Babel which the children of men built also were to reach heaven. The headlines tell us of the character of the bricks and the mortar. Must legislation. No debate. Personal government by proclamation. Ballyhoo. Codes. Factory production restricted. Competition limited. Monopolies created. Government price fixing. Increasing costs. Increased prices. Decreased consumption. Increased cost of living. Strikes. Lockouts. Boycott. Coercion. Crack down. Jail. Small business men washed out. Crops plowed under. Animals slaughtered. Housewife strikes. Consumption of food decreases. Nation imports foods. Farmers' markets given to foreigners. Economy of scarcity. Nation gets richer by producing less at higher costs.

NEW CONFUSIONS ARISE

"Their language was confounded and they were scattered by the Supreme court.

"But a new confusion arises. The spokesmen of the administration talk of the resurrection of these theories as the basis of our future economic life. The President refuses to say that they are finished. On the contrary, in his address of Jan. 3, after asserting the success of New Deal measures, he says: 'I recommend to congress that we advance, that we do not retreat.' My impression is that Napoleon used somewhat that expression when he was marching to Moscow.

"The American people have a right to have this clarified. Has the President abandoned these theories or not?

"The third battalion of confusion has been the spending, budget deficits, debts, currency, and credit. Within a month since the President's budget message it has become more confused by four or five billions more expenditures.

Debt Growth Compared.

"Those who judge progress by the size of figures will agree that great improvements have taken place in the national debt since the mechanics of civilization came to a stop on March 4, 1933. During the Hoover administration the debt increased about 1 billion 250 million dollars after allowing for recoverable loans. That is only about 10 per cent of what the new mechanics will accomplish. That increase will be about up to 14 billion dollars, less recoverable loans and plus large losses on guaranteed mortgages. The national debt now bids fair to rise to a minimum of 35 billions of dollars.

"I note in the budget message President Roosevelt said: 'The finances of the government are in better condition than at any time in the past seven years.' You may remember the uneasiness of the decimal point which I mentioned some months ago. It has moved steadily to the left.

Assails Dollar Devaluation.

"The New Deal could also report 'as a part of our fiscal policies we have set up "managed credit" under the political seizure of the federal reserve system. We have set up "managed currency" under political control of the value of the dollar. We have abandoned the gold standard. We have repudiated government obligations. We have made vast purchases of foreign silver at double the price of 1933. We are glad to say we have now enough foreign silver to plate all the spoons in the world.'

"Soon after assuming office three years ago, President Roosevelt commented upon my partial failure to persuade a Democratic congress to balance the budget. He said sternly: 'Too often in recent history liberal governments have been wrecked on the rocks of loose fiscal policies. We must avoid this danger.'

"Those rocks are now looming up out of this fog. The nation has been steered into the dangerous channels of borrowing these vast deficits from the banks, by a huge cycle of bank credit inflation. That is printing press credit. The charts of all history show this channel leads to currency inflation. Every democracy which entered these straits has been sunk.

INFLATION AT WORK

"The explosive forces of inflation already are being generated. That is easily proved. The average prices of industrial common stocks today are up to the level of 1926. But in 1926 there were no unemployed; today there are 10,000,000 unemployed. In 1926 our foreign trade was flourishing; today it is demoralized. In 1926 our budget was balanced, our currency was staple; today the budget is the worst unbalanced in history, the currency has its foundation in the will of one man.

"The average price of industrial stocks has been restored to 1926, but have the real incomes of farmers and labor been restored to 1926?

"We may well explore a little further as to what all this confusion of national finances means to the average man or woman. These currency and credit policies have driven men all over the nation into a scramble of buying equities to protect themselves. These policies have made a paradise for the speculator. He lives by shrewd anticipation in a land of confusion. Millions have been made in the stock market.

Speculators Reap Harvest.

"Millions have been made by foreign speculators in silver. At the same time millions of Americans are tramping the streets looking for work. Speculation drains employment, it does not make it. Having opened the channels of greed, rightly the President may be worried over the greedy.

"But worse than all that, out of these devaluation and inflation policies the cost of living inevitably and inexorably rises. The average man and his housewife will find these policies in every package they buy. They will find them in the decreased purchasing power of their insurance policy and their savings.

"Did it ever occur to American wage earners that the devaluation was a cut in wages? Some European statesmen were frank enough to say it when they did it.

Future Generation Must Pay.

"And on top of that somebody has to pay for this spending. Both we and our children will pay for these follies of our generation even if our liberal government escapes wreck upon the rocks of these loose fiscal policies. Does that point the average man to a 'finer, better, happier life'?

"The American people have a right to know, and to know now, what steps the President proposes to clean up this budget and money confusion. Unless this confusion can be quickly dissolved it will lead to one of the great tragedies of all humanity—inflation.

"The fourth battalion of confusion is the administration of relief. Under that guise great sociological experiments have been undertaken. The government has gone into private business on a huge scale. These enterprises have created a million confusions and fears. Relief run from Washington and not from home has resulted in billions of waste spread over every town and county.

Politics Well Planned.

"It has impaired self-reliance and morals both in individuals and in local government. The poison of politics is mixed in the bread of the helpless. The New Deal is optimistic that with relief under political control from Washington, its dependents can be persuaded in their vote. But the ballot box is secret and the conscience of the average American man and women may not be confused.

"The New Deal is not confused in politics. National planning has been a success in that field. But it is a moral confusion of every ideal of American government.

"For fifty years it has been an aspiration of America that our government officials should be removed from the political spoils system. The selection by merit through the civil service commission was not alone to gain efficiency in government. Its purposes was to raise the morals of public life. It was to make impossible the bribetaker, the invisible government of the greedy, and the corruption of elections. Since 1880 every President has steadily builded that service.

CIVIL SERVICE FADES

"Let us examine the record. The Coolidge officials under the civil service were about 75 per cent. The Hoover increase was to over 81 per cent. The Roosevelt decrease has been to 57 per cent. This is exhibit A of New Deal idealism.

"All this sometimes reminds me of the small girl who said, 'Mother, you know that beautiful jug that you said had been handed down to us from generation to generation?' Mother replied, 'Yes, Ann, what of it?' and Ann answered solemnly, 'This generation dropped it.'

"But we may explore that still further. During the Hoover administration, despite the many emergency agencies needed to meet the depression, the total number of federal officials was decreased by 10,000. But under the New Deal, part or full-time political officials have been increased by over 335,000. In his Jackson day speech the President urged committees of one to support the New Deal in the campaign. He had a good start with 335,000 committees—and their wives.

Average Man Carries the Load.

"But the average man who does not get his feet into the trough has to carry these officials on his back.

"We have started upon the road of business recovery. That began instantly upon the restoration of some degree of confidence by the Supreme court. But it is a confused recovery.

"We still have 20,000,000 people on relief after three years. Our durable goods industries lag behind. That is where the bulk of the 20,000,000 on relief comes from.

"Our construction industries depend upon long-term confidence. But long-term confidence is weak. By a confused currency, men do not have confidence in what $100 may buy five years hence.

Confidence Is Needed.

"Moreover, real and permanent recovery will not take place so long as every business man must make a blind bet on these concussions in Washington.

"A balanced budget and a stable currency would put more men to work than the whole WPA. They need confidence, not confusion.

"These gigantic plans of dictated economy were undertaken without searching inquiry as to fact or experience. They were undertaken without even shaping on the anvil of debate. They were undertaken in disregard of the constitution. They have been without adequate administrative checks and balances. They have been administered by political appointees of inadequate executive experience. Despite this horde of officials there is now disintegration and confusion in the halls of government.

The New York Times, a supporter of the administration, is the authority for the statement showing that the resettlement administration employs 12,089 federal officials, that it is giving relief to 5,012 persons or families, that it costs $1,750,000 a month for the officials, and $800,000 a month for the relief. If that is true, each family head had $350 worth of federal officials devoted to him each month to see that he got $80! He must be having a strenuous time keeping these officials busy.

"We are deluged with inconsistencies in action and conflict in purposes. Statements, propaganda, and philosophy collide every day. Many are half truths and some are murky on that other half.

PART 3.

"President Roosevelt has called upon the shades of his favorite past Presidents to enliven the effervescence of righteousness which bubbles through intoxicating waters of the finer life. He has at times recalled Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln, and Theodore Roosevelt to justify this state of the Union. I have not noticed any call upon the shade of Grover Cleveland.

FOREFATHERS QUOTED

"To clear up some confusion as to their views I may also summon the shades of these favorite Presidents upon the same subjects.

"First, Thomas Jefferson, who said, 'Were we directed from Washington when to sow and when to reap, we should soon want bread.' Apparently this was forgotten when they created the AAA.

"Jefferson also said, '. . . the principle of spending money to be paid by posterity, under the name of funding, is but swindling futurity on a large scale.' That would seem even truer to the children of this generation.

"President Jackson said, 'All history tells us that a free people should be watchful of delegated power.' He did not know what it was to watch perpetual motion in delegated powers.

"Jackson also believed in 'To the victor belong the spoils.' He was contented by appointing 2,600 of his followers to office. After all, he had a moderate spirit.

"Theodore Roosevelt said, 'If a change in currency were so enacted as to amount to dishonesty—that is, repudiation of debts—it would be very bad morally.'

"This quotation was not sent to congress with New Deal currency bills.

"Robs Laborer of His Bread."

"And may I add one quotation from Daniel Webster, who says: 'He who tampers with the currency robs labor of its bread. He panders indeed to greedy capital which is keen sighted and may shift for itself, but he beggars labor, which is unsuspecting and too busy with the present to calculate the future. The prosperity of the working people lives, moves, and has its being in established credit and steady medium of payment.'

"Theodore Roosevelt also made many remarks upon the civil service. For instance: 'No question of internal administration is so important . . . as . . . civil service reform, because the spoils system . . . has been for seventy years the most potent of all the forces tending to bring about the degradation of our politics.' That is not often quoted out loud.

T. R. Rags Broken Pledges.

"Theodore Roosevelt further said: 'A broken promise is bad enough in private life. It is worse in the field of politics. No man is worth his salt in public life who makes on the stump a pledge which he does not keep after election. . . .'

"There is more to that quotation, but I omit it lest it would create hard feelings.

"The President quotes Josiah Royce. Perhaps he overlooked this remark from that philosopher: 'The present tendency to the centralization of power in our national government seems to me, then, a distinct danger. It is a substitution of power for loyalty.'

"Just a quotation or two from Lincoln. He asked that President Polk answer certain questions, and said: 'Let him answer fully, fairly, and candidly. Let him answer with facts and not with arguments. Let him remember that he sits where Washington sat, and so remembering, let him answer as Washington would answer.'

"That shows they used to treat Presidents less gently than we do.

PHILOSOPHIES CLASH

"Beyond all this there are more somber confusions. The ideals of liberty have been confused.

"Behind all this is the great and fundamental conflict which has brought infinite confusion to the nation. That is the conflict between a philosophy of orderly individual liberty and a philosophy of government dictation.

"Ten of the assaults upon liberty already have cracked against the constitution of the United States. And has there been public outcry at their loss? There has been a lift to the soul of the nation. Millions of average men and women have given thanks to the Almighty that the forethought of great Americans has saved for them freedom itself.

Foundation in Spirit.

"But the court cannot deal with all the assaults upon the spirit of American liberty. It was the spirit of liberty which made our American civilization. That spirit made the constitution. If that spirit is gone the constitution is gone, even though its words remain. The undermining of local government by centralization at Washington, the spoils system, the reduction of congress to a rubber stamp, these monetary policies—what of these?

"The President implies he will not retreat, despite the decisions of the court. We have heard mutterings that the constitution must be changed, that it is outmoded, that it was useful only in the horse and buggy days. There was sinister invitation to congress to 'find means to protect its own prerogative.'

"No progressive mind will feel that the constitution shall not be changed to meet the needs of changing national life.

People Have Right to Know.

"But what is the change these men harbor in their minds? The American people have a right to know. They have the right to know it now.

"Whatever that change may be, it must be clear of those confusions which impair the great safeguards of human liberty. There must never be confusion in the bill of rights, the balance of powers, local government, and a government of laws, not of men.

"Do you conclude that the state of the Union is one of confusion? Is this in the interest of the average man and woman?

"Does this advance our children toward a 'finer, better and happier life?'

"A great American once said in application to another crisis: 'We have, as all will agree, a free government, where every man has the right to be equal with every other man. In this great struggle, this form of government and every form of human right is endangered if our enemies succeed. There is more involved in this contest than is realized by every one. There is involved in this struggle the question whether your children and my children shall enjoy the privileges we have enjoyed.' That was Abraham Lincoln."

HOOVER, TOO, DOES A LITTLE QUOTING OF FORMER PRESIDENTS

Portland, Ore., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Herbert Hoover said tonight, although the New Deal has "at times recalled Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln, and Theodore Roosevelt to justify" the state of the Union "I have not noticed any call upon the shades of Grover Cleveland."

"Thomas Jefferson said 'were we directed from Washington when to sow and when to reap, we should soon want bread,'" Hoover quoted at a Lincoln day dinner.

"Apparently this was forgotten when they created the AAA," Hoover added.

"Theodore Roosevelt said 'if a change in currency were so enacted as to amount to dishonesty, that is repudiation of debts, it would be very bad morally.'

"This quotation was not sent to congress with New Deal currency bills."

"Lincoln . . . asked that President Polk answer certain questions and said 'let him answer fully, fairly and candidly. . . . Let him remember he sits where Washington sat, . . . let him answer as Washington would answer.'

"That shows they used to treat presidents less gently than we do."

NEW DEAL'S POLICIES RECALL BROKEN JUG ANECDOTE TO HOOVER

Portland, Ore., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Asserted New Deal practices in reducing the number of government officials under civil service reminded Herbert Hoover tonight of an anecdote about a little girl and a rare jug.

In his address here, he told how the child asked her mother:

"'You know that beautiful jug that you said had been handed down from generation to generation?'

"Mother replied 'yes, Ann, what of it?'

STEAL TRUCK AND LIQUOR CARGO.

● It tastes so good, and it gets you off to sleep in a hurry . . . this Bowman "Nightcap" described at the right! You can make it in a jiffy, too, before you go to bed.

The soothing effect of warm milk, of course, is an established fact. Physicians highly recommend it for folks who work at high tension all day and have a hard time getting to sleep at night. And for people who are wakeful in the middle of the night. This warm, easily-digested nourishment eliminates middle-of-the-night hunger which is a common cause of sleeplessness.

Try this nightcap tonight, and you'll be enthusiastic. Make it with Bowman's Grade "A" Milk of Superior Flavor . . . the regular, or the Irradiated which gives you the added nutritional benefits of Vitamin D.

HOW TO MAKE THE BOWMAN "NIGHTCAP"

Put one teaspoonful of sugar and several drops of vanilla in a glass. Fill the glass with Bowman's Grade "A" Milk of Superior Flavor, warmed but not boiled. Top with nutmeg if desired.

SEN. VANDENBERG WARS ON 'THIRD PARTY' IN POWER

Welcomes Co-operation by Real Jeffersonians.

New York, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Picturing the forces of recovery as straining at a leash held by the New Deal, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, in a speech tonight urged an allied campaign against what he called the "third party" now in power.

The Michigan Republican, a potential candidate for his party's presidential nomination, took cheer from the anti-New Deal speech of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and said he welcomed "Jeffersonian coöperation."

"Not only in the battle line," he added, "but subsequently in the council chamber after next November's victory is won."

Senator Vandenberg followed former President Herbert Hoover, on a radio hook-up from the opposite end of the country. Their words were broadcast to approximately 3,000 Lincoln day diners.

Hits "Eager Burocrats."

Terming the present year "one of the great epochs in constitutional democracy," Vandenberg alternated between sarcastic references to "eager burocrats" and his suggestions for reform.

Quoting the precepts of Lincoln, he said:

"Let us turn this government back into the channel in which the framers of the constitution originally placed it."

As specific steps in this direction he listed the following:

Elimination of the unemployment problem by giving private business a chance.

A balanced budget.

A stable currency.

Proper tarif protection for American products.

A two-price system [foreign and domestic] for agriculture.

Hits Roosevelt Ruthlessness.

Senator Vanderberg, who spoke at a dinner of the National Republican club, prefaced his remarks with an allusion to President Roosevelt as an executive who "has frankly expressed his contemptuous wish that no constitutional scruple, however persuasive, should interrupt his program."

Asserting the President maintains "high ministers of state who frankly pine for a revolutionary order," he declared:

"This is not the republic! It is government by executive degree! In Europe it would be called an uglier name."

Urging the Republican party to "rise above itself and address all citizens who love their institutions," Vandenberg said:

"What could be of greater cheer than the forthright courage with which many distinguished Jeffersonian Democrats unhesitatingly declare this challenge? This is no more their régime than it is ours.

1932 Platform Mangled.

"Their 1932 platform is as dead as NRA—not only dead, but mangled beyond all possibility of recognition—high promises which, when contrasted with subsequent performance, are the modern paraphrase of Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde-Park."

He then pointed to former Gov. Smith as a Democrat who "manfully declines to wear 'the mantle of hypocrisy.'"

"Talk about this year's possibility of a 'third party,'" he continued. "We already have a 'third party.' Nobody voted for it. Nobody asked for it. Nobody knew it was on the way. But it is here—in power. Against it, and not against traditional Democracy, we aim our crusade."

Inspired with the impulses that moved Lincoln, whom he called "the greatest liberal of his time," Vandenberg said "We cannot fail to restore the republic."

Takes up G.O.P. Program.

Taking up the program which he said the Republicans must include in their platform this year, Vandenberg said:

"The first responsibility is to provide employment and necessary subsistence pending its achievement. This cannot be done by primary reliance on public works financed from an empty public treasury.

"When it finally is done, it will have been by reliance on private industry and private trade released to recuperated economic health in the standard American fashion."

Declaring all business needs is "credit—and a chance," Senator Vandenberg said a mere "breathing spell" was not enough.

"The phrase itself confesses that the process heretofore has been one of artificial respiration," he continued. "It candidly prophesies that we soon are to be returned to the oxygen tent where life is licensed, and survival is a matter of benevolent rations."

Vandenberg said he followed the President in his original emergency program, he said, "but I could not follow him—then or now—when he creates more emergencies than he cures."

"I do not quarrel with recourse to expedients in an emergency," he went on, "but I do quarrel with reform which retards recovery—and particularly with objectionable reform which uses depression as an excuse to handle us like experimental guinea pigs.

Dollar at Mercy of Whim.

"We are now ready for restoratives rather than narcotics. Business is better because the inevitable cycle has long since reached the upswing. The forces of recovery are straining at the leash. They beg for a chance—and the best welfare of ten million unemployed join the prayer."

Speaking of currency, he said: "We have flung the dollar to a lottery at the mercy of executive whim. As swiftly as practicable we must again stabilize our money and restore the 'yardstick' of dependability."

And of tarifs:

"You can desert tarif protection if you please; but when you do, you deliver this nation to an alien invasion which is deadlier at the custom house than at the immigration port."

The answer to the agriculture problem, he said, "must escape the present contradiction which creates new reclamation areas while it retires existing farms; which retires domestic farms while admitting vast products from foreign farms; and which produces less food in the face of more hunger."

Farmer's Wife as Speaker Sees New U.S. Slavery Ahead

New York, Feb. 12.—(AP)—A Missouri farm woman told the National Republican club tonight that Abraham Lincoln abolished one form of slavery but "slavery can never end while there are left in high places those who would willingly undermine our constitutional rights."

Mrs. George B. Simmons, farmer's wife and magazine writer of Marshall, Mo., spoke at the annual Lincoln day dinner—the first woman ever to appear on the speakers' platform of the club in its 50 year history.

"Pork Barrels Slop Over."

"Slavery did not end with the emancipation proclamation," Mrs. Simmons declared. "Only one form of it, in one nation, was affected by that.

"Slavery can never end as long as there are political pork barrels slopping over with the gravy of graft, as long as there are governmental squandering and waste that pile up debts and make us nothing better than tax slaves who can hope for little more than to be dogged and driven to final destitution.

"Slavery can never end as long as citizens supposed to be free are hounded and investigated and discredited and coerced by a bunch of meddlesome Mattie appointees for whom we never had a chance to vote, and of whom most of us never even heard before the 1932 platform of the Democratic party was used for communistic kindling wood and these were invited in to warm their avaricious hands.

"Slavery can never end while there are left in high places in our land those who would willingly undermine our constitutional right and, by deceitful propaganda, filch from us our heritage of freedom."

"Need to Be Let Alone."

Mrs. Simmons declared farmers "need only lower taxes and lower interest rates from private lenders and to be let alone, unhindered, to run our farms as we know best."

She referred to the AAA processing taxes as "killing taxes" upon the food and clothing of the poor and spoke of new efforts to finance the farm program as likely to increase taxes "to pay our own tickets of admission into further bondage."

"I wonder," she asked, "when everybody and every group must look to the government for pensions and subsidies, what will become of us all?"

ROOSEVELT INDICATES HE'LL FISH AGAIN OFF FLORIDA THIS SPRING

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—(AP)—President Roosevelt indicated today to Gov. David Sholtz of Florida that he would make his annual trip this spring to fish in southern waters off the Florida coast.

The Florida governor personally invited the President to visit the state as he has in the past.

He said the President indicated a desire to journey south. It is believed likely Mr. Roosevelt will make the trip late in March.

SEEK TO REACH KIDNAPERS OF YANK IN MEXICO

GUADALAJARA, Mexico, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Immediate efforts to establish contact with the bandit kidnapers of Samuel C. Faneuf, American mining official, were planned tonight.

Paul Avery, business associate of Faneuf, who also was kidnaped Monday and released yesterday to arrange for ranson, said he would leave either tonight or tomorrow to negotiate personally with the bandits.

A federal cavalry detachment is following the bandits, but is not attempting to effect a capture, pending the outcome of negotiations. The amount of the ransom demanded is still undisclosed.

SUPREME COURT IS DEFENDED BY SEN. DICKINSON

Only Remaining Guardian of Liberty, Says Iowan.

Greensboro, N. C., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Senator Dickinson [Rep., Ia.] asserted here tonight in a Lincoln day address that the next election would be a "test of the very foundations of democracy itself."

Speaking before a dinner under the joint auspices of the Young Republican club of North Carolina and the Republican state committee, Dickinson inveighed against what he said was the New Deal's "planned economy" and its "attempted bribery of the states" through the invalidated AAA and its proposed substitute, the soil conservation measure.

Dickinson spoke also in favor of the Supreme court in its invalidation of New Deal legislation, saying it had preserved the constitution in the face of "nonchalant disregard" of it by congress and the executive.

Entire Burden on Court.

Such disregard, Dickinson said, has placed upon the Supreme court "not only the entire burden of enforcement for the constitution, but what is even more important, of observing the spirit that underlies it."

One of the vital issues of the November campaign, he added, "will be, who is to fill possible vacancies upon the Supreme court. Already the President has called into conference chairmen of the judiciary committees of the house and senate, looking to drafting legislation which will curb the authority of the lower federal courts. What a bitter jest to liberty and to the American system of balanced government should the future of those very liberties and the constitution itself now depend upon the tenuous life-thread of perhaps a single judge."

Blunders Not the Court's.

What the public must be made to understand, Dickinson contended, is that the Supreme court is not to blame "for the blunders and errors made during the last three years in the search for cure-alls or short cuts to recovery."

The Senator listed various pieces of New Deal legislation, stressing the belief it had brought about a centralization of government, and added:

"There is only one question to be decided next November. Brush aside all the special pleading of those who merely seek to preserve their places on the public pay roll. Disregard the appeals to emotion or the incitations to class hatred based on envy and greed.

"Forget even the record of broken party promises, the dissipation of the nation's resources, or the capture by the New Deal Socialists of the Democratic party organization. The issue burns down to this:

"What form of government do we wish to hand on to our children? Are we willing to trade liberty for an alleged economic security underwritten by the federal government? Are we ready to exchange that self-reliance . . . for dependence upon burocratic direction for all the important activities of life?"

Dickinson referred to a recent address of Senator Robinson, senate Democratic leader, who replied to the Liberty league dinner blast upon the New Deal by Alfred E. Smith.

Pay Rollers Pursue Easy Way.

Saying that there are some who "put party above the national interest," Dickinson contended:

"Themselves securely attached to the public pay roll, they wish to avoid disturbance and pursue their easy going way. They have almost a childish faith that liberty is some God-given blessing, not a heritage fought for and won through centuries of struggle. Our national security has been so unassailable from without that they cannot conceive of enemies within.

"When brave and courageous men of their own party rise to point out that the constitution itself is in peril, these smug Pharisees are horrified and speak sorrowfully of the 'hand of Esau.' The genuine patriotism of such utterances is dismissed as if it were some form of mere personal disloyalty.

Robinson "Sold Down the River."

"Even Joe Robinson couldn't see the paradox of his own situation: That he, a true Jeffersonian Democrat, was merely a captive chieftain to the conqueror's chariot and that the 'New Deal' had sold him down the river."

Dickinson said of the New Deal program that "no administration ever had more whole-hearted support for a program—even after that program had been demonstrated to be impractical and unsound."

"Now," he continued, "the very ease with which those extraordinary powers were granted proved the New Deal's undoing. The 'brain trust' misread the mind of the American people. . . . Presently it became apparent that measures in the guise of reform, which had been aimed at correcting many deep seated abuses, were being used merely as a cloak to conceal the transformation of our economic system into some hodgepodge scheme of Tugwell collectivism.

"At that point the American people rebelled. They have been on the warpath ever since."

150 CHICKENS STOLEN.

Thieves early yesterday broke into the poultry store at 2411 West 47th street and stole 150 live chickens and two cases of eggs.

SEEK DECISION BY TUGWELL ON COLUMBIA POST

New York, Feb. 12.—[Special.]—With deadline for formal makeup of the course scheduled for the next school year at hand, Columbia university officials were uncertain today whether Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell, storm center of the Roosevelt administration, would remain as a government official or return to the university faculty.

A direct query to Dr. Tugwell within the last few weeks by President Nicholas Murray Butler as to his intentions has been met with nothing but a mere acknowledgement, according to Frank D. Fackenthal, secretary of the university.

"We have had no definite indication of his plans," said Mr. Flackenthal. "Perhaps we shall find out from the newspapers."

Dr. Tugwell already has been granted two formal leaves of absence, his present one expiring June 30, and members of the university administration are becoming "testy" and want him to return, it was stated by an important university officer.

MANHOLE COVER BLOWN OFF.

An explosion of undetermined origin yesterday blew a manhole cover at the northeast corner of 63d street and South Park avenue 25 feet into the air and caused it to strike the South Park elevated station of the Chicago Rapid Transit lines.

8 JAPS KILLED IN BORDER BATTLE WITH MONGOLS

Bloodiest Clash in Row with Soviet.

TOKIO, Feb. 13 [Thursday].—(AP)—Japanese general headquarters at Hsinking, Manchukuo, announced today that one Japanese officer and seven Japanese soldiers were killed in the bloodiest battle of the year-long Russo-Japanese friction on the border between Manchukuo and Outer Mongolia. One Japanese officer and three soldiers were wounded.

The Domei [Japanese] News agency said the general headquarters announcement stated that the Mongols apparently suffered many casualties in the conflict Wednesday, in which a Japanese-Manchukuan column recaptured the town of Olahudka, southwest of Manchuli near Lake Bor.

Claim Soviet Planes Used.

The Outer Mongolians were said to number at least 250 and to have been armed with two cannon and many machine guns. It was reported they retreated into Mongolian territory after several hours of heavy fighting at Olahudka, which is claimed by both Manchukuo and Outer Mongolia.

The newspaper Asahi reported that two soviet airplanes flew over Manchukuan territory during the battle and bombed the Japanese and Manchukan soldiers, but that there were no casualties from this attack.

The Communique and other accounts, however, did not mention participation of planes in the fighting.

Capture Cannon.

The Japanese and Manchukuans were reported in the communique to have captured one cannon and one machine gun and other Mongol arms.

Maj. Sugimoto commanded the Japanese-Manchukuan forces, the strength of which was not stated. The Japanese apparently bore the brunt of the fighting, as it was announced that the Manchukuan losses were only seven wounded.

Dispatches from Manchukuo have reported a rapid succession of border conflicts and have stated that tension has increased with the demand of Japanese and Manchukuan militarists for military action on a larger scale against Mongolia and soviet Russia.

All indications, however, were that leaders of the Tokio government, and even some militarists, were anxious to localize the incidents to prevent a more serious situation arising.

PLAN NO ACTION IN KIDNAPING OF ILLINOIS MAN

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Police said tonight they contemplated no action in the case of Harold Erickson, 33, of Bloomington, Ill., who told them he was kidnaped in Bloomington by two men and a woman who forced him to drive here, where he was slugged and robbed.

HAROLD ERICKSON.

Found wandering in a street here, Erickson said a man pushed a pistol into his ribs last night in Bloomington and forced him to drive to the south limits of Chicago. A man and woman joined the gunman there.

Erickson said they made him drive here, where he was robbed of $50 and slugged before being released. The windshield of his car, abandoned where he was found, was broken.

NO VALENTINES FOR CANARIES—IT'S TOO COLD!

Mr. and Mrs. Canary are sending few Valentines to each other this year. It's all because of an inordinate aloofness caused by the subzero weather, breeders of the Great Chicago Bird club reported last night at a meeting in the Hotel Sherman.

Theoretically, according to H. J. Morley, secretary of the club, the mating season for "show" or "blue blood" canaries usually opens two weeks prior to St. Valentine's day, but this year, he says, "we can't make the canaries believe the calendar because of the cold weather."

During the mating season, the breeders said, canaries must be kept at an even temperature of 70 degrees day and night, but recent unpredictable swervings of the thermometer have disrupted the maintenance of an even temperature.

"If it goes up to 80, they start moulting, and if it gets down to 55 they get pneumonia," said Fred E. Daw, vice president. "And if they do mate and the eggs hatch the babies are too cold to open their mouths for food."

Coast Defense in Bad Way, House Hears; Urged to Build

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—The house was startled today when informed by Representative Tilman B. Parks [Dem., Fla.], chairman of the committee on war department appropriations, that the seacoast defenses of the nation had deteriorated to "an alarming and disturbing condition."

So serious is the situation, Parks said, that the war department has drawn a veil of secrecy around actual conditions and his committee, which was informed of the true state of the national defense on the Pacific coast, in Hawaii, and the Panama canal, was bound not to discuss details.

Parks took the floor to address the house during debate on the 543 million dollar war department appropriation bill which the house is expected to pass this week and send to the senate. The bill calls for a record peace time appropriation.

Time and Money Needed.

"Since the world war," he declared, "we have disproportionately provided for our seacoast defense—a most essential and very important element of a coördinate national defense. The result is—and I might as well be frank about it—that a very disturbing situation exists which will take a lot of money and a lot of time to remedy.

"I cannot publicly acquaint you with the details. There is no phase of our national defense the status of which is, or the plans as to which are kept more secret. It is for that reason that you will find precious little in the printed hearings on the subject. The committee has been acquanted will all the details, however, and you are entitled to know that we found conditions most alarming."

With anti-American sentiment in Japan being raised to new heights by such speeches in the senate as that made by Senator Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.] several days ago, the revelation made by Chairman Parks disturbed the congressmen. Parks' remarks were directed specifically at our lack of defense on the west coast, Hawaii, and the Panama canal.

Quotes Army Officer.

Parks quoted Brig. Gen. Stanley D. Embick, assistant chief of staf in charge of the war plans division to the effect that "coast fortifications are essential to protect our important coastal cities and naval bases against capture or damage by enemy warships, to prevent their use as bases of operations by an invading force and thus to free our mobile land and seas forces for the performance of their true functions."

"The deficiencies are not in the nature of things that can be quickly provided," Parks asserted, "and if there is one place we need the material right on the ground and ready for use in the event of an emergency, it is at the water's edge. That is one front line that must be maintained at all hazards."

The bill before the house appropriates $3,150,973 for Pacific coast harbors defense, $3,379,511 for insular defenses, of which $3,141,780 must be used in Hawaii, and $1,223,892 for the Panama canal.

Millions Needed.

But for the completion of fortifications in these three areas, a total of more than $31,000,000 is needed, Parks said. A total of $15,600,000 is needed for Pacific coast harbor defenses only, he declared.

Parks' remarks were given emphasis because he recently led a subcommittee on a personal survey of sea coast defenses and obviously had been amazed at the conditions he found.

A warm debate involved the appropriations in the bill for the army's air corps. Disputing the claim of Representative John J. McSwain [Dem., S. C.], chairman of the committee on military affairs, that the United States would have an army air force of 4,000 planes by 1938, Representative William N. Rogers [Dem., N. H.] of the same committee, asserted:

"During hearings I questioned Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war, about our air force. As of last December, according to his statement, we had 1,062 planes, of which only 200 were of the most modern type. And on next July 1, we will have only 777 modern planes, according to his figures. Under present appropriations, the army air corps can never reach the 4,000 plane strength which is far under the air strength of foreign nations."

Parks criticized the personnel of the air corps, asserting there were too many men beyond the flying age still holding jobs as pilots. Every army air pilot should be grounded at the age of 30 years, he recommended.

"Flying a plane and fighting a plane are two entirely different propositions," he commented. "The latter requires daring, reckless abandon, the dardeviltry of youth. God knows, it is no calling for a married man with a wife and children on the ground."

CROAT TRIO GET LIFE FOR PART IN KILLING SERB KING

3 Others Sentenced in Absentia to Die.

AIX-EN-PROVENCE, France, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Three Croats, members of the Ustasha secret society, were found guilty of complicity in the assassination of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia today and sentenced to life imprisonment in the French Guiana prison colony.

Three other members of the alleged band of terrorists, held responsible for the shootings at Marseilles in October, 1934, also were convicted and sentenced to death, although they have never been apprehended.

The jury which deliberated only a short time found extenuating circumstances in the cases of Mio Kraj, Vronimir Pospisil, and Ivan Ratich and recommended life imprisonment.

3 Sentenced to Death.

The men who received death sentences, although they would be entitled to a new trial if arrested, are Dr. Ante Pavelich, reputed head of the Ustasha; Eugene Kvaternik, Pavelich's assistant, and Gustave Perchetz.

The prisoners smiled as the red robed judges announced their sentences. Pospisil, as he was being led back to his cell, shouted defiantly:

"Vive Pavelich! Long live Croatia."

The end of the second trial came before a courtroom crowded to capacity with spectators. Wild scenes during the first hearing of the case had resulted in strict orders from the court to prevent disturbances, particularly since George Desbons, defense counsel at the first trial, had been disbarred after he declared the French government did not want to go to the bottom of the case.

Deny Participation.

The alleged terrorists all denied actual participation in the assassination in which the Jugo-Slavian monarch, Louis Barthou, French foreign minister, and two bystanders died.

The king's assassination came shortly after he had disembarked from a liner at Marseilles on a good will journey to France.

Testimony at the trial suggested French police were to blame for the assassination for not guarding the king closely, but officials denied this assertion.

Much of the defense fund for the Croats was raised in the United States, with a large part coming from sympathizers in Pittsburgh.

YEAR EXTENSION FOR NEUTRALITY ACT IS PROGRAM

Resolution Approved by Senate Committee.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—The senate foreign relations committee today unanimously reported out a resolution extending for one year the existing temporary neutrality act, with an amendment prohibiting loans and credits to belligerents.

The action of the committee apparently brought to an end all proposals for permanent neutrality legislation at this session, including the administration's compromise bill and the drastic measure proposed by the Nye munitions' committee, which would restrict all exports to "normal quotas" and even then require belligerents to come and get their own supplies.

Hopes to Force Action.

Senator Bennett C. Clark [Dem., Mo.], a member of the munitions committee, said he would have to extend the existing temporary act for 60 or 90 days only and attempt to force congress to pass permanent legislation at this session. Representative Maury Maverick [Dem., Tex.] announced that he would pursue a similar course in the house, but leaders of both bodies declared that no such plan would succeed.

"This is a rotten, cowardly retreat. The American people have been double-crossed," Maverick declared.

Senator Hiram Johnson [Rad., Cal.], one of the senate isolationists who combatted the proposal to surrender the traditional American principle of "freedom of the seas," declared that the action of the foreign relations committee had probably "saved this country from a tragic mistake."

"The so-called neutrality bill so enthusiastically urged by many good but mistaken people, and by some who are neither good nor mistaken, would much more likely have involved us in war than kept us out of it," Johnson said.

Besides the amendment prohibiting loans and credits to belligerents, the committee added one specifically exempting American republics from the provisions of the act, in keeping with the Monroe doctrin.

With the amendments, the neutrality act, if extended will:

1. Make it mandatory upon the President to apply an embargo upon the shipment of arms, ammunition and munitions of war to belligerents after the outbreak of war, and to other belligerents as they come in.

2. Prohibit the sale of bonds, notes and other securities of belligerent countries in the United States, or the purchase of such securities in the United States; and prohibit the making of loans or extension of credits to belligerents, except ordinary commercial credits and short term obligations.

U. S. as Base Barred.

3. Prohibit American vessels from carrying arms, ammunition and implements of war to belligerents or for trans-shipment for use by belligerents.

4. Prohibit the use of the United States as a base for supplying belligerent ships with arms, ammunition or implements of war.

5. Restrict the use of United States ports by belligerent submarines.

6. Authorize the President to warn American citizens that they travel on belligerent ships at their own risk.

After the senate committee had acted, Representative Frank L. Klobe [Dem., O.] introduced a similar resolution in the house and it will be taken up by the foreign affairs committee tomorrow.

FRANCE PINS A MEDAL ON CAROL; SHIFTS NEXT WAR

Rumania to Give Red Army Access to Nazis.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 12.—This is the story of how a medal, pinned on a certain kindly breast at the psychological moment, contributed to revolutionize the diplomatic lineup of a continent and displaced by hundreds of miles the battlefield of the next war.

The king's brest in question is that of King Carol of Rumania, and the medal is the treasured French medaille militaire. This is rarely awarded to officers, and then only for extraordinary feats of heroism on the battlefield. Nonetheless it was given to King Carol a few days ago to the astonished indignation of conservative French military circles.

Flandin's Announcement.

The award was duly announced in the papers here. It will also be duly announced tomorrow that Pierre-Etienne Flandin, French foreign minister, revealed to a secret meeting of the foreign affairs committee of the chamber of deputies today that ratification of the Franco-soviet mutual aid pact now being debated would lighten France's obligations in central Europe. Ratification of the parallel Czechoslovak-soviet mutual assistance pact, Flandin explained is conditional on the vote of the French chamber of deputies.

And if the Czech pact is ratified, the foreign minister added, Rumania, despite her unsettled dispute over Bessarabia, will also conclude a mutual assistance pact with Russia. One of the stipulations of this pact, it is understood, will be that the Red army shall have passage across Rumanian territory if, in order to fulfil her obligations toward Czechoslovakia, she must come to that country's aid. Thus the Red army will henceforth bear with France an equal share, if not a greater share, in protecting Czechoslovakia against German invasion.

Importance of Development.

The importance of this new development lies in the fact that Rumania and Czechoslovakia are close allies, and if Russia becomes Czechoslovakia's ally, normally she should become Rumania's. That, however, has not been the situation, and the closing of this vital gap in the military chain around Germany has been precisely one of the major aims of French diplomacy.

In recent months it began to look as if the result would never be achieved. German propaganda, backed by huge cash bribes, had seriously undermined Rumania's loyalty to the French camp. And even if Rumania established close diplomatic and military relations with Russia, it is understandable that the Rumanians would feel considerable repugnance to opening up their country to friendly occupation by the Red army—sending the Rumanian army to Russia's aid would be much less dangerous from the Rumanian point of view.

The Situation Changes.

That was the situation when King Carol arrived in Paris a few days ago. If the report of Flandin's statement before the chamber of deputies committee can be trusted, it has since completely changed.

Doubtless the medal alone did not do the trick—there was a little question about a commercial and financial deal with Rumania, to say nothing of the purely diplomatic advantages. It is perhaps unfair to King Carol to suggest that having a medal pinned on his breast could have made him approve a policy thought detrimental to his country's interests.

But the fact remains that for one reason or another the Rumanian policy has changed since his arrival. And King Carol certainly did appreciate that medal. With his friends he eluded his bodyguards and slipped up to the Montmartre to celebrate his decoration.

Bathes Feet in Lake.

The sleuths did not catch up with him until dawn, when they found him, so the rumor goes, bathing his feet in a lake in the Bois de Boulogne. Rumors also say that his red haired, Jewish paramour, Mme. Magda Lupescu, gave him a royal bawling out for his escapade when he got home to the Castle Belleme, but that is another story.

Whatever caused King Carol to change his mind, it now appears that ratification of the Franco-soviet pact will automatically open a path through central Europe for the Red army to the German frontier and at the same time menace Germany with a dangerous flank attack if she or Poland moves against Russia.

Germany has no frontier with Russia, and it is not impossible that a decisive battle between the Red and brown armies will be fought somewhere in central Europe when war comes.

Explains Nazi Attack on Pact.

This obviously will be a serious setback to German dreams of carving out a great empire in southeastern Europe and explains why the German press has been trying to intimidate France in abandoning the pact with Russia by threatening to use it as a pretext for rearming in the Rhineland.

This threat, which is seriously worrying the French deputies, was discussed at length by Flandin today, but this part of the hearing was kept secret except for the statement that Flandin produced various unpublished diplomatic notes to prove that the Franco-soviet pact does not constitute a violation of the Locarno pact.

The real battle in the chamber of deputies over the Franco-soviet pact is expected to come tomorrow or Friday when Jacques Doriot, former communist leader who has turned Fascist, intends to give allegedly sensational revelations of soviet propaganda in France.

"My husband just tells me to follow him, and I do." Frau Dyhrenfurth's record was made when she climbed a Himalayan peak with her husband, Dr. Gunter Dyhrenfurth, noted geologist, in 1934.

Ethiopia Protests French Ban on Arms Shipments

PARIS, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Ethiopia protested today against a French refusal to permit shipments of arms over the Djibouti-Addis Ababa railway. Wolde Marian, Ethiopian minister to Paris, told Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin that this is in violation of the treaty under which the road was built.

BRITAIN TO KEEP ALL COLONIES, COMMONS TOLD

Proposals for Sharing of Land Smashed.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Great Britain is not going to hand over any colonies or mandates to other countries, James H. Thomas, colonial secretary, assured parliament tonight.

His statement, made in answer to a question in the house, is seen as a reply to the agitation in Germany for the return of African colonies seized by Britain during the war.

It was also a rejoinder to Labor party suggestions that Britain should turn back her colonies and mandates to the league of nations in order that territorial and economic advantages might be shared with the whole world in order to establish a lasting peace basis.

Greeted with Applause.

Thomas crushed these proposals, and his statement that "British colonies could not be made the subject of barter in any world conference," was greeted with applause from the house generally.

Thomas' statement today was followed by a resolution which was put on the order paper later opposing any transfer of colonies. The resolution states:

"This house is opposed to the transfer to any other lands of British colonies or mandated territories for the welfare, protection, and enlightened government of whose peoples the British nation holds an honorable trust."

Study Rearmament Program.

Meanwhile Britain's billion and a half dollar rearmament program and the project to create a ministry of defense with supreme authority over naval, air, and military forces, were discussed by the cabinet.

The costs of the vast armament program are to be extended over a period of three years and will be covered partly by a loan.

For the important post of coördinating and supervising the various arms of the service, the recently ejected foreign minister, Sir Samuel Hoare, is still being talked of. Some gossip even has it that Hoare will shortly replace Stanley Baldwin as prime minister.

The question of getting Hoare back into the cabinet was the subject of a conversation between Baldwin and King Edward VIII. of England, who received the prime minister at Buckingham palace this evening.

SYRIA CRIPPLED BY RIOTS; REPORT 2 MORE SLAYINGS

BEIRUT, Syria, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Two nationalist leaders, Nessib Nakary and Djemil Mardan, arrested in Damascus today by order of Count Damnien de Martel, French high commissioner for Syria, were ordered sent into exile tonight. De Martel said the two planned agitation that might result in bloodshed.

A food shortage is threatened in Damascus, where only bread and olives remain in the bazaars. Merchants have received a general 60 day moratorium on debts throughout Syria and Lebanon.

A factory owner attempting to reopen his establishment killed a student rioter in Damascus. In Aleppo one man was killed by the explosion of two bombs. The home of the French delegate, Baron Jean Fains, was bombed in Damascus, where newspapers have closed in protest against the government rule permitting them to print only official statements. The daily customs receipts at Beirut have dropped from $100,000 to $500.

LEAGUE EXPERTS DECIDE OIL BAN DEPENDS ON U. S.

Seek American Aid for Anti-Italian Action.

GENEVA, Feb. 12.—(AP)—An oil sanction against Italy, a committee of experts reported to the league of nations tonight, "would be effective" if the United States limits its exports to the warring nation to the normal level prior to 1935.

In its official report after weeks of deliberation, the committee expressed the opinion that if the embargo were universally applied and under conditions prevailing now, it would become effective within about three or three and one-half weeks.

But, the experts reported, if the sanction is imposed by league states alone the only effect it would have on Italy "would be to render the purchase of petroleum more difficult and expensive."

Depends on U. S. Congress.

Thus what attitude the congress of the United States takes in neutrality legislation, involving oil shipments, presumably will be a deciding factor in whether the league adds oil to the list of sanctions now in force against the member nation it has declared to be an aggressor.

[Inspired Italian sources have repeatedly warned that an oil sanction would mean a blockade and a blockade would mean a European war.]

Covering the possibility of substitutes being used for oil, the committee said the embargo would be strengthened if it were extended to cover industrial alcohol and benzol.

The committee eliminated from the draft of the report a statement which emphasized that Venezuela has not applied existing economic sanctions against Italy. Venezuela, a large oil producer, is merely in the committee of twelve as an observer.

Figures on U. S. Oil.

From figures before the committee, the report continued, it is clear that the quantity of products available for export from the United States greatly exceeds Italy's possible demands.

After citing American oil export figures to Italy from 1931 to 1934, the report continued: "During the last few months these exports have shown a very large increase. It is not known whether the recent increase in exports will be maintained or whether any form of limitation will in fact be instituted."

Italy's normal consumption of oil in recent years has increased by 13 per cent annually, the experts disclosed. Consumption in 1935 was estimated at 3,500,000 tons, including oil used for the war in Ethiopia, estimated at between 20,000 and 30,000 tons monthly.

ITALIAN FLYERS AIM BOMBS FOR HAILE SELASSIE

Believe Death of Emperor Will End War.

BY SIR PERCIVAL PHILLIPS.
[Special to the London Daily Telegraph and The Chicago Tribune.]

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland, Feb. 12.—The most important objective of the Italian campaign in Ethiopia at the moment is Emperor Haile Selassie himself. Airplanes are roaming above the area at Makale and Dessye daily in an endeavor to ascertain his whereabouts with the intention of bombing him.

The last raid on Dessye had this as the real objective, a fact of which the emperor himself was fully aware. It is understood to be the belief at Italian headquarters in Eritrea that his death would speedily end the war. This has become almost an obsession.

Trace Disaffection Reports.

Italian agents in Ethiopia and at Djibouti have been active recently in trying to ascertain the truth of reports of widespread discontent and disaffection in the northern provinces. Their inquiries have been directed to trying to answer the question of how far the situation would be affected if the emperor were eliminated and if, as the Italians hope, the provincial chiefs fight with no cohesion or coöperation.

The belief that the emperor is the vital link in his empire's defense is not shared by some equally responsible observers, but the Italians undoubtedly have been encouraged in their view that if they are able to bomb and kill him the war would soon be over.

Planes Watch All Movements.

Reconnaissance planes have lately been flying low in the vicinity of Dessye where there are no military concentrations or activity of any importance, watching all movements on the roads to the north. The Ethiopians are convinced their only concern is with the emperor.

There is little danger they will get him. Although he is still at Dessye or thereabouts, he sleeps nightly in a different place in accordance with his custom, and only goes abroad in daytime well camouflaged from the air.

He himself has supreme contempt for the bombers' markmanship, as displayed in the poor showing in three raids carried out in the area. Special shelters have been constructed at six different places where he would be secure against attack. He has commented with sardonic humor on this game of hide and seek and the delusion of his enemies that his death would involve the collapse of the empire.

Claim 20,000 Italians Slain.

[Copyright: 1936: By Havas and New York News.]

ADDIS ABABA, Feb. 12.—Twenty thousand Italian soldiers were slain by Ras Mulugheta's warriors in savage fighting in the Tembien sector during the last ten days of January, according to an official announcement issued today at Dessye, Ethiopia's imperial war base.

"More than 15,000 Italians and 4,123 Askaris" were killed by his warriors in a determined attempt to pierce the Tigre sector, Emperor Haile Selassie's headquarters said.

[Italian war office bulletins issued at Rome placed the number of killed since initiation of the Ethiopian campaign at 1,619, of whom 775 were natives and 844 Italians.]

Reveals Desertion of 380 Natives from Italian Army

LONDON, Feb. 12.—(AP)—J. H. Thomas, colonial secretary, told the house of commons today that 380 Italian native troops had deserted from the Italian armies in Ethiopia into the British colony of Kenya between Jan. 15 and Jan. 22. His statement was made in reply to a question from the floor.

UNIVERSITY OF PARIS DEAN IS SLUGGED IN RIOT OVER ETHIOPIA

PARIS, Feb. 12.—(AP)—University of Paris students' protests against the persistence of Prof. Gaston Jeze in teaching law resulted today in a threat of resignation by Prof. E. Allix, dean of the law school.

Dean Allix protested that a policeman had hit him. The policeman said he had landed a wild blow by mistake when he slipped on the ice while routing a student demonstration.

Students hid in the school with food today in order to carry out their daily interruption of Prof. Jeze's 7 o'clock class without missing breakfast. They are protesting against Jeze's continuation as a member of the faculty because he represented Ethiopia in the league of nations during the sanctions controversy.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief Of Pain

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are one of Nature's chief ways of taking the acids and waste out of the blood. If they don't pass 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing.

If you have trouble with frequent bladder passages with scanty amount which often smart and burn, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes and dizziness.

Don't wait for serious trouble. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS—which have been used successfully for over 40 years by millions of people. They give happy relief and will help flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get DOAN'S PILLS.

IS CONGRESS LEAVING THE DRIFTING SHIP?

Five crazy projects of the Public Works administration have been given a bit of cold shoulder in the house appropriations committee. The Public Works is the more orderly of the two federal spending enterprises, the purely goofy one being Mr. Hopkins' Works Progress. It is merely a hole in the pants pocket intended to lose all the money put in it. Mr. Ickes is supposed to get something. Mr. Hopkins' piles of leaves will be gone by summer. Mr. Ickes will leave many interesting and expensive ruins.

The Maine Quoddy tide harnessing project was one the house committee decided not to recommend for a new appropriation until congress authorized a continuance of the work. The Florida Atlantic to gulf ship canal was another. No one seems to know what would be done with the Maine power if it were developed. The army engineers prefer not to be asked questions. This is a political baby and the engineers wish some one else would make it fit for public appearance.

The Florida canal already has the state divided before it is cut. The fruit growers say the seepage will mix salt water and orange juice. The engineers say it won't. Several important ship companies have said they will not use the canal under any of the conditions now proposed. Although use is supposed to be the essence of Mr. Ickes' undertakings, hope is allowed to run high and proof is not insisted upon. Maybe some one will use these contributions to national welfare, maybe not.

Probably too much could be made of the new disposition in congress to resume control of the spending on public works. The prerogative of deciding what should be undertaken was surrendered when the administration asked for a blank check and a delegation of authority. The representatives of the people virtually retired from the scene, having stripped themselves of their part in government.

To postulate, as the appropriations committee appears to have done, that money shall be granted as congress makes specific authorization in each case would mean a return to American government as we have known it. More proof that such a tendency has set in would be required. Elections are coming. The politicians will set their sails for the best winds. Many congressmen who prostrated themselves to the New Deal have come to entertain doubts. The people throughout the country give signs that if they have been in a trance they are coming out of it. Congress will not remain spellbound when this has been made plain. Nothing throws off chains so quickly as an American legislative body when a dictatorial executive is seen to be slipping.

DEPORTATION OF ALIEN CRIMINALS.

A measure to facilitate the deportation of alien criminals was introduced in congress last year and is now under consideration by the house. The bill has the indorsement of the American Bar association, the International Association of Chiefs of Police, and the United States Chamber of Commerce. The federal commissioner of immigration and naturalization, Col. MacCormack, has just addressed the Chicago Bar association describing the bill and the conditions it is framed to correct, and our own examination convinces us that it should be enacted.

Although the number of aliens said to be unlawfully within the country seems to have been greatly overestimated, there is little doubt that there are thousands of criminal and subversive aliens in the United States whom existing law does not enable the government to deport. The case of habitual criminals seems clearly in need of new treatment. A government memorandum points out that, "excepting in narcotic cases, an alien criminal can now be deported only if he has been convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude committed within five years after his admission to the United States and sentenced to imprisonment for one year or longer, or if his record shows two such convictions and sentences subsequent to Feb. 5, 1917. The law thus narrowly restricted fails to reach a numerous class of habitual criminals who are a burden and menace to society." The bill provides that, in addition to those criminals now covered by the law, any alien who has twice been convicted may be deported, with no limitation as to the time when the crime was committed or as to the sentence imposed. But this very drastic rule is qualified by the provision that as to this additional class of deportables deportation must be found to be "in the public interest" by the interdepartmental committee composed of members of the departments of labor, state, and justice. This is to avoid unnecessary hardship to individuals who may have lived many years in the United States and demonstrated their ability and disposition to lead law abiding lives. It applies only to the new class of deportables and not to anarchists, communists, criminals, or the immoral classes.

The bill also brings the carrying of concealed weapons under the definition of crime involving moral turpitude, making deportation mandatory. An alien who knowingly and for gain smuggles aliens into the country is not now deportable but will be under a provision of the new bill.

Other provisions as to procedure to make deportation more efficient need not be discussed here. Provisions to permit discretion to authority in defined cases may be objected to, but seem to be required by considerations of humanity and public policy when, as in this bill, they are limited to persons of good character, who have not been convicted of crime and who have not engaged in subversive political activities.

An important feature of the bill which meets the fear that it will result in increase of alien immigration is found in the stipulation that aliens permitted to remain in the country under its new provisions shall be charged against the annual quotas of their respective countries of origin.

LOOSE TALK.

One of the most flagrant instances of official impropriety and lack of responsibility is Senator Pittman's provocative remarks on Japan. From the chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations the Japanese government and people may rationally take them as a serious affront indicating a belligerent temper in quarters responsible for American foreign policy and the conduct of our relations with them. That the Japanese press and some of their officials have indulged in provocation of a like character is no excuse for Senator Pittman or for Senator Lewis, who has also permitted himself opinions on Japan which were better kept to himself. On the contrary it makes all the more important self-restraint and good manners on our side.

Both Pittman and Lewis sacrificed public interest to their own political ends. It gave them a place in the news. It presented them to the unthinking as champions of national defense. But as senators of the United States, charged as that body is, with the President, with the management of our foreign relations, they have made it more difficult to maintain the friendly relations with the Japanese which the American people wish to foster and strengthen. Men of good will and common sense in both countries are trying to offset the influence of chauvinists and politicians that creates an atmosphere hostile to reasonable consideration of our differences and cultivates the soil from which unnecessary conflict springs. We have a right to expect from our representatives that they will assist, not hinder, good relations with every country. This does not involve closing their eyes to any fact or any tendency which concerns us, but it does impose upon them a duty of temperate and judicious utterance.

The preponderant interests of both the Japanese and American people are for peace and the establishment of mutually profitable relations. We have hope that these interests will prevail, and they will prevail if the public opinion of both nations is not perverted by self-seeking politics through exaggerated alarms, through the cultivation of national prejudices, through provocative controversy and its suppression of the fundamental considerations upon which our relations ought to be founded.

TRACKS ON THE LAKE FRONT.

That city and town councils shall be continually at swords' points with traction companies is one of our most deeply entrenched unwritten laws. It is not good for either of them, nor for the public, but if that "chummy" attitude visualized by Mayor Kelly should ever become standard practice the accomplishment would be received with mingled amazement and suspicion by the Chicago public—and the world, for that matter.

There is much to be said on both sides, but for the purpose of this editorial, emphasis will be placed on the ungracious attitude generally assumed by public utility companies toward popular civic improvements. If there is one civic project above another that Chicago delights in showing its visitors it is the miles of drives that border the lake. No other city offers the motorist such an opportunity for sightseeing, and in addition these broad arteries have a utilitarian and safety value that can scarcely be estimated.

To have street car tracks cross these drives at intervals is not only cause for an apology, but is entirely unnecessary, and it appears strange that the Chicago Surface Lines cannot become imbued with the same spirit of public pride that its citizens feel in its accomplishments.

So long as the Chicago avenue tracks cross the Lake Shore drive and continue to parallel that connecting link in our park system south to Ohio street the project will not be completed. The Grand avenue tracks are certainly sufficient to serve the Municipal pier and this area, and insistence on continuance of the present tracks merely serves to bring public opinion to bear on the surface lines.

Editorial of the Day

NOBODY WAS ASTONISHED.

[Portland Oregonian.]

A score of years ago, and less than that, if it had been told that two airmen had flown across the antarctic continent, above those desolate and lifeless plateaus, those nameless peaks, never before visited by man, the world should have resounded with the wonder and glamor of that great adventure. But we have taken the flight of Lincoln Ellsworth and Herbert Hollick-Kenyon rather tamely. It is, as Admiral Byrd declares it, one of the greatest flights of history, yet the modern world is relatively unimpressed.

A blizzard ridden middle west, engaged with its own snowdrifts, is apt all unconsciously to minimize the similar experience of the airmen who rescued their plane from the polar snows. The difference, of course, would be one of utter loneliness and self-dependence, of remoteness from human help. But the reaction nowadays is casual. "Well," people said, "I see that those two fellows who flew over the bottom end of the earth are safe, after all. What do you think about the Hauptmann case?" No longer is it easy to astonish us. There is a protective blubber of thick complacency.

Science and Adventure, you sisters, immortal, of high emprise, nothing could be more evident than this: You must vary your act.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

MR. ROOSEVELT describes his triple study of government finance as a three ring circus. Oh, a three ring circus; yes, with acrobats and ladies leaping through hoops of fire and performing seals and tight rope walkers and deeds of desperate daring and the Blood Sweating Behemoth of Holy Writ and everything. And ushers walking around and shouting, "Keep yer seats, ladees and gentlemun; remembah, the performance is not half ovah." And the side shows! The old time circus had only one side show, Bosco, Bosco. He Eats 'Em Alive; Alive! and Montezumy the Wild Man Captured in the For-rests of Central America and one Captain Bohunkus the Tattooed Man and one snake charmer and one sword swallower. Pooh! the New Deal three ring circus has dozens of 'em.

"LATIN AMERICA Is Invited to Study of Peace by U. S. A."—Headline. But what an embarrassing moment it would be if little Latin America raised his hand and snapped his fingers and said: "But, teacher, what about the war you had with Mexico back in 1848?" Goodness, wouldn't our face be red!

SOMEHOW POLITICAL ARGUMENTS leave me cold. Gov. Talmadge at the Lincoln dinner proved conclusively that if Mr. Lincoln were alive today he would be against the New Deal body and soul, and Mr. Ickes, the w. k. Secretary of the Interior, proved that if Mr. Lincoln were alive now he would be skipping about a city park learning rhythmic dances with the rest of the boondogglers. So what?

TWO SONNETS FOR A.

LXX.

Why I should have dreamed of you at all who are to me not anything to mention, nor loved nor hated, nor great nor even small,
but one whose talk is fraught with no intention,
I do not know. Like days of medium weather pleasant enough, azure of shade and ceiling, remarkable for nothing, indifferent whether it is with ice or heat the season's dealing, so you have passed before me with a smile,
polite to me and I to you in greeting mostly for others' sakes, a little while, making a sociable trifle of our meeting.
And then my dream is invaded by your eyes gone suddenly meaningful and dark and wise.

LXXI.

I plan the usual politic reply,
I think to laugh away the sudden thing watching me from each earnest amber eye (like slender stems amazed at blossoming) and I am frozen through with what is coming:
I know your next few words, I know your voice,
the sound within me is crescendant drumming,
our strident unescapable words are noise.
Swiftly, hand in hand, we leave the others, bound for something we know nothing of,
forgetful of our fathers and our mothers, forgetting even that it is not love.
And once within the shadow of the wall
we find it gone, find nothing there at all.

JEANNE DELAMARTER.

A STORE IN OHIO driven by the importunities of its freezing customers has dug up a lot of genuine red flannel undies that were put away on top of the shelves away back in 1876 because it was thought folks would never wear those awful things again. But now people are frantically searching the stores and the old trunks up in the attic looking for red flannel undies. It may be scratchy and a trifle embarrassing when the sleeves of the red flannel shirt peep out from under our white shirt sleeves, but red flannel is mighty warm and comfortable in zero weather. And now it's coming back; manufacturers won't forget this winter in a hurry and they'll be ready next time blizzards blow. Bet a nickel that even red flannel nighties get stylish again.

IT WAS ONLY one of the lamentable things caused by the unprecedented cold spell, but it was sad, sad, sad. It was the big fat man on the bus in front of me. He was talking to a friend who said that one zero night he had frozen his ears. And another zero night his feet and hands had been frostbitten and on another—— "Listen, brother," said the fat man, "you don't know what sorrow is. You can't get no medals from me for what this below zero stuff did to you. Do you know what happened to me? It was about four nights ago, one of the coldest, and—and—and the three bottles of pre-war bourbon I had down cellar froze as tight as any iceberg you ever saw—and busted the bottles to hellen gone and all my pre-war stuff——" The fat man could say no more, but broke down and cried like a child. Ah, it was sad, very sad.

JEWELS.

Let us go,
Before they fade from view,
To see the jewels set in snow
Where the sun has laid
Turquoise, shadow-blue,
Malachite and jade,
Lapis, and the glow
Of amethyst
Above the hidden green
Of wheat. The sun has blessed
Every branch and stem
In the varied sheen
Of a myriad gem.
Despite the cold that starved
The breath, let us go
To see these jewels carved
And shining in the snow.

ABNORMAL LIME DEPOSITS.

WHEN we erect a building the first necessity is a good foundation. It may be laid in rock or in good hard earth. At any rate it must rest on solid material, so that settling will not occur.

We may liken the foundation of a building to the skeleton of the body, in which calcium derived from food is used to form the bony structure. To the bones the muscles are attached, and these in turn support the blood vessels and the nerves. Were it not for calcium the human body would be a formless, jelly-like mass. Muscles could not function because they would have no leverage. Anchored to one another, their contractions would pull and twist the mass of flesh into hideous shapes. We recognize, therefore, our dependence upon lime for the beautiful contour of the human body.

But we have learned that lime must be disseminated throughout the human frame in proper proportions, and in good health this is controled by certain glandular structures, particularly the parathyroids that lie in the neck.

We know also that the circulation is a great distributing system and that normally deposits of lime do not form in tissues other than bone and cartilage. In some instances, however, lime may accumulate either as a part of some healing process or as the result of disease. For example, we depend upon calcium as one of the healing forces in tuberculosis; that is, an inflamed area may be walled off or inclosed within a shell of fibrous tissue reinforced with calcium. Sometimes flakes of lime will be found in large blood vessels [particularly the aorta] that have become diseased.

Lime deposits in the skin [called calcinosis] have been noted. These areas vary in size from a pinhead to that of a marble, and occur most frequently on the inside of the hand and the sides of the thumb and of the first two fingers. They may be found also on the elbows, wrists, knees, and ankle joints. At first the skin over the nodules seems normal, but as enlargement becomes manifest signs of inflammation accompanied by pain will be observed. Later, cracks in the skin appear, from which exudes a creamy material mixed with particles of lime which have the feel of sand.

When examined chemically these nodules are found to contain a large amount of calcium phosphate, with a smaller amount of calcium carbonate. Similar collections may be found in the capillaries, in the sweat glands and ducts, and along nerve trunks. As we would expect when nerves become involved, considerable pain may be present.

The cause is not clear. Many of the victims are found to be suffering from tuberculosis of the lungs, arthritis, osteomyelitis, or chronic kidney disease. It is reasonable to assume that some type of inflammatory change lays the groundwork for the establishment of these calcium deposits.

A typical case described by M. J. Costello is that of a woman aged 44, who gave a history of abnormally cold hands and feet. She occasionally showed blanching of the fingers and toes, followed by marked blueness of the skin, a situation simulating Raynaud's disease. An X-ray disclosed what appeared to be irregular fragments of bone imbedded in the skin. The patient was able to carry on her daily work without difficulty except for the pain and annoyance caused by the nodules. Following surgical removal the wounds healed slowly.

The suggestion has been offered that the condition may be due to an excess of vitamin D in the diet. This is emphasized by the observations of research workers that the feeding of large amounts of this vitamin to experimental animals is sometimes followed by the formation of calcium stones in the arteries, the kidneys, the gall bladder, and other parts of the body.

Fortunately the disorder is not common. Its occurrence, however, should lead to a careful investigation of the calcium balance of the body. In many cases nodules are so small as to cause no difficulty. But in the presence of intense pain surgical removal may be necessary.

BLOODSHOT EYES.

Miss I. J. writes: My eyes frequently become bloodshot and burn. They tire easily and there are occasional sharp shooting pains. There is a continuous pressure and extreme sensitiveness in the bridge of the nose. X-ray discloses no trouble in the frontal sinuses. The skin of the forehead is also extremely sensitive.

REPLY.

The symptoms described may be caused by conjuctivitis or inflammation of the mucous membrane of the eye. This may be due to exposure, wind, smoke, etc. To determine the cause an eye physician should be consulted.

NOT DUE TO EYESTRAIN.

Mrs. S. writes: What causes a blood vessel to break in the eye, causing the white to turn red? Is it due to eyestrain?

REPLY.

Usually a slight injury. Even a snowflake striking the eyeball can cause a capillary rupture.

Eyestrain is not a factor, though high blood pressure may be.

CLOSING OF ESTATE.

Evanston, Ill., Feb. 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My grandfather died in 1931, leaving a will in which all the children were to have an equal amount. It is all in real estate and the lawyer is holding it until real estate goes up, or so he says. He has been able to collect enough from the rents to pay the insurance, taxes, etc. The estate is in Ohio. 1. How long can it go before it has to be settled up? 2. Can some of the heirs have it settled up or [3] do all of them have to agree to it?

F. H.

1. Indefinitly if nobody makes a move.
2. Yes.
3. No. In order to force closing of the probate estate take the matter up with the Probate court. If the estate is closed without sale of the real estate and you wish to force the sale, employ an attorney for partition proceedings.

FROM THE WEATHER FORECASTER.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—In answer to the article of L. M. Arms in today's issue:

I have never thought that the "people of Chicago" will be seriously inconvenienced if they are required to receive our daily reports one hour later, but it is certain that during daylight saving time in the past a large number of business and commercial concerns of all kinds were greatly inconvenienced by the late receipt of their weather reports. That your writer "has not heard" that the eastern cities are inconvenienced in this matter does not change the fact that business and commercial concerns there are inconvenienced.

Moreover, the "belief" of your writer that the old-fashioned almanac could be no less accurate than have been the forecasts of the last year or two, and that it was not always so, does not change the facts, which are a matter of record, that old-fashioned almanac forecasts are accurate not more than 50 per cent of the time—the same as guesses—while the forecasts issued by the United States weather bureau for Chicago are accurate about 85 per cent of the time, with the accuracy during the last two years fully up to that standard.

C. A. DONNEL,
Principal Meteorologist, United States Weather Bureau.

COLD BATHS.

Savanna, Ill., Feb. 8.—In a water hole under the new bridge on the Mississippi river two dozen wild ducks and geese may be seen every day swimming and feeding. The channel is 20 to 30 feet deep. The fowl dive down and can stay submerged two to three minutes. With the weather 20 to 30 degrees below zero, WPA workers in a nearby stone quarry look at the divers, then at each other, and say, "Them birds are all coo coo."

CHARLES T. CROFTON.

YES, ON FEB. 23.

Appleton, Wis., Feb. 8.—Would it be possible to have reprints in the rotogravure section of some of the Rembrandt exhibit at the Art institute? I thought I'd be able to go down to see it, especially "Supper at Emmaus," but can't make it.

[MRS. JOHN JR.] BESS ENGEL.

JUST WATCH US TREMBLE.

Evansville, Ind., Feb. 8.—You probably get a good deal of satisfaction from poking fun at the Townsend plan. But, my brother, you are likely to get an eye opener one of these days that may push your eyebrows up under your hat. Your jeers came early and are staying rather late. If all your subscribers and advertisers who believe in the plan were to withdraw their patronage there would be quite a shrinkage in your bank account, and that is just what they should do.

Of course your policy of placing property rights above human rights is strictly in line with the lifetime policy of your paper. The leopard does not change its spots, but sometimes gets them badly mussed up in an encounter with something stronger and fiercer. I refer here to public opinion, not forgetting that Americans still have freedom of the ballot, and that some of the good old fighting stock is still here. They are serving notice that the exploiting days of some high hats are drawing to a close. After the fall elections I may again write you to learn whether you are still laughing or have a severe headache.

Chicago, Feb. 8.—Referring to your little item, "A Gentleman in Uniform," which appeared in today's issue, I add my praise to Mrs. J. K. M.'s in honor of Trainman 1250, whose assistance to elderly passenger leaving the train at Morse avenue on Jan. 30 it was my pleasure, also, to observe. The writer, knowing that time, even when reduced to minutes, is a most important factor in the makeup of any transportation company's schedules, will try to correct the statement that "the train waited nearly five minutes," by saying it waited for two or two and one-half minutes.

TAKEN UNDER ADVISEMENT.

Hammond, Ind., Feb. 8.—Here is a suggestion of how you could help the Republican cause in 1936: Have Mr. Orr's cartoons of the last two years portraying the New Deal put in book form. These could be sold for 50 cents to $1 per copy and the funds donated to the national committee. The cartoons would have a tremendous influence on the voter in analyzing the New Deal.

L. A. MILNE.

POLAND AS DEBTOR AND CREDITOR.

Chicago, Feb. 8.—A recent communication in your column carried the unfair implication that, since Poland had repudiated her debt to the United States, it had no right to take offense at a default by the German government in paying the Polish railway trust for the use of its equipment in transporting trafic through the corridor.

This criticism is both unfair and contrary to the facts. Inquiry from the state department will bring the information that the Polish government has not repudiated its debt to the United States, but has merely defaulted in lieu of the horrible state of financing in Europe. At the very first opportunity you may be sure that the Polish government will resume its payment, as it considers its debt one of national honor and would never repudiate its debt to the country to which it owes so much for its rebirth.

The Polish government has paid out in hard earned cash the cost of conveying German passengers and commodities, and expects payment in turn from Germany, which is only fair under the circumstances. This sum is only 11 million dollars, but is important to the destiny of a young and struggling republic.

RADIO ANNOUNCERS.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—I personally have three radios in my small home, conveniently located so as not to interfere with my household duties or tending to the needs of three small children. The radio and the announcers are part of us, and we faithfully follow all programs during the day. Occasionally they do make slight errors, as your correspondent, Margaret Thompson, says, but don't we all?

What a calamity it would be if Quin Ryan should suddenly stop that lovable giggle of his, along with the occasional stammering and apologizing, or Pat Flannigan with that irresistible chatter, and numerous other characteristics they all so charmingly possess.

After all, what's a slight error like "artic," "antartic," or "constitooshun" if there's a smiling voice with a bit of cheer behind it?

DOROTHY LORENZEN.

THE WEATHER MAP.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—I wish to thank you for the weather map in your Sunday issue of Feb. 9.

While at school we were taught the use of the maps and I have long hoped you would publish them daily. I have a barometer of my own and it is great sport making one's own weather predictions. May the popular requests be so great that you will decide to make the map a part of your great daily paper.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—The London county council town planning regulations committee has prepared a policy for replanning London. It is proposed to divide London county into zones in each of which buildings of a certain height will be allowed. In the outer suburban zone, on the fringes of Hackney, Stoke Newington, Islington, Hampstead, Lewisham, and Woolwich, new buildings may be no higher than the width of the adjacent road under the plan.

There will be an inner zone, including parts of Paddington, Kensington, Fulham, Lambeth, Camberwell, Islington, and Hampstead, in which buildings 50 per cent higher than the width of the adjacent road will be permitted. In central boroughs like Finsbury, Holborn, Westminster, and Stepney buildings twice as high as the width of the adjacent road are to be authorized.

Boundaries of the zones will not coincide with borough boundaries. For example, in Chelsea and Fulham, where the proximity of the Thames river insures greater air and light, there may be three different zones.

At the same time the committee has been considering the future width of roads in central London. Streets 200 feet wide have been suggested for the financial district and Westminster. Although such streets in districts where land is highly valued appear ridiculous to some observers here, it is argued that large main arteries are necessary for a scheme likely to be adequate a century hence. In any case, legislation will come before parliament next summer for a new road for London which will cost between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000. This is the new arterial road from Cromwell road through to the Brentwood by-pass, which will vary from 80 feet to more than 100 feet in width and will be nearly four miles long. About two miles will be in London county and the remainder in Middlesex.

This important highway, driven through closely built up areas, will afford much needed relief. It is only the beginning of the ambitious schemes which the committee has in mind.

POLAND JAILS 21 FOES OF JEWS; NEW RIOTS FLARE

Many Injured in Drive for Vengeance.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, Feb. 12.—Many persons were injured tonight in anti-Semitic riots in Katowice which followed the sentencing of 21 Nationalist bomb throwers by the Katowice court.

Wladislaw Jakubowski, 36 years old, who confessed he was leader of the bomb gang, told the court he considered anti-Semitism the highest expression of Polish patriotism. He was reproved by the judge, who sentenced him to three years at hard labor. The other defendants will go to jail for terms ranging from twelve to thirty months.

Nationalist leaders declared the sentences will be avenged, and Katowice and surrounding towns were being patroled by details of police armed with rifles. Police reserves have been hurried there from other cities.

Attack Jewish Stores.

The Nationalists attacked a number of Jewish stores and cafes tonight. The injuries resulted during the ensuing fighting.

In Lwow another organizer of anti-Semitic riots, Wladislaw Klimczak, was sentenced to two months imprisonment for leading crowds which sacked the Jewish market, beating Jewish merchants and destroying their wares.

In Warsaw, police announced they had raided the apartment of Zsawa Szapiro where they arrested seventeen Jewish anarchists. They were charged with plotting a campaign of terror to be inaugurated when Hermann Wilhelm Goering, German air minister, arrives in Warsaw shortly to be decorated by the Polish Hunting club.

Nazi Minister Well Guarded.

Hans Frank, Nazi legal expert and minister without portfolio in the German cabinet, arrived in Warsaw today to lecture before government officials on interstate law policy. Frank has been closely guarded during his visit and special details of secret service men watched the lecture hall. Admissions were only by invitation.

Reserves of police will be congregated in the Warsaw ghetto tomorrow to protect 153 Jewish rabbi "miracle workers" from tens of thousands of devoted Jews. Eighteen hundred rabbis also are expected to meet here tomorrow to protest against the bill introduced in parliament to abolish the kosher slaughter of animals.

Rabbis Arrive Quietly.

The miracle working rabbis are held in almost fanatical veneration by orthodox Jewry in Poland. Their appearance in public has caused serious riots on previous occasions.

The bill to cancel the centuries old meat monopoly of Jews in Poland was published in the Polish press today. The bill proposes to introduce modern slaughterhouses and methods into Poland. It forbids skinning animals while they are still alive and announces that the Jewish meat monopoly will be canceled Jan. 1, 1937.

In defending the bill, Mrs. Janina Prystor, wife of a former premier, declared that present methods of killing animals in Poland are cruel and antiquated. She declared that kosher methods are contrary to the cultural standard of the twentieth century and pointed out that an international congress in Brussels last year condemned them and recommended that animals be stunned first.

Nathan Singer, Poland's most noted Jewish editor, declared that Mrs. Prystor is responsible for the rankest piece of anti-Semitic legislation which has been introduced in the Polish parliament in many years and that, under cover of humanitarianism, she is systematically propagandizing hatred against the Jews. Singer declared that hundreds of thousands of Jews would be impoverished if the law becomes effective.

The Jewish parliamentary faction, with the chief rabbis of Warsaw and Vilna, visited Alexander Swietoslawski, minister of education, and renewed the protest against the anti-kosher bill.

Annual Debt Statement of Chicago Park District

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

The annual debt statement of the Chicago park district showed yesterday that during 1935 the district reduced the total debts of the 22 park areas which it superseded in 1934 by $14,915,043, but that the district's own debts were increased during the year by $5,111,837. The report is what is known as a pro-forma statement, being subject to any corrections or adjustments which may be made as a result of the annual audit now in progress.

In its financial operations the park district differs from other Chicago governments in one important respect. The park commissioners are running two businesses. On one hand they are engaged in liquidating the obligations of the 22 districts which were superseded as the result of the 1934 consolidation. On the other they are operating the park system of the city through the agency of the Chicago park district.

This situation has an important bearing on the distribution of their tax revenue. All the delinquent taxes which they received during 1935, including 1934 levies of the superseded districts, went toward retirement of the debts left by the superseded districts.

Of the tax warants outstanding against levies of the new district only $6,435,000 worth was issued in anticipation of the 1935 levy of $9,000,000. This has an important bearing on the current controversy between President Robert J. Dunham of the park board and Gov. Horner over the cost of park administration, since it indicates an ability on the part of the park commissioners to make a substantial reduction in their tax levy, the most direct measure of the cost of their administration.

Assuming that the retirement of those warants will be the only purpose to which collections on the 1935 levy can be put legally, it seems possible for the park commissioners to abate a considerable part of their 1935 levy before the tax bills are made out. An allowance of two years' interest on the outstanding warants, plus the usual 10 per cent of the levy for loss and cost of collection, would still make it possible to reduce the levy by approximately $1,350,000.

The Chicago park district had to finance its current operations out of the levy which it made for the latter part of 1934, the first instalment of which was collected during 1935, plus money raised by sale of warants against its 1935 levy. The following statement shows the outstanding obligations of the present park government on Dec. 31, 1935, and, for purposes of comparison, its obligations on Dec. 31, 1934:

		Dec. 31, '35.	Dec. 31, '34.
Unpaid bills	$324,552
Industrial commission awards	15,548
Total floating debt		$ 340,100	$ 661,263
Tax warants outstanding		7,733,000	2,500,000
Total obligations		$8,073,100	$3,161,263

The comparative debt statement for the superseded districts on Dec. 31, 1935, and Dec. 31, 1934, follows:

		Dec. 31, 1935.	Dec. 31, 1934.
FUNDED DEBT—
Undefaulted bonds	$83,967,451
Less cash in sinking funds	2,451,901
Net		$81,515,550	$ 90,014,338
Funded debt in default—
Principal	$9,601,687
Interest	5,408,488
Interest on def'lted principal	319,305
Total		15,329,466	5,612,100
Total liability on funded debt		$96,845,016	$ 95,626,438
Less tax collections applicable to debt		4,206,247	761,982
Net funded debt liability		$92,638,763	$ 94,864,456
FLOATING DEBT—
Unpaid bills	$1,037,784
Unpaid pay rolls	1,445,406
Judgments	17,424
Other indebtedness	698,304
Total floating debt		3,198,912	2,913,545
TAX WARANTS OUTSTANDING—
In park funds	$ 784,587
Held by public	1,524,383
Total tax warants		2,308,970	15,281,687
Total of all obligations		$98,144,645	$113,059,688

Shortly before the end of 1935 the park district arranged a plan to refund the outstanding bonds of the superseded districts. This has not been put into effect, however, and accordingly is not reflected by the debt statement for Dec. 31.

COLOR PRINTING'S GREAT ADVANCES TOLD AT SESSION

Press Executives Confer on Technical Problems.

While great progress has been made in the adaptation of color printing in newspapers in the last few years, there is a wide field open for broader use and improvement of printing technique, speakers declared yesterday at the opening session of a two day conference of newspaper executives in the audience room of W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE's radio station.

More than 100 publishers, business managers, and mechanical superintendents from all parts of the country attended the conference, to which they had been invited by Col. R. R. McCormick, publisher of THE TRIBUNE, for the purpose of exchanging technical knowledge and experience in color printing with respect to both editorial features and advertising.

Urges Coöperation on Color.

Col. McCormick in his address of welcome briefly reviewed developments in newspaper color printing and invited the newspaper officials to coöperate in further improvement of the quality of color printing, thereby rendering a greater service to readers and advertisers.

Paul E. Watson, vice president of Ruthrauff & Ryan, Inc., advertising agency, declared that it is the duty of publishers and editors to make every effort to enlarge upon progress already made in color printing and predicted that a new style of advertising would result from developments in this field. Color advertising in newspapers, he said, will follow closely the pattern established by newspapers in their color features.

Another advertising executive, John W. Hansel, vice president of N. W. Ayer & Son, Inc., stated that some advertisers in the past have confined their advertising largely to magazines because of the advantages of color printing. Advertisers have found that increased sales have resulted from wider use of colored rotogravure advertising, he said.

Cites Appeal of Color.

The use of color in advertising, he said, attracts the immediate attention of the reader and has greater retention and identification value. Timeliness and seasonableness of advertising can be brought out more strongly, and the same is true of the beauty, reality of the product in use, and merchandising value, he said.

A. M. Kennedy, Sunday editor of THE TRIBUNE, said that readability and eye appeal are improved by the use of color in presentation of news features and stated that the value of such features has been reflected in increases in circulation. W. J. Byrnes, manager of research and promotion for THE TRIBUNE, discussed the growth in the use of color in printing, particularly since the world war and the advent of plentiful and less costly dyes.

Discuss Technique.

The technique of color printing on newsprint was discussed by Fred Shafer, manager of THE TRIBUNE advertising copy and art department, and J. W. Park, TRIBUNE production superintendent.

David Mayer, vice president and general manager of Maurice L. Rothschild Clothing company, will address the conference today on the use of color in newsprint by the retail advertiser. His talk will be followed by an open discussion of the whole subject of color in newspapers. The conference will be closed with an address by Col. McCormick.

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST

"AN AMERICAN INSTITUTION"

REED CRITICIZES NEW DEALERS AS FOES OF LIBERTY

Ex-Senator Speaks at Sentinels' Show.

Former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri went yesterday afternoon to see the free motion picture show being staged this week by the Sentinels of the Republic at the Grand Opera house and stayed to make an extemporaneous speech to his fellow guests at the show.

"This country belongs to the American people," he told them. "There are 130,000,000 proprietors. The men who are in Washington are merely the servants of the people. They are not the bosses."

The Blocking of Tyranny.

The men who framed the constitution were aware of the methods and philosophy of tyrants, the speaker said. The methods, he said, were those of "the gibbet, the ax, prisons, and chains"; the philosophy that of paternalism, "that the masses of men were incapable of ordering their own lives."

"We set up a policy which denied the right of any government to undertake to control the business or the life of a citizen," said Reed. "The citizen was supreme.

"We created a civilization well exemplified in the expression, 'I wear my sovereignty under my own hat and can look any man in the eye and tell him to go to the devil.'

Assails Enemies of Liberty.

"Now we are told that citizens cannot run their own business; that they cannot manage their own lives. I say to you that you do have sense enough to run your own affairs, and if you do run your own affairs you will create the weath; you will be the people who must create the wealth.

"This crowd of people who are down there at Washington, disregarding the old constitution, sneering at the old constitution, and saying that it belongs in the horse and buggy age, and is therefore a dead and obsolete thing, are the enemies of American liberty, and I denounce them as the enemies of American liberty."

Raymond Pitcairn, national chairman of the Sentinels, was the speaker at the evening session of the show yesterday.

THEOLOGIANS OFFER VIEWS ON RELIGION AND SOCIAL JUSTICE

A dialog between Dr. Frederick C. Grant, president of Seabury Western Theological seminary, Evanston, and Dr. John Evans, religious editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, on the subject of "Religion and Social Justice" was held yesterday as a part of the contemporary thought class of Northwestern university.

They discussed their basic differences of opinion in regard to the relationship between religion and social justice at Harris hall on the Evanston campus during the afternoon, and again at Thorne hall on the McKinlock campus last evening.

"The goal of social justice," said Dr. Evans, "might be defined as the right and the opportunity of all men, so choosing, to achieve full expression of personhood through free, but coöperative and balanced play of their physical, mental, and spiritual faculties, in a society organized with that end in view."

"The church's main task," said Dr. Grant "is 'spiritual'; and yet you cannot divorce the spiritual from the material. When a pastor finds the lives of his people, especially of the children, cramped and suffocated by unjust working conditions, he cannot, as a man of sincerity and honor, fail to protest against such conditions and try to right them."

VIRUS CAUSING COLDS IS GROWN IN A TEST TUBE

New York, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The long elusive cause of the common cold has been kept bottled up successfully for twenty months in a test tube at Columbia university.

Dr. A. Raymond Dochez, professor of medicine at Columbia university school of medicine, announced tonight that this long period of artificial cultivation, completely away from the human body, make it certain that the cause is an invisible virus.

In the Columbia tube there are no bacteria or other forms of infection visible. But in all the twenty months its liquid contents have retained the power to give a human being, or a chimpanzee, a violent cold. In all that time the invisible cause has lived and reproduced itself on chicken embryo for food.

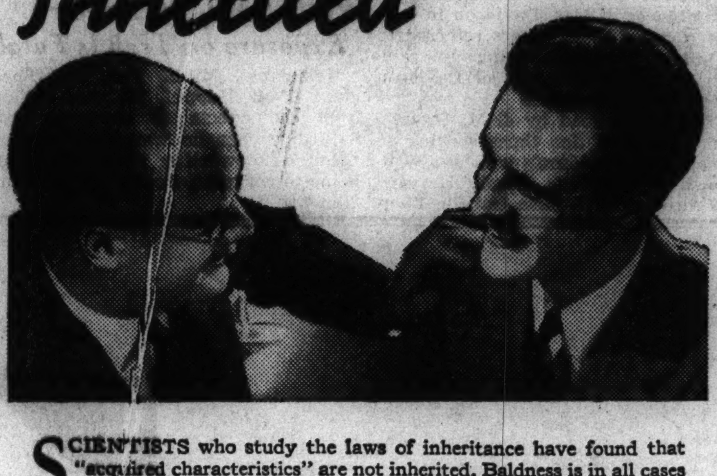
This work of Dr. Dochez is in line with other medical experiments pointing to the same common cold cause, and to a double "complex" as the mechanism of human colds.

In this double complex the invisible virus is the basic cause. Its function is to weaken the respiratory organs. This weakened, the organs are attacked by common, visible bacteria, which bring the complications familiar to cold sufferers.

Find Counterfeit Coins Circulating in Prison

Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 12.—(AP)—The manufacture and circulation of counterfeit coins within Atmore state prison farm by inmates who were members of a bogus money ring was revealed here today by United States secret service agents. It was said the prisoners had been using the spurious coins for gambling and for making purchases at the prison commissary for more than a year.

Baldness is Not Inherited



SCIENTISTS who study the laws of inheritance have found that "acquired characteristics" are not inherited. Baldness is in all cases acquired many years after birth and it is therefore agreed that it is not inherited.

Thomas case histories further prove that many men who are bald have fathers and grandfathers with good heads of hair. It is also found that many men keep good heads of hair throughout life even though their fathers were bald at early ages.

Eighty-five percent of all cases of baldness can be traced to neglect or to one or more of 14 local scalp disorders. Thomas treatment overcomes all of these local scalp conditions—ends dandruff, stops falling hair and re-grows hair on the thin and bald spots. Come in today and receive the benefit of sound advice from a Thomas expert. No charge is made for consultation nor for scalp examination. (Always in private).

The 8th WOMAN .... gets more out of life

EIGHT million women have had to always consider the time of month in making an engagement—avoiding any strenuous activities on certain days.

Today, a million escape this regular martyrdom because they have accepted the aid of Midol. A tiny tablet, white and tasteless, is the secret of the eighth woman's poise and comfort at this time.

Are you a martyr to regular pain? Must you favor yourself, and save yourself certain days of every month? Midol might change all this. Might have you your confident self, leading your regular life, free from periodic pain and discomfort.

The smallest degree of relief you might get from Midol means a great deal to your comfort.

Midol is taken any time, preferably just before the expected pain. This precaution often avoids the pain altogether. But Midol is effective even when the pain has caught you unaware and has reached its height. It's effective for hours, and it is not a narcotic.

Get these tablets in a trim little aluminum case — they are usually right out on the toilet goods counter. Or, a card addressed to Midol, 170 Varick St., New York, brings a trial box in plain wrapper.

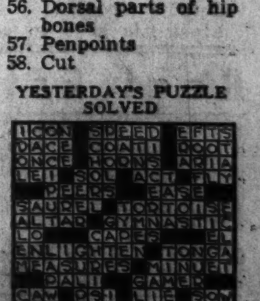
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



LEIBOWITZ'S AID IS TURNED DOWN BY HAUPTMANN

Angered by Demand for "Whole Story."

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—The case of Bruno Richard Hauptmann took an almost unbelievable turn today when Samuel Leibowitz, New York attorney, agreed to serve as counsel for the convicted kidnap-murderer of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. on condition that he "must tell the truth."

With a copy of the statement of Leibowitz in his possession, C. Lloyd Fisher, who has served as chief of the defense counsel since the withdrawal of Edward J. Reilly of Brooklyn, a short time after the Flemington trial of a year ago, called on Hauptmann in his death house cell in the state prison here.

After Fisher emerged it was learned that Hauptmann had declared, with the first burst of profanity that persons who have been guarding him for months had heard from him, that he would not change a single item of his story told in his unavailing fight for his life before a Hunterdon county jury a year ago.

Says He Can Go to Hell.

If, Hauptmann was learned to have told Fisher, Leibowitz's entry into the case was predicated upon the condition that Hauptmann must repudiate the explanation that he got the $14,600 of Lindbergh ransom money from Isador Fisch, or change any aspects of the story, then the nationally famous criminal attorney could go "plump to hell."

The prisoner's repudiation of his newly acquired attorney, even before he had had an opportunity to talk to him, came as a shock to many persons. Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, the prisoner's wife, was especially surprised. The day before her husband had agreed, in a conversation with her, to the replacement of Fisher by Leibowitz as chief of defense counsel. Gov. Harold G. Hoffman also was surprised.

As the entire story was put together, it appeared that the volunteer investigator, Lieut. Robert H. Hicks of Washington, had interested Mrs. Hauptmann in a change of counsel. Lieut. Hicks then took the matter up with Gov. Hoffman.

Hoffman Approves Him.

The name of Leibowitz was first suggested to the governor some time ago. He agreed, at that time, that an attorney of national reputation, particularly in view of Leibowitz's success in the Scottsboro case in Alabama, would be a good move, and he especially accepted the New York man.

Then Mrs. Hauptmann, on a visit to the jail cell of her husband, obtained his consent to the change of counsel. Whether dissatisfaction or desperation spurred the prisoner to his decision was not known. It was, however, pointed out that since the time that Hauptmann went to Flemington in October of 1934 Fisher, alone of all the array of counsel that he has had, had been his confidant. Fisher has made constant calls on him—daily while he was in Flemington—and on an average of twice a week since his removal to the death house. It was generally believed that Hauptmann had more confidence in his Flemington attorney than any of the others who have been in the case.

Suddenly, and without any warning to Fisher, Hauptmann consented to his wife's suggestion after she had been urged 'y Hicks and, indirectly, by Gov. Hoffman, to recommend the change.

News Leaks Too Fast.

The news of this impending change leaked before Fisher had been notified, and before Leibowitz had had time to make up his mind. Last night, when it first became known to the newspapers, Fisher was still in ignorance of any intended change, and Leibowitz denied that he was interested in the case. It could not be learned here today whether Gov. Hoffman had himself, or through one of his official representatives, talked to the New York attorney.

In New York Mrs. Hauptmann talked to Leibowitz this morning. Until the completion of that talk he had continued to deny any interest in the case. Then, at it completion, Leibowitz announced that he intended to enter the case, upon the solicitation made to him, if Hauptmann would "tell the truth."

He termed "ridiculous," the assumption that only one man, and that one Hauptmann, was involved in the kidnaping-murder-ransom crime.

Urges Hauptmann to Recant.

Further he said, according to reports with which Fisher was armed when he made an unexpected call upon the prisoner this afternoon, "I do not propose to enter this case in order to play a game of legal chess to save Bruno from the electric chair. Any person with the least bit of discernment can place little credence in the fish stories told in Bruno's behalf on the witness stand."

Leibowitz, according to informed legal opinion here, even before he had officially entered the case, had repudiated, and called upon Hauptmann to repudiate, the entire basis on which his defense was erected at Flemington, and upon which he had carried his case to the United States Supreme court.

BAR ACTS TO STAMP OUT THE BALLYHOO IN PUBLICITY ON TRIALS

The American Bar association, with headquarters at 1137 North Dearborn street, announced yesterday the formation of a special committee to cooperate with the press and the radio in the formulation of publicity standards for trials. The committee was formed indirectly, though not wholly, as a result of the ballyhoo which attended the trial of Bruno Hauptmann for the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Newton D. Baker, Cleveland lawyer and former secretary of war, accepted the chairmanship of the committee.

Other members of the committee are: J. W. Farley, Boston lawyer and newspaper publisher; John G. Jackson, New York; Merritt Lane, Newark, N. J., former chancellor of New Jersey; Oscar Hallam, former associate justice of the Supreme court of Minnesota and dean of the St. Paul College of Law; Giles J. Patterson, Jacksonville, Fla., former president of the Florida Bar association.

William L. Ransom, president of the American Bar association, in announcing the makeup of the committee, said:

"The fact is that although the incidents alleged as to the Hauptmann trial received wide attention and discussion they were not solitary nor aggravated. The real problem goes deeper and reflects a general trend."

HEIRESS' DEATH SCENE IS ISSUE IN FIGHT ON WILL

Doctor Hints Statler Girl's Body Was Moved.

Carthage, N. C., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Dr. W. W. Marr, the physician first called in the mysterious death of Mrs. Elva Statler Davidson, Statler hotel heiress, expressed belief today that she could not have fallen into the position in which she was found dead of carbon monoxide poison in her garage at Pinehurst last February.

Dr. Marr was a witness in the suit to break the purported will of the pretty 21 year old heiress in which she left the bulk of her $560,000 estate to her husband of little more than month, H. Bradley Davidson Jr., 40, Washington sportsman.

Use of "Influence" Charged.

Other heirs of E. M. Statler, wealthy hotel chain operator, contend that Davidson influenced his young wife to bequeath her property to him.

Emanuel Burch, colored butler at the Davidson home, testified yesterday that Mrs. Davidson's body was not moved before the arrival of Dr. Marr, the first physician called after the heiress' death had been discovered.

Dr. Marr described the position of the body as kneeling on the running board of the Davidson automobile, the upper part slumped on the floor board. He gave it as his opinion that the young woman could not have fallen into that posture.

Depositions Are Read.

The doctor's recall to the witness stand today interrupted the reading of numerous depositions from acquaintances of Mrs. Davidson in Boston. One of these letters referred to "Buffalo interests trying to capitalize" on the situation of Davidson after his wife's death.

The letter, read by J. M. Broughton, of counsel for those seeking to break Mrs. Davidson's will, was written by W. Barton Leach, Harvard law professor, to Miss Isabelle Baer, a friend of the heiress, after the latter's death. Leach had been Mrs. Davidson's financial adviser and is now an attorney for her husband.

"Placed in Tough Spot."

"Brad [Davidson], without fault on his part," the letter said, "has been placed in a very tough spot, and Buffalo interests are trying to capitalize on it."

Further along the letter said: "I have been unable to find anything to show Brad had anything to do with Elva's death."

A deposition of Robert D. Field, Harvard instructor in fine arts, said Miss Statler was "subject to moody spells, as we all are," and had problems growing out of her status as an adopted child.

HOLSTEIN SMASHES ALL RECORDS AS MILK AND BUTTER PRODUCER

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—"Carnation Ormsby Butter King," a nine year old pure-bred Holstein owned by the Carnation milk farms near here, tonight became the world champion milk and butter producer of all breeds.

In a 365 day test conducted under auspices of the Holstein-Friesian association of America and the agricultural colleges of Washington, Oregon and Idaho, "Daisy," as the animal is known in the stables, produced 38,606.6 pounds of milk and 1,752.5 pounds of butter. This production broke the 16 year old milk record and the 13 year old record for butter production.

Daisy's record is more than eight times that of the average cow. Every two weeks she produced her own weight in milk and more than equaled her weight in butter for a year. Her yearly menu consisted of 11,750 pounds of fresh green feed, 4,380 pounds of beet pulp, 9,125 pounds of sliced beets, 7,300 pounds of grain ration, 730 pounds of molasses, and 9,600 pounds of silage.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Frank Ridgway

Keeping Stock Warm.

February 12, 1936.

LIVE stock suffered more from cold during the last snowstorm than at any time in the memory of men who have been at the Tribune farms for many years. It was necessary to keep the horses milling around in the barns, especially the all wooden barns, at the Wheaton farm last Sunday when there was a high wind and the outside temperature stayed between 10 and 12 degrees below zero.

Temperature readings taken inside the barns over the week-end, when the wind was whistling through every crack, showed a wide variation in the different buildings. In barn No. 1, an exceptionally well constructed new brick building, the temperature went as low as 22 above zero, although heat from the horses helped to keep the barn warm. The temperature in barn No. 2, a building made of stone and wood, did not go below freezing at any time Sunday. This barn is the warmest one on the place, because much of the first story, made of stone, is under ground and the mow is full of hay. Horses and mules are both kept in this barn.

Horse barn No. 3, made entirely of wood and located on a hill, is the coldest one on the farm. Sunday the temperature in this barn went as low as 12 degrees above zero. It was necessary for the caretakers to go from stall to stall and keep the animals moving throughout most of the day to keep them warm.

In keeping the live stock comfortable during the blizzard the workers had to stay out in the barns most of the day. Despite the fact that one of the men froze his face and another froze one of his ears, every animal, including the pets, were fed, watered and bedded.

Frost has gone so deep at the Yorkville farm that most of the water pipe lines have been frozen solid four feet beneath the surface of the ground. Pipes leading from the hydraulic ram were frozen in spots Sunday, shutting off the water supply to 280 head of steers on feed at the farm. All this week it has been necessary to drive 200 head of the cattle to watering holes in a small creek in the pasture, several hundred yards from the feed lots. In many places the ice is 24 inches thick and in some of the shallow spots in the stream the water is frozen almost to the bottom. Each time the cattle are watered the holes must be chopped open with axes.

Water is being hauled in tanks for eighty head of steers. The balance of the 400 head of whitefaces on feed are watered through pipes running along the surface of the ground.

In addition to the steers on feed the herd of ten pure bred Aberdeen-Angus cows, their calves, and other milk cows must be driven daily to the watering holes in the pasture nearly a half mile from the barns.

Tuesday night every man on the farm worked until 2 a. m. in an effort to thaw out the pipes carrying water from the hydraulic ram to the live stock watering tanks. They failed to get the pipes open, although they used steam piped from a kettle through rubber hose into the main line. To avoid freezing they kept big bonfires going along the water pipe line wherever men were working.

The manager of the farm has called for outside help, hoping that some means of thawing out the pipes can be found to avoid having to dig up several hundred feet of pipes buried at least 48 inches under the frozen ground.

MRS. CORA POTTER DIES; FAMOUS ACTRESS OF '90S

Fifi McCormick's Mother Passes at Age of 76.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTE CARLO, Feb. 12.—Mrs. Cora Urquhart Brown-Potter, famous actress from 1887 to 1912, and mother of Mrs. Fowler [Fifi] McCormick of Barrington, Ill., and New York, died today in her villa at Beaulieu, after a week's illness. She was 76 years old.

During her stage career Mrs. Brown-Potter had as her leading men Kyrle Bellew, matinee idol of the '90s, and Sir Beerbohm Tree. She was an early favorite of the prince of Wales and his wife, later King Edward VII., and Queen Alexandra of England, and numbered Ellen Terry, Oscar Wilde, Robert Browning, Bret Harte, Henry Irving, and Nellie Melba among her friends.

Born in New Orleans.

Cora Urquhart was born May 15, 18[illegible], in New Orleans, the eldest of several beautiful daughters of Col. David Urquhart. He came of an old French family which once gave refuge in New Orleans to Louis Philippe, who later became king of France. The young red haired Cora was once taken to the French court and met the Empress Eugenie.

She was married in 1877 to James Brown Potter, capitalist and mining operator, who was six years her senior. He was of an old Virginia family which had produced two bishops of the Episcopal church, a college president, and several noted bankers. Their only child, Anne Urquhart Potter, who was early nicknamed "Fifi," was born in 1880.

How She Went on Stage.

The couple lived in New York and Newport in the era of great wars for social precedence. An incident in 1886 is said to have led to Mrs. Potter's turn to the stage. At a New York charity affair she was persuaded to recite "'Ostler Joe" in cockney dialect. The piece offended the sister of President Grover Cleveland, who was present, and led to an estrangement of the Potters. Mrs. Potter hurried off to London to launch her career. She took Fifi along, but Mr. Potter won custody of her a year later.

Mr. Potter secured a divorce on ground of desertion in June, 1900. In September, 1904, he married May Handy, daughter of Capt. J. A. Handy, U. S. N., of Richmond, and one of the greatest social belles of the day. The first Mrs. Potter used the stage name Mrs. James Brown Potter, which was a source of irritation to the second Mrs. Potter whenever the actress appeared in New York. As late as 1908 the story was frequently quoted that the actress would take no less than $250,000 to cease using the title.

OFFICIAL STORY OF DILLINGER'S DEATH IS TOLD

U. S. Account Challenged by Police Sergeant.

An official account of the killing of John Dillinger by federal agents on the night of July 22, 1934, as he left the Biograph theater at 2433 Lincoln avenue, reached Chicago yesterday. It was in the form of a letter from J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the federal bureau of investigation, to Charles DeLacy, editor of Police 13-13, Chicago police magazine.

The letter provoked anew the discussion and dissension that has existed since the desperado was slain. Sergt. Timothy O'Neil of the East Chicago police broke the silence he has maintained since the killing and said that he fired one of the five bullets which felled Dillinger. This was in contradiction to Hoover's assertion.

Tells of Immunity Promise.

Sergt. O'Neil also said that he heard Melvin Purvis, then head of the Chicago office of the federal bureau, and the late Samuel P. Cowley, Purvis' immediate superior, promise immunity to Mrs. Anna Sage for supplying the information which led to Dillinger's slaying.

"Dillinger was killed by special agents of this bureau," Hoover's letter said, "because on the approach of special agents to him he drew his gun."

Sergt. O'Neil corroborated this.

"There were twenty-two men surrounding the theater, five of whom were East Chicago police deputized for that evening as federal agents," said O'Neil. "When Dillinger left the theater he realized he was trapped and attempted to run, meanwhile drawing his gun.

Declares He Fired Once.

"When that happened the three men closest to him fired. I was one of the three and I fired once."

O'Neil said he was in Purvis' office when Purvis and Cowley promised immunity to Mrs. Sage, "the woman in red," for her information. Mrs. Sage and Mrs. Polly Hamilton Keele, Dillinger's last sweetheart, were with the outlaw when he left the theater.

Sergt. O'Neil said he heard the immunity promise repeated to Mrs. Sage by Cowley and Purvis in the Morrison hotel on the day after the killing.

O'Neil said he plans to sue the state of Indiana for $1,000 which he claims is due him as reward.

H. JUSTIN SMITH FUNERAL RITES HELD IN GLENCOE

Funeral services for Henry Justin Smith, managing editor of the Chicago Daily News, who died Sunday evening of bronchial pneumonia, were held yesterday at the Glencoe Union church. A simple burial service at Mount Hope cemetery followed the services.

Many notables attended the funeral of the noted journalist, author, and historian, at which the Rev. Douglas Cornell, pastor of the church, officiated. Dr. Edgar J. Goodspeed of the University of Chicago also spoke. Banks of flowers filled the room in which the services were held.

Editorial associates of Mr. Smith were active pallbearers at the church. At the cemetery the active pallbearers were immediate members of the family and close personal friends.

Honorary pallbearers included Morton A. Morganthein, Roy Munger, Howard Mann, Charles H. Dennis, John Craig, Paul R. Leach, Donald Walsh, George Hartford, Lynn E. Aldrich, Dempster MacMurphy, John Harm, Sterling North, Clyde E. Brown, Charles Goodspeed, Pierce Butler, Harold Swift, Henri C. E. David, Sigmund W. David, and Henry E. Voegeli.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Several members of Horace Heidt's troupe barely escaped with their lives in the fire that destroyed the Seneca hotel at Peoria Tuesday afternoon. The 30 Heidt bandsmen and singers, quartered on the top floor of the hotel, were packing their luggage preparatory to leaving for Decatur when they were enveloped by smoke and flames coming up from lower floors.

Roland Botts, a member of the glee club, was overcome by smoke and severly burned on the arm before rescue. He was brought to a Chicago hospital. Steve Merrill, top tenor, trapped in his room, slid four floors to safety down an outside gutter spout.

All uniforms and most of the men's overcoats and luggage were lost. Thus they appeared Tuesday evening at Decatur in whatever clothes they happened to be wearing when the fire started. They returned to Chicago yesterday and placed a rush order for new uniforms. The band opens at the Chicago theater tomorrow.

On their sponsored show at 9 tonight over WBBM-CBS they will introduce the entire Irving Berlin score of "Follow the Fleet," the new Astaire-Rogers-Hilliard picture. Sneak previews of the picture indicate that Harriet Hilliard, the radio songstress, who makes her first movie appearance in this film, nearly steals the show from Ginger Rogers. At any rate, she has been engaged for a second picture.

"Parties at Pickfair," Mary Pickford's new program, is pretty fair picking as radio fare. Presenting Mary as a hostess in her own home at Beverly Hills this show is much better suited to her talents than her earlier effort in which she attempted serious drama.

Miss Pickford is a gracious hostess. Edward Everett Horton as her first guest of honor was fully as funny as he is on the screen. On top of that Mary introduced a couple of young actors who will carry the love interest. Like Show Boat, Pickfair will have sweethearts.

Michael Raffetto will be back in the cast of "One Man's Family" Feb. 26 after an illness of six months. He plays Paul Barbour. . . . John S. Young will be Ed Wynn's stooge when he returns to the air via CBS at 8:30 tonight. Wynn will play Gulliver the Traveler in his new show.

George Olsen and Ethel Shutta are to leave the College inn late next month. They will open April 1 at the Cocoanut Grove, Los Angeles. . . . Frank Parker will appear next week and the following week with Ben Bernie and may become a permanent fixture on the program.

CARDINAL DENIES PARIS HISTORIAN FUNERAL RITES

PARIS, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Jean Cardinal Verdier, archbishop of Paris, decided today that the body of Jacques Bainville, eminent French editor and historian and member of the French academy, who died Sunday, cannot be given Roman Catholic funeral rites or burial in consecrated ground.

The decision was prompted by Bainville's part in founding L'Action Francaise, the royalist organization which long has been under papal interdiction. L'Action Francaise originally had strong Roman Catholic affiliations, seeking unification of the Roman Catholic church and the French state under a restored monarchy, but its allegedly extreme program brought about the excommunication of all its members.

When Bainville died he was administered the last sacrament by a priest, but failed to make a deathbed recantation. His will be the first instance of Roman Catholic burial actually being refused to a member of L'Action Française. Instead, he will be buried tomorrow in Marigny, where he was born.

'PAUL REVERE' OF MINNESOTA'S EARLY DAYS DIES

Hutchinson, Minn., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Al De Long, 94, frontiersman and Indian scout, Minnesota's last link with the days when settlers had to defend their homes against Indian forays, is dead.

De Long, last survivor of the battle of Acton, turning point in the 1862 Sioux outbreak, died Monday in the community he helped defend.

Word of the slaying by Indians of several white settlers in August, 1862, started De Long on his career as "frontier Paul Revere." De Long located the Indian band and guided troops to Acton. Subsequently he made long journeys to warn other isolated villages of danger from Indians.

Valentine Ball Saturday

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Jack C. Griffin is one of the young women in charge of a Valentine ball to be given at the Casino Saturday night by the North Shore auxiliary of the Chicago Maternity center. Mrs. Griffin, the former Gwen Heilman, is social chairman of the auxiliary, which always gives gay and entertaining parties. Notable among them was one given a year or two ago in Benjamin H. Marshall's studio in Wilmette.

Arrange Leap Year Parties for Extra Day

Plan Week-end of Gayety in Lake Forest.

BY JUDITH CASS.

WITH the intercalary day, Feb. 29, that comes but once in four years, falling on a Saturday this year numbers of people are making plans for leap year week-end parties. A number of Lake Foresters have planned what they are sure will be a jolly week-end, starting with cocktail parties Saturday night in several houses, then dinner and perhaps dancing at the Deerpath inn, and winter sports the next day. The junior H. Edward Manvilles are the instigators of the plan, for they are having four guests from New York that week-end, but they have dropped out of the picture somewhat due to the recent death of their little nephew, one of the three children of Count and Countess Folke Bernadotte [Estelle Manville].

Mrs. Dodge Bushnell, who moved here from New York not long ago, will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Connors this week-end and among others who will be at the Dutch treat party at the Deerpath Inn and who probably will have house guests for the two days are the Farwell Winstons, the Henry Rowleys, the William Pullmans, the junior John B. Drakes, the Albert B. Dicks, the Paul McBrides, the Charles Garlands and various ones of the Armour clan, including the Lesters, the Laurances and the Philips.

Other Leap Year Parties Announced.

Yesterday's mail brought to members of the Dunham Woods Riding club blood red announcements, ornamented with black hearts, bringing the news that "The Ladies of the Dunham Woods Riding Club invite you to the Lonely Hearts Ball Feb. 22. The Doe Line will form in the Coach House after dinner. Singleton ladies very welcome. Unescorted gents at their own risk."

The club evidently is combining Valentine day, Washington's birthday and leap year celebrations in the one party, which is certain to be a large and gay one with many who go out to the country for it spending that whole week-end at the club.

The Cornell University club of Chicago is having a leap year party, too, but it is to be on Feb. 29 at the Chicago Riding and the Casino clubs. Starting at 8:15 o'clock there will be a polo match between the Black Horse Troop and Cornell university, followed by one between the 124th Field Artillery and the Riding club. Then the Cornellians and their wives and sweethearts will go to the Casino to dance, play keno and have supper. The proceeds of the party will go to the fund for the Cornell Regional Scholarship from the District of Chicago.

William G. Strong is chairman of the committee in charge, which includes as members Harney Bassett, Longford Felske, Henry E. Gardiner, Frederick M. Gillies, Ross W. McKinstry, Leon Mandel II., Mead Montgomery, Charles M. Sailor, Hamilton Vose Jr., and Towner K. Webster Jr.

Lighthouse Aids Hold Rummage Sale Today.

Every member of the Lighthouse Volunteer Aids who is not out of the city will don her warmest clothes at an early hour this morning and hurry to 112 West Chicago avenue where the Lighthouse is holding a huge rummage sale. The sale will begin at 8 o'clock and will last all day, or until everything has been sold. Mrs. Roger Quincy White is general chairman of the event, which is to benefit the Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind.

Mrs. Paul C. Loeber Jr. and Mrs. Wade Fetzer Jr. have been in charge of securing a location for the sale, and Mrs. Rudi Ruggles is in charge of tables and wrapping. Other members who have been working hard for the last two months in preparation for the sale are Miss Priscilla Morse and Miss Betty Longstaff, who collected donations in Lake Forest, Miss Betty Forgan who brought carloads of goods in from Highland Park, Miss Helen Fulton who did likewise from Winnetka, and Mrs. Thomas King and Mrs. Wallace D. Mackenzie who made collections in Evanston.

Miss Cecile Murphy took care of the south side, and Miss Virginia Thatcher, Miss Geraldine Foster, and Miss Mary Alice Bacon collected sale goods on Chicago's north side.

THOUGHT for Thursday. If every gesture employed by Mr. Lunt and Miss Fontanne comes patly and never tardily, as one critic avers, perhaps it should have been called "The Timing of the Shrew."

THE following autobiography, by way of being a human document, was written by the Peck's bad boy of a school on the southwest side, a lad in the seventh grade, as a theme in English:

"My name is A—— P——. I am now seventeen years of age. . . My father and mother are both Italian and were both born in Italy. They both came to the United States together. They went to the same school together and both got whipped together, in fact, they both got married together.

"When I was six years old my mother told me to get rid of a dog we had. The dog's name was Jack. Jack was a very big dog. So I brought him through alleys and streets. But instead of me losing Jack I was the one that got lost and I began to cry then Jack walked away and I followed him and the dog brought me all the way home.

"I started to school when I was seven years old and so the years rolled on. Now I am 14 years old and in the fifth grade. I was sick for two months. I can't think of what kind of sickness I had but I had all my hair cut off. Boy! I looked just like a watermelon. So I did not pass. Then I went to St. M—— school. There I met a boy I knew. His name was Lester and we began to talk and acted like monkeys in a zoo. So the sister put me out.

"Then I went to La Crosse, Wis., where I stayed for two weeks. It was a farm boarding school. But I'm a city boy. So I wanted my mother to take me home and so she did. Then I went back to the R—— school and Mr. S—— took me back. I stayed there for ten minutes and I went out. Miss R—— took me back and talked to me and told me to start all over. So I did and that proved that a good talking is better than a good whipping. Since that day I've been good for two years. But then I started to bum and they wanted to lock me up. But Mrs. D—— gave me a chance to be good and this time I am sure that Mrs. D—— will not regret it. So I will end my life story."

A WOMAN approached the box-office at the Grand the other day to buy tickets for Cornelia Otis Skinner, who opens there next Monday. Due to an error in the sign arrangement, the box office man wanted to make sure which of Miss Skinner's offerings she wanted to see.

"Do you want seats for 'The Wives of Henry VIII.?'" he inquired.

"No, these are for my son," the woman answered.

Smart Swains Are Original in Their Valentines

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Unimaginative swains send the usual things, but the lad who really gets somewhere and makes the haughtiest high hat lady smile is the lad who sends the unusual valentine. He can pretend to be Crœsus, sending a luxurious cover of quilted taffeta and a pillow for the chaise longue to match, or he can win the lady's attention with a set of bright red heart buttons for her new frock or add to the dozen unbleeding heart affairs with a big open heart for a belt buckle.

A shy and timid cavalier can make a stony hearted maiden listen for his telephone call after a valentine of a trio of dancing stockings, the gay red toed variety that will peek so enticingly from between the straps of dancing sandals. Or be a practical soul and send a couple of pairs of dark heeled stockings that are taking the town by storm.

If the lady has a bag, it's no sign she wouldn't like another, especially if it is one of the newest gypsy numbers, a huge handkerchief affair tied in a double knot, ready to be slung over the arm. It will hold all the extras you have jangled in your pockets from time to time. These gypsy bags come in lace and lamé for the evening creations and in brightly colored prints for the southbound vacationist to take to the beach.

If you think jewelry will win an elusive heartbeat, try a little bejeweled and enameled ladybug pin for her suit lapel, a clip with a masque face, or a fob watch in lether, or any of the bangle bracelets with all kinds of tricky little charms such as hearts with initials or keys and the like.

And there is the good old-fashioned idea of sending enough gloves to see a hard-to-interest lady through a spring season of parties. Try the vivid colored affairs, in sulphur yellow, in cerise, in mauve, dusty pink or turquoise blue. Any or all of these bright new costume accessories are more than assured ways to any feminine heart.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Put on your old gray ear muffs and shovel your way to the Roosevelt. Because "The Tale of Two Cities"—adapted from what is thought by many to be Dickens' greatest book—is an EXPERIENCE not to be missed.

It comes from the studios that so beautifully screened "David Copperfield"—and is a picture that will stir you to the core. . . . One of the most compelling combinations of sweeping dramatic action, historical verity, spectacle and moving human incident that has ever been assembled. It thrills and stills you—and leaves you shaken and reverent. . . . You leave the theater like you were leaving a church. . . . O, I don't care how blasé you are! That's what happens to you.

This cinema classic is entirely faithful to Dickens' lengthy story without ever becoming verbose or incoherent. It plunges deeply and at once into its narrative—localed in Paris and London during the days of the French revolution—and keeps you so completely absorbed that one hundred and twenty minutes pass as an hour. WHAT direction!

The tale told—as you probably know—is of the Manettes—Dr. Manette and his daughter Lucie. The physician, imprisoned for eighteen years in the Bastille by a cruel Royalist, is released by a faithful servant. He and his daughter find refuge in London.

Charles Darnay, nephew of the man who had so wickedly wronged Manette, leaves France as a protest against his uncle's treatment of the helpless. He meets and marries Lucie. At the time his path crosses hers he is unaware that his family has been responsible for the sufferings of hers.

Sidney Carton—brilliant, bitter, hard drinking barrister—also loves Lucie. It is this love and the supreme sacrifice that Carton makes on the altar of that love, that high light the production and give it some of its most moving moments.

Never has Ronald Colman given the screen a finer characterization than his restrained, cerebrate and yet always warmly human portrayal of Carton. There had been talk of having him double for the rôles of Carton and Darnay, but the decision was wisely, I think—against it. Hard to have him die—but, after all, to die as he did was the greatest thing life had had to offer Sidney Carton.

There could be only praise for every member of the cast. Especially fine are Henry B. Walthall as Dr. Manette, Elizabeth Allan as Lucie, Basil Rathbone as the Marquis St. Evremonde, Blanche Yurka as the vengeance mad Madame De Farge, Claude Gillingwater as a solicitor, Edna Mae Oliver as Lucie's companion, and Robert Warwick as a judge. Miss Oliver and Mr. Warwick contribute several bits of rich comedy.

The storming of the Bastille; the seething mobs of the hungry; the rabble at the parties of Madame Gillotine—are unforgettable scenes. Seldom does a picture so get—and give—"feel" of its subject as does "The Tale of Two Cities."

See you soon.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

It's a brand new perfume! Highly concentrated, it cannot be used in an atomizer, but its fragrance is light and captivating.

In the east they've been going gaga over a new perfume—and now that it's arrived here we can see why. It's gay and grand and you'll pay a pretty handsome price for it. But if it's your perfume soul mate, why not? True loves never did come cheap, did they?

There's nothing very splashy about the container or even the name. None of those expensive frills. It's the perfume that the makers concentrated on—and we'd like to rise and whoop that they have brought forth something perfectly swell.

You can buy it in two sizes only, we're told. No bulk, no dram bottles of this precious stuff. It's highly concentrated and the precious oils would put the sprayer apparatus out of whack—clog it in no time. It's to be used directly on the skin, just the merest whiff at a time. The scent clings and clings and gets better and better.

At first sniff you'll think it has a distinct floral overtone, all joyous and springlike and terribly welcome these days. But as it dries on your warm flesh it takes on mysterious qualities; doesn't seem so naïve as appeared at the first blush. In fact, it gets downright sirenish, but in a discreet, truly clever fashion.

It reminds us of a gentle, soft spoken woman who at first acquaintance doesn't seem to know what the score is. Get to know her better and you find she has all the wisdom and charm of Eve.

The fascinating thing about this scent is that it stays in the light class; it isn't one bit sultry. Its charm is frothy, but always captivating. We predict a big future for it—and we can understand why it's being sensational in the east, where perfume fanciers abound.

ELEANOR NANGLE.

Florence Bernstein Presents Treasures of Jewish Music

Florence Bernstein, the soprano who appeared in recital last night at the Chicago Woman's club, has done a great deal of study among the treasures of traditional Jewish music and poetry. Her program was enriched by a generous measure of songs whose words or music or both have come down to the present day from a remote past.

The themes ranged from great solemnity [as in the "Avram, Avram"] to enchanting poetry [the "Shir Shomrim"] and gay humor. Some of the music is very fascinating, with the unearthly quality that the use of eastern modes and strange scales can give.

There is a certain universality in Jewish folklore which makes it of interest and great moment to all of the peoples who have felt the influence of this little nation. The tender and touching and completely understandable humor of the singer's "Az Ich Vollt Gevehen" and the friendliness and intimacy of her "L'Chayim Rebe" are examples to the point.

Miss Bernstein sings with conviction, but her taste is sufficient guaranty against the dangers of overdramatization. The program was not confined entirely to Jewish music but included the songs of several other countries. One whole group was Russian.

Soprano of Philadelphia Is Given Ovation at Met

New York, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Dusolina Giannini, the Philadelphia soprano who has sung the rôle of Aïda in Verdi's opera in many climes, brought her version of it to the Metropolitan Opera stage in her debut today and received an ovation from a comfortably filled house. Her performance of the Ethiopian slave made her No. 36 of the Americans to sing with the Met this season.

Chinese Holiday.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Red, pink, and white form a grand color combination for a quilt called "Chinese Holiday." It has all the charm and appearance of a modern quilt. It certainly calls to mind the gay Chinese lanterns bobbing in a breeze, and yet, with a selection of old-fashioned print materials, this same block assumes another distinct personality which ranks it with the 150 year old quilts in quaintness and mellow beauty. The patches themselves are as simple as those of the earliest pieced quilts. The ancestry of this quilt is unknown, yet, like many an individual, it has achieved success and popularity on its own merits.

For a limited period Nancy Cabot offers 10 quilt patterns of her own choice at a price of 10 cents for the group (12 cents by mail). Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street, or Tribune Tower.

I'll Never Tell

By Roy Vickers

SYNOPSIS.

Julius Saranack was murdered in his house, Hillfoot, near London. Eight uncut diamonds were stolen. Torrance Esdale was there the night he was murdered. She entered the house secretly to retrieve a letter she'd written Gerald Saranack, Julius' nephew, her childhood sweetheart. Gerald is expected back from an English governess he'd married in Spain. Torrance had heard voices and, hiding, watched as a girl secreted jewels behind a brick in the fireplace. Next day Torrance meets the girl—she's Annabelle, Gerald's wife, though the couple arrived that morning from Paris. Gerald still loves Torrance, but has been taken in by Annabelle's apparent naiveness and need of protection. Torrance confides in her American employer, Hartland Massiter. Julius Saranack was heir to the wealth of his friend, John Ellister, who had also been murdered on the same day, leaving Gerald next in line. Torrance tries to warn Gerald and shows him where the jewels are hidden—he turns them over to Annabelle. In Vanderlem, Annabelle's former employer, Torrance recognizes the man who had shadowed her. Suddenly Gerald realizes Annabelle could have flown from Paris to London and back in the six hours they'd been separated that night. To save him Torrance elopes with Gerald. Annabelle turns over the diamonds to the police, implicating Gerald, who is arrested. Annabelle sees Gerald and again convinces him of her innocence. Torrance drives to the town where she and Gerald had been to pick up their luggage. There she is approached by Vanderlem, who asks for a lift back to London. He offers to produce false witnesses to clear Gerald in return for half a million pounds.

INSTALMENT XXXIV.
SAVED BY ARREST.

"Annabelle came in the night we found the stones in the chimney piece. I was there, too. And she persuaded Gerald to let her have them, because if he were found with them he might be suspected of the murder. And as soon as Gerald and I ran away together she produced them."

"You mean, Miss Esdale, the police found out she'd got 'em and made her hand 'em over," said Vanderlem.

"Perhaps. I wasn't there. Of course!"

"That's how I figure it out. I told you she was a born fool." The tension had vanished, leaving Torrance high and dry. "Well now, Miss Esdale, I must apologize for stopping your automobile, but I was clean knocked for the moment. Maybe we can start again, unless you're too riled to carry me any farther."

Torrance touched the starter. Another two miles perhaps to Reading. It was perfectly true that he had been "clean knocked."

He did not know that Annabelle had been present when Gerald had recovered the stones. He did not know that Annabelle had given them to the police. And Annabelle had not told him who was the unknown woman who had telephoned the police.

Therefore Vanderlem and Annabelle were not working together.

Annabelle was innocent. Gerald's last chance had vanished—unless this man with his preposterous proposal to produce false evidence could procure an acquittal. Her spirits sank to zero.

"Guess if you'll be good enough to put me down in this town I'll get the train on. Sleep on my proposition and let me have your decision in the morning."

They had run into the built-up area. The powerful street lamps made visible her companion's hands. The hands of the slayer.

"You'll lose time waiting for a train. Let me take you on, Mr. Vanderlem. Perhaps I'll have made up my mind by the time we arrive."

Torrance had made up her mind already—and a part of her plan was that Vanderlem should not reach London that night.

Checked in the traffic, she half turned and looked at Vanderlem. The rat-faced man. Like a rat he would be caught in her trap. If she bungled she knew well what the penalty would be. He could kill her quite easily in the street and still make his escape.

So she thought, threading her way into the town. As soon as trafic permitted she put on speed.

"We've been dawdling rather—I'd better get a move on," he said as cheerily as if Gerald himself had been sitting beside her.

The two-seater was four years old, but was still capable of a fairly comfortable fifty-five. She coaxed it up and up until inevitably a police gong sounded behind her. At the sound of the gong Torrance increased speed.

Vanderlem turned toward her.

"What do those guys want?" he bellowed.

"I don't know. Reporters, I expect," Torrance screamed back.

The police car passed her—then drew in. There was no need for her to risk her life. She braked and let herself be edged into the curb.

"You heard the gong, miss. Your driving license, please?"

"Haven't got one."

"Name and address, please."

"Mr. and Mrs. Smith," asserted Torrance. "We're staying at the Savoy and we've got some friends in the right places, and if you make a fuss over this, my lad, you'll be made to look damn small."

"I charge him with the murder of Mr. Julius Saranack."

The police officer looked at the shabby two-seater and half winked at his colleague who had come up on the near side.

"This your car?" he asked.

"Yes, of course!"

"What's the number?"

Torrance was silent. Quite crudely she nudged Vanderlem.

"Say, why are you handing 'em that stuff?" growled Vanderlem.

"To avoid publicity," said Torrance in an undertone. "We shall get out of this for a fiver and our names won't be in the papers."

"Now, then—it's too late to alter the tale. You two get into our car," ordered the officer.

Vanderlem assumed that some kind of night court would fine him five pounds and that he could still be in London by midnight.

Together he and Torrance entered the police landaulette and five minutes later were standing in the police station before the table of the superintendent.

There was a sergeant next to the superintendent and there was a constable on duty by the door. The two police officers who had brought them in stood beside them. She and Vanderlem were almost touching. He could kill her before any of the police could seize him.

It was sheer physical terror of Vanderlem that kept her head cool. Not until he was quite certain of her full intention would he try to silence her.

"You say you are 'Mr. and Mrs. Smith,'" began the superintendent, addressing Torrance as the chief offender.

"That was a lie. My name is Torrance Esdale. And I pretended I didn't know the number of the car. It is DV-2165. It belongs to Mr. Gerald Saranack, and I took it tonight, with his permission, from the garage at Hillfoot, Callingham."

"Then you admit giving a false name to the officers on duty?"

"Yes. And I admit ignoring the gong and driving on in circumstances in which I was bound to be caught. I did it because I wished to be arrested."

The superintendent looked as if he doubted her sanity.

"You ask me to believe that you wanted to be arrested?

"Because I was very frightened of this man who is standing next to me."

She felt Vanderlem's eyes upon her, but she knew that he would not risk attacking her—yet.

"Do you mean this man attempted to assault you?"

"No."

"What, then?"

"If you will let me stand your side of the table I will tell you."

The superintendent was growing suspicious—but not of Torrance. He looked hard at Vanderlem and then:

"Very well, Miss Esdale! You can come this side of the table."

Torrance tried to obey, but her feet would not move. It was as if she were in a nightmare. The officer beside her took her by the arm. In doing so he stepped between her and Vanderlem. The spell was broken and she walked firmly to the other side of the table.

"Say superintendent," said Vanderlem. "This looks to me mighty like a matter of blackmail."

The superintendent turned to Torrance.

"Well, Miss Esdale?"

"Let him charge me with blackmail," cried Torrance and then: "I charge him with the murder of Mr. Julius Saranack of Hillfoot, Callingham."

A Grandmother Offers Modern Child Care Plan

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

We were saying yesterday that mothers will find their own way of preparing their small sons or daughters for the coming of a new baby in the family, depending upon many different factors. There is much more to it than giving a child, quite naturally and simply, information as to where babies come from.

It is of interest to women to hear how other mothers have worked this matter out, I have found. So I quoted from a letter yesterday, and today I am going to print a communication from a grandmother who is 76 years old.

"My dear Mrs. Bevans: Your article in today's paper regarding the arrival of a new baby in a home where there were other children must be my apology for writing to you and telling you how I managed.

"I was a grandmother of 74 and the youngest child—a little girl about 4—came to stay with me during the absence of the mother from home. After I returned from my first visit to the hospital my conversation ran something like this:

"'What do you think mother has with her at the hospital? A darling, tiny baby! Mothers are the ones who know best how to take care of little babies and some day she is going to bring it home.

"'While mother is resting in the hospital such a lovely nurse is waiting upon her, giving her her breakfast, lunch, and supper. Would you like me to draw you a picture of mother's room?' [Great joy!] So I, who cannot draw a straight line, drew mother in bed, with her arms raised to take the baby from the nurse! Then a picture of the home with the four children waiting for mother to come home. 'When mother gets here you are to be made the head nurse and help her take care of the baby!'

"The first reaction was—'The baby can sleep in my bed, grandma, but I will sleep next to mother!' I let this remark pass by without noticing, knowing that in the excitement of the homecoming it would be forgotten.

"I added a cap and apron to the little girl's attire, making her conscious that she was a nurse and her activities began immediately, and her opinion asked many times to carry out her importance. Only love was aroused for the little brother—not a jealous reaction of any kind.

"Pardon me for writing. I am now an old lady of 76."

What little girl's fancy wouldn't be caught by this device? And what child's attitude toward the new baby wouldn't be determined by such loving suggestion?

Each mother—or grandmother—will work this thing out in her own way. The important thing is to set the scene wisely and lovingly.

As to the other important preparations, we have a sex education booklet for your help. It contains a carefully selected list of booklets and books on answering the young child's questions. A stamped, self addressed envelope is necessary to receive it.

Arrange Leap Year Parties for Extra Day

Plan Week-end of Gayety in Lake Forest.

noon of entertainment for the blind men at the Lighthouse once or twice a month, and this afternoon Mrs. Laura Bolton is to give one of her delightful programs there.

Mme. Irina Khrabroff will give an illustrated lecture on "The Abandoned Gardens of Dalmatia" this morning at the Woman's Athletic clubs. Mme. Khrabroff's interest in gardens originated in her youth, which was spent largely on the country estate of pre-revolutionary Russia.

Luncheons at Cradle After Welfare Lecture.

Mrs. Andrew McNally, Mrs. Elias Lyman Jr., Mrs. Charles G. Little, and Mrs. John W. Leslie will be among those entertaining at luncheon today at the Evanston Cradle after the lecture on defensive bidding which the Evanston senior center of the Infant Welfare society is sponsoring this morning in Mrs. George B. Dryden's ballroom. This is the first of a series of three lectures to be given by Mrs. William B. Baker, the others following next Thursday and a week from Thursday.

Another contribution to the work of the Evanston center will be made the afternoon of Feb. 28 by a group of Evanston girls who are holding a card party and fashion show at the Evanston Country club. Proceeds of the party will go to a cod liver oil fund for underprivileged babies.

Miss Mary Curtis is chairman of the party, which is being given by the group for the third consecutive year.

Mrs. Logan to Give Tea for Penwomen.

Mrs. Frank G. Logan is opening her home at 1150 Lake Shore drive for a tea and musical for the Chicago branch of the National League of American Penwomen at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Mrs. Lillian Boguslawski will accompany Ruth Lyon, who will sing two new poems by Mrs. Logan and for which the music was written by Mrs. Boguslawski. Mrs. Raymond Redheffer will speak.

Mrs. Frederick Stock, Mrs. Charles H. Swift, and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter have been appointed by the new board of directors and the president, Herbert E. Hyde, of the Cliff Dwellers, to be in charge of the Friday tea the club has each week for the soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Gitta Gradova, pianist, will be the especial guest this week.

Tomorrow is Valentine day and there are any number of parties planned to celebrate the event in schools and homes in every part of the city and suburbs, but no party is anticipated by the very young any more than that the Hollins college benefit committee has planned for Saturday.

The children who attend the morning or the afternoon performance of the Clare Tree Major Children's theater in the Studebaker are invited to meet the actors and actresses in "The Secret Garden" on the stage immediately after the performance, and there have a valentine party.

Mrs. Graham Aldis is having a party for her children that day and Mrs. Moise Dreyfus is going to have fourteen young guests.

Plan Week-End Parties for Francis Froelicher.

Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen of 1430 Astor street is entertaining at tea Saturday afternoon for Francis Mitchell Froelicher, headmaster of the Fountain Valley school in Colorado Springs, who will spend the week-end in Chicago. Mr. Froelicher will speak at 3:30, after which tea will be served.

Tomorrow night Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Scribner will give a dinner at their home in Deerfield for Mr. Froelicher, after which a number of their friends will come in to hear him speak. Belding Scribner is a student at the Fountain Valley school.

The Russian Trio's final concert in a series of three will be given this coming Saturday in the home of Mrs. Americus Callahan, instead of last Saturday as we said in our column of that date. The program will start at 3:30 o'clock.

Party Sunday for Mrs. Russell Post.

The John W. Valentines have sent out invitations to a cocktail party on Sunday afternoon which they are giving for Mrs. Russell Post. Mrs. Post, who is the former Emily Lord, now lives in New York, and she is arriving on Sunday to spend a few days in Chicago.

The Kenwood Social Service club is giving a tea next Monday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Henry Cummins on Woodlawn avenue that will be in the nature of a christening for the club's Thrift shop, at 1461 East 55th street, which has been renamed "The Golden Goose." Every one who comes to the tea and musical will bring a gift for the Golden Goose, later to be sold in the shop.

Aside from the revenue obtained from the thrift shop, the club sponsors an annual dance to raise funds for the Infant Welfare society. This year's party, to be known as the Golden Goose ball, will be held on April 18 at the Palmer house.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Maher are taking advantage of the fact that many country residents are going to be in town Monday night for the opening of "Porgy and Bess" to give a buffet dinner party for some of their Lake Forest friends. The opening has been taken over as a benefit by the board of the North Shore Animal shelter, of which Mrs. Maher is a member.

Among others who will entertain at dinner Monday night and later take their guests to the Erlanger theater are the Walter Kirks, the senior Byron Harveys, the John A. Carpenters, the John Roots, the Ogden Kettings, the Arthur Farwells, the young John Farwells, the Joseph Ryersons, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mr. and Mrs. Morris L. Johnston, and the Henry Babsons.

Simplicity for Full Figures

WOMAN'S DRESS.

If you are the least bit overweight you have a silhouette problem in selecting your wardrobe. One of the important things to remember is to choose styles which are exceedingly simple, and to adopt colors which are slenderizing. This pattern, No. 2547, is the perfect answer to this problem. Its lines are straight and plain, and it appears to best advantage in black or navy blue. For spring you may prefer short sleeves, and this frock provides those, too.

Unrelieved dark colors are not always sprightly enough for one's taste after a long, dreary winter. This dress is aware of that fact, and adopts contrast in white or aqua on the V neckline, simple sleeves, and belt.

This frock is easy to make. Even if you are an amateur at sewing, you will enjoy creating it.

Style No. 2547 is designed for size 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3⅛ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

New and timely as the "first robin." A veritable tonic for weary wardrobes, the spring and early summer edition of the Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions. In it are presented all types of daytime clothes, "date" frocks, evening dresses, and special sections devoted to slenderizing models, house frocks, and scores of styles for juveniles. The booklet now is on sale for 15 cents, 10 cents when ordered with a pattern. Address Chicago Tribune, P. O. box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Modern Daughters Insist Mothers Be Well Groomed

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The complaint of a mother in a recent day's mail indicates that mama, no matter what her virtues, must concede to her daughter's plea to brighten herself up.

"They've been making my life miserable here lately," the mother reports. "They even have coerced their dad into taking their side in the family debate!"

Well, why not step right along with the home gang, mother? Every one likes the gray haired woman in flattering colors of both dress and makeup as opposed to the woman who goes on looking eternally like a cold, gray day. Besides, you may as well give in at once, for when the daughters and dad all are allied against you, you're going to have to line up eventually.

By flattering colors we don't mean giddy ones. Just nice, warming tones or bright touches added to the conservative colors dear to the hearts of so many middle aged mothers. And makeup, too! Don't be chilling, whatever you do. Gray haired women often are just that. Sometimes they're fairly dingy. It's grand to have all the moral virtues, but it appears that even these have to be presented according to the modern code.

Take hair that is grown dingy and eyebrows gone colorless and, probably, ungroomed, and the dullish skin that often completes the facial picture. Add a colorless costume with never a bright touch to it and it isn't the most pleasant picture in the world for the family to confront. Of course, they will love you, but you want them to admire you, too. Get the silvery sheen in the hair. There are ways of getting it without risk to hair or reputation.

Groom the eyebrows. You don't have to pluck them to a fine line. But keep them moderately slim in outline and wild hairs cleared off. Get a powder and cheek rouge that will give a glow to ashen or sallow skin, such as a peach shade, perhaps. Don't be afraid to step out of the terribly conservative class of dark rouge users. The purplish cast there in often is the wrong shade to adopt. A rose shade is better. The dark lipstick, like the dark rouge, has the purplish cast that should be avoided.

Ice Cream Is Light Touch in Winter Menus

Here Are Some Clever New Recipes.

"Refrigerator Cakes and Cookies," a booklet containing recipes for sixteen refrigerator cakes and ten refrigerator cookies, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

No need to let the freezing trays of your refrigerator take a vacation, just because the mercury is down in the dumps. Frozen desserts frequently offer just the right happy note of lightness to heavy winter meals.

F'rinstance, after a hot, hearty, comfortable dinner, try serving ginger ice cream. It's a new one [at least to us] and just as exciting in flavor as it is unusual. It's made like this:

Ginger Ice Cream.

¼ cup chopped preserved ginger
1-3 cup water
⅓ cup sugar
3 egg yolks
½ tablespoon granulated gelatin
1 tablespoon cold water
1 pint heavy cream

Combine the ginger, chopped finely, with the water, sugar, and slightly beaten egg yolks in the top of a double boiler. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until the thickened mixture coats the spoon. Remove from heat immediately. Soften the gelatin in the cold water, and add to the hot custard mixture. Cool and fold in the cream, which has been whipped until it stands in peaks. Pour into the tray of a mechanical refrigerator, and freeze as rapidly as possible, without stirring. If desired, serve with a sauce of sweetened, chopped, cooked, dried apricots.

Here's another chilly thriller to top off a substantial winter meal.

Pistachio Ice Cream.

2-3 cup sweetened condensed milk
½ cup water
1 teaspoon almond extract
1 cup heavy cream
Green vegetable coloring
¼ cup chopped pistachio nut meats
1 egg white

Blend together the sweetened condensed milk, cold water, and almond extract. Chill. Whip the cream to the consistency of a thick custard, and fold into the chilled mixture. Add the coloring to tint a delicate green, and the chopped nut meats. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg white. Place in freezing tray and freeze as quickly as possible, beating thoroughly when the mixture is about half frozen.

Another smooth, finely grained ice cream made with sweetened condensed milk is a pineapple mint combination, especially good for February entertaining. It's made in this way.

Pineapple Mint Ice Cream.

2-3 cup sweetened condensed milk
½ cup pineapple juice
1 teaspoon spearmint extract
1 cup heavy cream

Blend the sweetened condensed milk with the pineapple juice and spearmint extract. Creme de menthe, 1 tablespoon, may be substituted for the spearmint extract if desired. Chill. Whip the cream to a custard-like consistency and fold into chilled mixture. Freeze quickly until mushy, then beat well and return to freeze firmly.

According to CULBERTSON

[Mr. Culbertson is acting as referee and reporter for a "grudge" bridge game. By general agreement he fines the players for their errors according to degree of stupidity: Class A errors cost them $1; class B, $2.50; class C, $5; class D, $10. This is the third hand in the series.]

"You're both vulnerable now," I pointed out to the players. "Watch your bidding. I'm going to be pretty severe with a rotten vulnerable bid." I was beginning to enjoy my omnipotent job. For years I, in common with most bridge players, had dreamed blissfully of meting out punishment to partners, and while it is true that this punishment usually took the soul-satisfying form of boiling in oil, the less sadistic substitute of money fines was at least partial fulfilment. This was the next hand.

The bidding:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 Sp.
Pass	2 Di.	Pass	2 N. T.
Pass	3 N. T. [final bid]

South opened the eight of clubs, declarer's nine won the trick. The ace and a small diamond then were played, North holding up his king for some ridiculous reason. A third round put North on lead and he now underled his spade ace, the only play that could put declarer on lead. A heart finesse was successful, and two more rounds of diamonds were played. South, to avoid a throw-in play, discarded down to two hearts, two clubs, and one spade. But a club lead from dummy put him on lead and he had the hopeless choice of setting up declarer's king of spades or leading a heart, which would give dummy two heart tricks. The contract was made with ease.

All the players looked expectantly at me for my dicta.

"Well, gentlemen," I began, figuratively rubbing my hands, "here is where the kitty gets some nourishment! We'll begin with East. Your play of the hand was terrible! Five dollars, please!"

"But I made the contract!" protested East.

"You did," I agreed, "and for a reason that will cost Mr. North $5!"

At this point North let out a howl. "What could I do?" he demanded.

"Let's start with declarer's play. An estimate of necessary tricks would indicate that four diamonds and five other tricks must be won to fulfill the contract. The five could be made up in different ways: Three hearts and one in each black suit; or two spades, two hearts, and one club; or even two clubs, two hearts, and one spade. But East sacrificed all three possibilities by promptly ridding his hand of entries. He should have led the spade king at the second trick and, if the ace held off, attempted to cash another spade. He then should have taken the heart finesse. The diamond suit always could be established and reached with heart entries. There was no hurry about that!

"But East threw the contract away and North promptly threw it back. There was no reason to hold off the second diamond lead. The king should have won and the ace of spades been laid down. After that the third diamond would have locked the dummy on lead. If declarer had a sure club or heart entry the defenders' position would be hopeless. North should have realized this and played for the one chance."

"Pay up, you dubs!" said South and West in perfect unison.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: What is the correct opening bid, first hand, vulnerable, on the following hand: ♠ A K 5 2, ♥ 5 4, ♦ K 3 2, ♣ 6 4 3 2?

Answer: The hand is too weak in playing tricks to open, in spite of the two and a half honor tricks.

Famed Inness Landscapes on Exhibit in City

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

A retrospective exhibition of landscapes by George Inness is current in the Findlay galleries, 424 South Michigan avenue. It is an unusually fine show and one that makes one glow with pride. "Here," one can say, "is an American painter second to none." Corot, the famous French landscape painter, falls into step beside, not ahead of, Inness as the roll of his paintings unfolds.

George Inness was born in 1825 and died in 1894. He continued to paint magnificent landscapes up to the time of his death. His last picture, "The Woodchopper at Dusk," is one of his most glorious. In his early period Inness painted in the fashion of the Hudson River school. His colors were brisk and solid, his horizons definite. Little by little impressionism influenced his technique and his manner deepened and warmed.

He was passionately fond of gray skies before a storm, of sudden sunlight striking across a rainy field, of green, wet marshes, and orchard trees. An old house, a sunken road, trees, fields, sky, clouds, a heron, a solitary man, and you have the principles upon which Inness engaged to produce a picture.

That herons were a first love of his among birds is suggested by their introduction in "Phantom Sea," one of the loveliest of the early paintings. Note the bird in the shadow of the rock. These small early pictures are a symphony in themselves. String them like beads in your memory: "Phantom Sea," "Alexandria Bay," "The Old Bridge Near Newburg."

Then take the larger jewels, the "Approaching Storm" [1893], a marvelously lovely thing; "White Turkeys" [in a Renoir mood], "View from My Studio, Tarpon Springs, Florida," "Summer Silence," and the magnificent "Woodchopper at Dusk," and realize through them the power that was Inness.

Trust of Child in Parent Aids in Adolescence

Avoids Runaway Tendency of the Teen Age.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The fortunate recovery of a 13 year old runaway recently revives the home problem of children of this age and the great need of parental watchfulness, understanding, and guidance.

The child spoken of, with $5 on her person, hitch-hiked to the big city, where she hoped to be lost forever to home and school discipline and correction. The particular youngster was developed to such an extent that she appeared five years older than her age. She had "flunked" in exams and felt the disgrace keenly.

The most difficult years for parents of daughters are those between 13 and 16. Under ordinary circumstances an extraordinary sensitiveness besets the age. If there exists a peculiarity of size, say, or other characteristics that set them apart from the other girls, the period becomes more trying both to the youngster and the parent in charge. How to handle the youngster during this trying era becomes an individual problem, of course. But there are a few general rules for the guidance of parents.

First, they must realize that theirs is not an isolated problem. It's a common one. The youngsters' physical being is undergoing a change, which, in itself, sensitizes them unduly. They became exceedingly self-conscious and, at the same time, engrossed in self.

With an unsympathetic parent they revert more and more into themselves, living in a world of false romance and adventure which, in some instances, develops into an attempted flight from all home restraint.

Parents with the close confidence of their youngsters up to this point have the easiest time of it, although often they are tried beyond measure.

Broadway Laughs at Drama Dealing with Wynekoop Case

New York, Feb. 12.—Lucille La Verne, whose characterization in "Sun-Up" brought her renown a decade ago, returned to Broadway tonight as a woman physician in "Black Widow," an assortment of poisonings, shootings, and stabbings.

Faintly reminiscent in setting of the Wynekoop case in Chicago, the play recounts a series of crimes committed by the woman doctor in an effort to cover up the death of a patient.

The first two acts are restrained, but to provide a thrilling climax, in which the physician attempts to poison and shoot her son's bride, the dramatist—Samuel John Park—succeeded only in bringing laughter from the first night audience.

SEALER 'WILLING' TO LET IN CHEAP STRIP MINE COAL

Just Enforcing Law, He Says of Barriers.

James M. O'Keefe, Chicago city sealer, in an interview yesterday agreed to a proposal that he initiate some scheme whereby Chicago coal consumers can benefit by the proximity of newly developed strip mines in Grundy and La Salle counties. He is accused by the miners and operators in these fields 90 miles from the loop of protecting Chicago fuel merchants by an artificial barrier to truck movement of coal.

"I am merely enforcing the ordinance in regard to weights and measures," said Mr. O'Keefe, who was appointed last February. "It protects Chicago dealers and it likewise protects Chicago buyers of coal.

Morris Weighmaster Out.

"When I took office more than a thousand tons of coal was being trucked into Chicago on some days from these upper Illinois river valley mines. There had been a licensed and bonded Chicago weighmaster stationed at Morris, Ill.

"I didn't renew the license of this weighmaster because it is too far for me to send a deputy to inspect the scales, and the haul is too long for us to watch the truckers to see that they don't dump part of their loads after leaving the scale and before delivering in Chicago."

"In Chicago," he was asked, "do you have enough deputies to see that a driver does not dump part of his load after leaving the scales at his coal yard and before making delivery?"

"Of course we're short of help and cannot watch every truck," he replied, "but we certainly haven't enough help to patrol the 90 miles of highway from Morris."

"Wouldn't it be possible for the truck to be weighed full on a Chicago scale after arriving here and then to be weighed empty after it had made its delivery?"

Insists of Reloading.

"That wouldn't comply with the ordinance," said O'Keefe. "According to the ordinance, the truck must be weighed on a Chicago weighmaster scales first empty and then full, even when it entails extra handling."

"Do yards in Chicago suburbs follow this ordinance in delivering in Chicago?"

"There's some kind of reciprocal agreement that was arranged before I took office."

Admits Protecting Dealers.

"In the same way, couldn't we accept the weight certificates from the state's scales at the mines?"

"But," he replied, "we still wouldn't be able to watch the trucks moving over 90 miles of highway."

[Fewer than a dozen deputies are assigned to watch coal trucks within Chicago, moving over 3,631 miles of streets and 912 miles of paved alleys.]

"I'm willing to work out some scheme whereby there would be no barrier to Chicagoans who want to buy directly from these nearby mines," O'Keefe concluded. "But I want to do it in such a way as not to work a hardship upon the Chicago dealers who pay city taxes. And I don't want to do anything until the Supreme court rules on the validity of the Chicago ordinance."

Such an opinion from the Supreme court is expected soon in a case taken to the tribunal by the Morris Coal and Mining company.

Ten operators of fifteen mines in Grundy, La Salle, and Will counties met at Morris yesterday and organized the Illinois Valley Coal Operators' association to fight the restraints on their trade with Chicago. They are circulating a petition among would-be Chicago buyers of their coal, appealing to Mayor Kelly, the city council, the sealer's office, the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, the Chicago Association of Commerce, Gov. Horner, and legislators to help modify the Chicago weighing ordinance.

Push Crow as Game Bird So They'll Be Killed Off

Tulsa, Okla., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Crows—shot and burned by hundreds for years as worthless enemies of crops—were offered on the market here today at $1.50 a dozen. A move is under way to promote the crow as a game bird, to help in the farmer's war against the pest. A "crow dinner" last night was praised by society women, doctors, and domestic science teachers.

End Bad Cough Quickly, at One Fourth the Cost

Home-Mixed! No Cooking! Easy!

Millions of housewives have found that, by mixing their own cough medicine, they get a much more effective remedy. They use a recipe which costs only one-fourth as much as ready-made medicine, but which really has no equal for breaking up distressing coughs.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. The syrup is easily made with 2 cups sugar and one cup water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and makes the most effective remedy that money could buy. Keeps perfectly and children love its taste.

Its quick action in loosening the phlegm, helping clear the air passages, and soothing away the irritation, has caused it to be used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

Pinex is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its soothing effect on throat membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

GRILL MARGIOTTI FOR FOUR HOURS IN LIBEL TRIAL

Admits Knowing of Partners' Deal.

Washington, Pa., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Charles J. Margiotti, attorney general of Pennsylvania, underwent a cross-examination of four and a half hours today in the trial of his criminal libel suit against the Philadelphia Inquirer, its president, Charles A. Tyler, and its editor, John T. Custis.

The questioning dealt with alleged activities of his law partners in tax collection cases and with his appointment of lawyers to the state pay rolls, matters referred to in a story published in the Inquirer on Sept. 29. It was on the basis of this four column article, seeking to link some of his law partners with an alleged plan to collect delinquent personal property taxes for counties for a fee of up to 40 per cent, that Mr. Margiotti filed his suit.

Called "Tax Fee Grab."

The Inquirer in its headline had referred to the plan as a "tax fee grab." During the cross-examination by Ralph B. Evans, chief defense counsel, the attorney general admitted knowledge of a tax collection contract made by his law partners jointly with Samuel Wilson of Clarion county with the Venango county commissioners and said it originally called for a 40 per cent contingent fee. This was later changed, he testified, to a 15 to 30 per cent contingent fee contract.

Further questioning brought replies that he had conferred with the commissioners before they made the original agreement and that he also had conferred on the provisions of the substitute contract.

The attorney general said he thought a 15 to 30 per cent contract was a fair one on which his partners should collect taxes. He testified that he knew the state fiscal code provides for fees ranged from 2½ to 10 per cent for collection of delinquent state taxes.

Doesn't Know How Many.

In reply to further questioning Margiotti said he knew of "no record breaking galaxy" of lawyers having been added to the state pay roll, as the Inquirer charged, but he was unale to give the exact number of lawyers employed.

Evans rebuked him several times, saying at one point "we will go along faster if you answer my question after I ask it—not the question you think I'm going to ask you next."

Sebastian C. Pugliese, one of the attorney general's law partners, occupied the stand for a few minutes later in the day, explaining that the $36,000 fee in the Venango county tax suit was to be divided equally between Wilson of Clarion county and the law firm of Pugliese and Evans. This firm, it was brought out yesterday, consists of partners of Margiotti but the attorney general himself is not a member of the firm.

Postponement of the trial until Monday morning was agreed upon tonight when word was received here of the death of Mrs. Fortuna Margiotti, mother of the attorney general.

SCOTTISH PARTY URGES EDWARD II. AS NAME OF BRITISH MONARCH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The Scottish National party is appealing to all Scottish societies to support a petition to King Edward VIII, praying that he should be known as "Edward II. of Great Britain."

The party, it was explained, feels that to allow the British king to take the numeral of his succession from former numbers relating to England is a breach of the treaty of union with Scotland. The matter will be considered by St. Andrew's society at the annual meeting this month. Similar petitions were submitted when Edward VII. succeeded to the British throne.

[The union of Scotland and England under the name of Great Britain went into effect May 1, 1707.]

'TIRED' BUSINESS MEN ADVISED TO GIVE UP IN MEXICO

President Outlines His Labor Views.

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 12.—"Employers who are fatigued by Mexico's social and economic struggle can turn over their industries to the workers or the government—that would be patriotic. But stoppage of activities cannot be countenanced."

This ultimatum was delivered by President Lazaro Cardenas at a midnight conference with the Central Owners' association of Monterrey. He had gone there to investigate a two day stoppage of business and industry in protest against labor trouble attributed to communists.

Cardenas found the labor trouble itself comparatively unimportant. Its importance lay in the controversy over whether it had arisen from communist agitation, from excessive demands by labor or from the attitude of employers.

The President's Views.

The President's views are reflected in a summary published today by El Nacional, the organ of the dominant national revolutionary party.

There is emphasized first the necessity for coöperation between the government and workers and employers for the settlement of labor disputes and the avoidance of strikes and walkouts. Within the scope of such negotiations, it is stated, should come not only arbitration of questions of wages, hours, and working conditions, but also matters affecting the workers' social environment.

The proposal that there be a single national labor union, through which the workers might give more effective expression to their legitimate demands, is said to have met with the objection from the Monterrey employers that under such a system a minor labor difficulty might readily develop into a nation-wide general strike.

To this the president is said to have replied with the assurance that the government would help the workers "obtain their just rights," but would not "permit them to make exaggerated demands."

Hopes to Save Industry.

The president, it is stated, emphasized that it was not in the interest of the government to destroy industry and commerce, from which it drew its principal revenues. The intention was, he declared, rather to save industry and commerce from destruction through disagreements between its own dissident factors.

Labor troubles in Monterey and in Mexico generally, it is asserted, cannot be blamed on communist agitation. Communists are said to be a decided minority, too weak to offer any serious menace to the nation's institutions.

The president is represented as having taken the attitude that communists are far less dangerous than "fanatics who have murdered school teachers for the sole crime of teaching the government program of Socialist education, fanatics who will not comply with our laws and revolutionary program."

AMOUNT SPENT FOR EDUCATION IN CITIES FALLS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—(AP)—A per capita cut in expenditures for education in the nation's larger cities since 1926 was reported today by the census bureau.

Lumping all cities of 100,000 population or over, the bureau reported $14.03 was expended in the fiscal year 1934; $14.46 in 1933, and $14.67 in 1926.

Previously the bureau had released figures on per capita gross debt for the same cities, showing a cut of 72 cents in 1934 from 1933, but a gain of $34.45 from 1926.

The bureau gave no official comment on either set of figures. Experts suggested, however, that education usually feels the budget knife first and is cut hardest.

Proportionately, payments for operations and maintenance of schools dropped from 35.6 per cent in 1926 to 31.4 in 1933, and 30.2 in 1934, as compared to payments for the operation and maintenance of the cities' general departments.

The total expenditures of the 94 cities in 1934 for education operation and maintenance were $526,864,320.

Paterson, N. J.; Newark, N. J.; Yonkers, N. Y., and Rochester, N. Y., the latter two only a cent apart, spent the most per capita in 1934. In 1933 Yonkers led, followed by Newark and Paterson. In 1926 Los Angeles was first, Yonkers second, and Springfield, Mass., third.

Miami, Fla., spent the least in 1934. Chicago spent $10.79 in 1934, $11.90 in 1933, and $13.45 in 1926.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN, Feb. 12.—The United States hocky team, with a 1 to 0 decision over Austria in its second match of the second round robin series, today was the only American team to score a victory in the seventh day of the fourth winter Olympic games. Meanwhile United States skaters, skiers, and bobsledders could collect no more than 4 points in their events, while their rivals from Switzerland and the Scandinavian countries were smashing records right and left.

The American hocky team, favored to win easily from Austria, received more opposition than it had expected, Goalie Tom Moone being extended by the Austrian forwards several times. Jack Garrison scored the winning goal on a pass from Paul Rowe in the final 15 seconds of the second period. The Americans will meet the Swedish team in their final second round game tomorrow.

Canada Triumphs, 15 to 0.

In the other hocky matches today Canada, defending champion, overwhelmed Hungary, 15 to 0; Czechoslovakia defeated Sweden, 4 to 1, and England, conqueror of Canada yesterday, battled three extra periods for a 1 to 1 tie with Germany.

The United States was shorn of one title when its bobsledders could dc no better than fourth and sixth as the four man event over the treacherous Olympic chute was completed. The first two places were captured by Switzerland, Pierre Musy, son of a former president, piloting the winning sled, while Reto Capadrutt, a hotel keeper, who finished second, broke the Olympic record on his second run of the day.

Meanwhile Ivan Ballangrud of Norway, considered the best of the speed skaters here, was fulfilling the predictions of his suporters that he would win the 5,000 meter speed event easily by lowering the 12 year old record for the distance by 20 seconds. America's best in the race consisted of 11th and 15th places.

Satre Finishes 35th.

In the 18 kilometer cross country ski run, the United States' leader, Magnus Satre of Salisbury, Conn., finished 35th to be the first American home. The arduous journey was won by Artur Larsson of Sweden.

Sonja Henie of Norway, queen of the world's figure skaters since she was in her teens, left no doubt that she was bound for her third straight Olympic title, finishing the compulsory school figures with a total of 251.6 points, nearly four points better than Cecile Colledge of England. Maribel Vinson of Boston, the American champion, was sixth with a total of 231.9.

Germany Retains Lead.

Despite the fact that its athletes failed to score a point for the second consecutive day, Germany maintained its place at the head of the unofficial point standing, with a total of 97. Norway, which has featured the competition for two days, climbed to second place with 70 points. The United States now is seventh with 10½ points.

Switzerland's first and second in the four man bobsled gave it a total of 25 points. The two American sleds, piloted by J. Hubert Stevens and Francis Tyler of Lake Placid, N. Y., finished fourth and sixth, respectively. Each made a determined effort to gain the ground it lost in the first two runs yesterday, Stevens finishing only 4.28 seconds back of

O'MAHONEY WINS FROM BROWNING WITH A TOE HOLD

Danno Shows New Trick —Puffing Cheeks.

Danno O'Mahoney, heavyweight wrestling champion, defeated Jim Browning of Verona, Mo., a former claimant of the crown, in 27 minutes 51 seconds at the Chicago Stadium last night. Browning conceded the fall, which was accomplished with a toe hold.

Fans numbering 2,500 paid $3,361 to see the match.

Indication that the match was drawing to a close became apparent after 25 minutes when Browning limped away from the champion, holding his right knee. Few knew what had caused Jim's knee to become injured. He made no secret of the fact that it had been injured, however.

Browning served as a straight man last night. This was obvious soon after the struggle had started, when he failed to register any semblance of pain while Danno presumably used considerable pressure with a wristlock. At one point Jim clamped a toe hold, and Danno grimaced, and occasionally emitted a loud grunt. After sufficient time had expired the champion casually pushed Browning through the ropes, breaking the hold.

Swell, Danno, Swell!

Besides mastering the art of grunting, Dan blows and puffs now, swelling his checks as if blowing up a balloon. This part of his repertoire was missing when he last appeared at the Stadium in December.

Hans Steinke, the German Oak and Jules Strongbow, a newcomer from Oklahoma, wrestled 20 minutes to a draw in the opening bout. They supplied sufficient comedy to put the gathering into the proper frame for an enjoyable evening.

Howard Blazer, Wisconsin heavyweight, was unveiled for the first time in Chicago, in the next bout against Pat Murphy. Murphy did his utmost to make the match entertaining, but Howard almost spoiled his act by failing to take advantage of an opening. He corrected this mistake a few seconds later, throwing Pat with a reverse arm and body lock.

Murphy was not sure that their contribution had thoroughly satisfied the fans, however. So he injected a little additional humor by jumping to his feet, closing his eyes and shaking his clenched fists to the tune of "No, No, I wasn't thrown." The fans appreciated this extra bit of artistry and applauded its delivery. This appeased Murphy and he left the ring, bearing the expression of one pleased that he hadn't overplayed his part.

Kirchmeyer Throws Kolp.

Don Kolp, Milwaukee representative, wasn't given much of an opportunity to display his wares against Roland Kirchmeyer. Kolp, substituting for Pete Mehringer, was thrown in 19:43 with a flying scissors.

George Zaharias, the old master of histrionics, appeared in fine form in the semi-final. He put on one of his best wrestling dramatizations against Ray Richards before pinning the Chicago Bears' football player in 20:04 with a body press. Zaharias wasted no time incurring the enmity of the spectators. He threw Richards to the canvas, sat on him and slapped him in the face. Eventually Ray got to his feet and George started running with Ray in hot pursuit.

Richards unleashed a series of flying tackles and George left the ring on his own power. Upon his return Ray floored him with several body slams. At this point George was at his best. Pouting like a small boy being refused a piece of candy, eyes bearing a frightened look, Zaharias finally stood off Ray by pawing at him with his left. He tossed Ray around a little, subjecting him to apparently severe punishment. This continued with a little change in the routine until the match was ended.

Martin Balks, but Says He's 'No Holdout'

Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Pepper Martin has rejected the 1936 contract proffered by the St. Louis National league baseball club but he insisted tonight he's no holdout.

Holdout, explained the Cardinal fielder who stops ground balls with his chest, is a nasty word. He put it this way:

"We have had a little misunderstanding about my contract. That is all. I think it will be settled soon."

Martin, who lives here and is vice president of the Oklahoma City club of the American Hocky association, did not care to discuss the terms of the rejected contract.

He is reported to have sent three contracts back to the Cardinal management.

A reliable source said the latest contained no clauses which would prevent Martin from indulging in another hobby during the baseball season, that of midget automobile racing.

The management last season frowned on Martin's enthusiasm for the sport and the Pepper at that time said he would give it up rather than let it interfere with his baseball career.

Pepper was perturbed at reports he might be a holdout. "I don't know how that story got out," he said. "I'm ready to play baseball right now. I've kept in condition by hunting."

Reports said that he had been offered the same salary, $11,000, as last year.

The Cardinals will report at Bradenton, Fla., for the opening of spring training on Feb. 23.

"And I'll be there," Martin said.

DI MAGGIO SIGNS CONTRACT WITH NEW YORK YANKS

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—The salary dispute between the New York Yankees and Joe Di Maggio, prize recruit outfielder of the San Francisco Seals was settled today when Di Maggio announced that he had sent his signed contract to the club. It was the third contract he had received from the Yanks, but he refused to reveal its terms, beyond saying that he was well satisfied with it.

JIM JORDAN SIGNS.

New York, Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Jim Jordan, utility infielder, today sent his signed contract to the Brooklyn Dodgers, officials of the club announced. The Dodgers also said that Russell Olsen, recruit shortstop from Sacramento, has been sent to Davenport of the Western league on option.

Cornell Eyes Spears in Hunt for New Coach

New York, Feb. 12.—(AP)—In the search for a successor to Gil Dobie as head football coach, Cornell university has so far received close to 100 applications, including a surprise nomination in behalf of Dr. Clarence W. Spears, Wisconsin coach.

Despite a denial at Madison, Wis., that he had applied for the job, it was learned authoritatively he is among the candidates whether or not he has communicated directly with the authorities at Ithaca.

This development was viewed with special interest because of its implications as to the possible outcome of the current investigation into football affairs at Wisconsin. Spears, head coach of the Badgers since 1932 and a former Dartmouth player, has been at loggerheads with Dr. Walter Meanwell, director of Wisconsin athletics.

Expect Decision in March.

Dobie hooked up with Boston college two days after resigning his $11,000 post, under pressure, but Cornell has encountered complications as well as a host of job seekers in trying to replace Gloomy Gil with a more youthful optimist.

No decision has yet been reached and James Lynah, the new athletic director, has adopted a policy of not commenting upon any individual candidacies. It is likely a final list of "preferred applicants" will be drawn up for consideration soon, with a final choice likely early in March.

Cornell alumni, as well as undergraduates, strongly support Lynah's intention to engage a head coach equipped to lift the Ithacans' football morale, at low ebb last season after failure to win a single game. For this reason, Spears' record is not calculated to put his candidacy in a favorable light. Like Dobie, Spears has had big years, but his 1935 Wisconsin team lost seven of its eight games.

Dick Hanley, who retired as Northwestern's head coach a year ago, is understood to have put in a bid.

SPEARS ISSUES DENIAL

Madison, Wis., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Reports in New York today that Dr. Clarence Spears of Wisconsin was being considered for the coaching job at Cornell university, left vacant by the resignation of Gil Dobie, were met by Spears with this statement:

"As far as I know, my name is not under consideration for the job at Cornell."

Asked point blank if he had made an applications, Spears merely repeated his statement, only more loudly.

WEAK WISCONSIN TEAMS MAY BRING FINANCIAL CRISIS

Up to Football to Carry Athletic Load.

BY BRUCE DENNIS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Feb. 12.—While members of the University of Wisconsin board of regents were preparing to come to Madison Friday to take decisive action in the Spears-Meanwell case, an alarming slump in football receipts was revealed today in comparative figures obtained from athletic department auditors.

The decline last year reached the point where home basketball attendance exceeded that at football games for the first time in the history of the university.

But basketball receipts are held down because 7,000 seats of the 8,500 capacity of the fieldhouse are taken up by students, who, using coupon books good for admission to all the school's athletic events, contribute only 12 to 15 cents a game. Football still must pay the freight, and unless a winning team is produced in the next year or two a financial crisis in Badger athletic events appears inevitable.

Must Show a Profit.

The athletic department is required by state law to show a profit for the fiscal year, which runs from July 1 to June 30. This has been done, in the years since 1931, only by drastic paring of the budget, particularly in the matter of equipment purchases and by eliminating some minor sports and confining activity in others to a minimum. The interclass funds, derived from concessions at sports events, also was drawn upon to finance minor sports.

The new fieldhouse, built at a cost of $453,756, was made possible by adoption of a debt retirement program based on football receipts. Each year $25,000 must be paid until 1959 under this plan. So that is where the first slice of football ticket money must go.

William H. Aspinwall, athletic department accountant, said that from an all-time high of $276,661.11 in 1929 football receipts have dwindled to these levels:

1930	$199,199.45	1933	$85,076.12
1931	$148,110.12	1934	$90,732.10
1932	$83,888.26	1935	$88,090.32

Stadium Capacity Reduced.

The slight rise in 1934 was due to the Minnesota game, which attracted 32,740 fans, the biggest crowd that has filed into Camp Randall stadium since 1928. In that year 44,248 paid to see the Minnesota battle. Since then the capacity of the stadium has been reduced to slightly less than 33,000. Construction of the fieldhouse made it necessary to tear down the bleachers at the south end of the field.

The record for total yearly receipts in all sports was set in the fiscal year of 1929-'30, when they reached $317,211.48, and when the Badger athletic department made money it spent it, as every one did in those days. Total expenditures in that year were $300,438.19. Then $63,033 was needed

BY FRENCH LANE.

Louder and louder came the shouts from the west and south side Golden Gloves sectional tournament centers last night. The boys were in the midst of the battles that will carry the eventual winners into the Tournament of Champions on Feb. 24, and any one passing the scene of these conflicts was well aware of it.

The noise was a little more deafening in the vicinity of White City on the south side because 138 fights took place there in two rings. However, it wasn't all quiet on the western front either, for 41 of the wildest scraps of this year's sectional meets in Chicago were offered in one ring at the Madison Athletic club auditorium.

More Fighting Tonight.

The tournaments will continue in both centers tonight starting at 7 o'clock and then there will be a lull in the Chicago Golden Gloves battle until next Monday.

The little fellows—bantamweights and featherweights—furnished most of the fireworks last night in the west section tournament. On the south side the crowd that jammed the White City arena got its first look at the hard punching middleweights, light heavyweights and heavyweights.

Twenty-seven heavyweights and 51 light heavyweights were among the boys who went into action on the south side.

Knockouts came one after another in these scraps. All the boys were from the novice divisions but some of them fought so well they resembled open division champions.

Big Boys in Shape.

The spectators came to the conclusion that these south side big boys will do this year, for the boxers gave evidence early that they are in better physical condition and are better versed both in boxing and in punching than any group that has ever competed for the south section honors.

Two rings again will be used tonight in the south side section. The welterweights and flyweights are scheduled to appear. All have been weighed but they must report tonight for physical examinations. More than 100 bouts will be held.

Bill McMaster of the 16th Ward club gave the crowd at White City a glimpse of an open division fighter in the making. Although he drew a tough opponent in Ernest Mitchell of the Eighth Infantry, he maneuvered his foe nicely into position for a right cross to send him down and out in the second round of their light heavyweight scrap.

Besides boxing, McMaster is a star athlete at Lindblom High school. He pitched for the school, wrestled, and tried out for football. He has had tryouts with the St. Louis Cardinals and Cincinnati Reds baseball teams.

Actions Can't Frighten 'Em.

For sheer effort, honors in the middleweight class went to Ed Kubal, representing the Liberties A. C. He went through enough contortions to frighten the average boy, but his opponent, a colored lad, Ernest Silas of the C. Y. O., refused to be impressed.

In the third round Kubal connected with a right hand blow he has developed as a sewer cleaner, and knocked Silas down for a short count. Kubal received the decision at the end of three rounds.

Kubal also knocked down William Cohan of the Camelot A. C. in the first minute of his second round bout, but this time it was Cohan who came back strongly to win a three round decision.

Pross Shows Skill.

Eddie Pross, C. Y. O. novice middleweight, also showed to good advantage in defeating Willie Horton of 5022 South Parkway. Pross won by a technical knockout in two rounds and demonstrated enough class to draw predictions of future greatness.

Two former Golden Gloves heavyweight champions were busy at ringside seconding future greats. Otis Thomas, 1934 champion by virtue of that thrilling victory over Max Marek, was at White City, and later Lorenzo Pack, last year's champion, now fighting professionally, made an appearance.

Three classy bantamweights turned in impressive victories on the west side. They were Joe Gibbons, Wayne Fidler, and Ulis Schenyder, all color-bearers of the C. Y. O.

Schenyder knocked out Herbert Appel in a round. Fidler stopped Al Smith in two rounds, and Gibbons won a decision from Jimmy Scaliatine after three hard fought rounds.

Out of Town Finals.

Out in the surrounding Golden Gloves territory the Bloomington Pantagraph, Nashville Tennessean, the Sioux City Journal and the Iowa City Daily Iowan selected their teams last night.

There also was fighting last night leading up to the championship matches in Springfield, Ill., Grand Rapids, Mich., Burlington, Ia., and Eau Claire, Wis.

Six of the strongest teams that will fight for tournament of champion honors will be picked tonight in other cities. These teams which have always made powerful showings in the great festival will represent the Peoria Journal-Transcript, Springfield State Register, Evansville Courier-Journal, Grand Rapids Press, Omaha World-Herald and the Indianapolis Times.

From every tournament point come reports that this year's teams will be stronger than in any other tournament of champions competition.

Loyola Meets Western State Five Tonight

The Loyola university basketball team meets Western State Teachers college at Kalamazoo tonight in the final road game of the year for the Ramblers. Encouraged by a 46 to 31 victory over St. Louis university last Saturday, the Loyolans expect to make a better showing against the Teachers than the 44 to 22 loss suffered during the Christmas holidays.

The showing of Bill Lynch in the St. Louis rout places him as a starting forward in the place of Gart Winkler for tonight's battle. The other positions will be held by Ed Murray at center, star of the Billikin game; Capt. Marv Colen and Bob Brennan at guard, and Ed Calihan at forward. Colen and Calihan lead the Rambler offensive in the first game with Western State, collecting 17 of the 22 points between them. Others who made the trip are Jim O'Brien, Gart Winkler, Johnny Brennan, and Jack Sackley.

Returning to Chicago, the Loyola faces two more games to close the season, meeting the Alumni on Feb. 22 in a benefit game for the Jesuit India mission, and the University of Detroit at Loyola on Feb. 29.

SEALYHAM WINS HIGHEST PRIZE AT WESTMINSTER

New York, Feb. 12.—(AP)—An underslung, chunky little Sealyham terrier, Champion St. Margaret Magnificent of Clairdale, tonight was adjudged best dog in the 60th annual Westminster Kennel club show.

In winning top honors in America's premier canine exhibition St. Margaret Magnificent, owned by the Clairdale kennels of Riverhead, N. Y., downed five other finalists, the pick of their respective groups.

Pitted against the victor were a poodle, Champion Nunsoe Duc de la Terrace of Blakeen, which was last year's winner in the Westminster; Champion Salisbury Sensation, a Pomeranian; White Rose Boveway, pure white greyhound; Champion Dewet von der Starrenburg, a German shepherd, and Champion Milson O'Boy, Irish setter.

KENTUCKY CARDINAL.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Feb. 12.—Remember G. Frank Croissant? No? Sure you do. He was one of the "Big Four" which subdivided southern Florida into business and residence lots back in the boom days of 1925 at Coral Cables, Miami, Hollywood-by-the-Sea, and Fort Lauderdale. G. Frank also was exploiter of Calumet City in the Chicago district.

If that fails to identify him you surely remember the smallish, young looking chap who bought Kentucky Cardinal from Desha Breckinridge, now dead, for $50,000 shortly before the running of the 1925 Kentucky Derby. The purchase price also included half of the winnings in the Derby and Lawrence Realization. How well French Lane and The Wake remember G. Frank, always present in the lobby of the Brown hotel of Louisville at Derby time, with his expensive straw hat with band which fairly shrieked the blend of colors.

What brings this reminder is that today we met G. Frank on Andrews avenue, the main stem. Croissant has a home here and plans next summer to launch another real estate campaign on the site of Croissant Park, a subdivision to the south of town on the way to Miami, where remain some of the boulevards, sidewalks, and elaborate lamp posts of the boom period eleven years ago.

When Croissant added Kentucky Cardinal to his string, then trained by Mose Shapoff, now racing several horses at Hialeah in the colors of Mrs. Shapoff, the colt was a fine looking fellow, with a great burst of speed, one of the choices for the big event. He was a fast track runner.

On that Derby day, if you recall, it rained bucketfuls and the oval was a sloppy surface over which Jocky Earl Sande, then at his height, rode to victory Flying Ebony, a cripple whose subsequent career was vitiated by his bad legs, although he has since produced in the stud some good performers.

Although a field horse, Sande's presence in the saddle and track conditions left Flying Ebony at about 3 to 1 in the mutuels at post time—the shortest price we remember against a field in a big stake race.

Aside from his dislike for the footing Kentucky Cardinal barked his leg in his stall the morning of the race. If we remember rightly he finished second from last or next to last. The colt, however, had earnings of about $31,000 that season. Moreover, in Florida land boom days $50,000 was not such important money as now.

Mr. Croissant has been in Spain for several years, where he was engaged in subdivision exploitation of an island for his own and other capitalists' interests. His young son perished last July 4 when he fell while attempting to plant an American Boy Scouts flag on a Spanish peak.

Beat on the crags in fury, hybrid air.
I do not ask for calm, so tear
Tenaciously the quivering loam,
Upheaving it in ramparts I must climb,
From height to greater height, stone stair to stair,
In fortifying courage, reaching where
The stars sing on in faultless rhyme;
And still beyond, in magnitude of space
Light with new dawn, to see
Chaos of the earth submerged and drowned
In whirlpools of infinity.

NEW DISPUTE LOOMS

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany, Feb. 12.—(AP)—More trouble looms in Olympic hocky circles just when officials had become confident that all disputes had been settled.

The Canadians have decided to hold an indignation meeting tomorrow and members of the dominion delegation are talking about quitting the meet.

The complicated Olympic system of deciding the championship is responsible for the threatened uprising. The Canadians learned tonight that if they enter the final group with England and two other teams, they will start the decisive round-robin one game down.

In other words, they won't have a chance to play England again and England's surprising victory yesterday will apply to the final series. By the same token, if America should enter the final quartet with Czechoslovakia, as appeared probable tonight, it likewise would have a running start of one game and would be required to play only England and Canada.

This situation arises from the Olympic authorities' belief that no team should be required to beat another twice. The Canadians, however, were not reconciled to the idea and said they would jump the meet unless the rule is rescinded.

GILBERT COLGATE, U. S. BOBSLED ENTRANT IS ILL

GARMISCH - PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Gilbert Colgate of New York, who with Dick Lawrence of Branchville, N. J., forms one of America's two entries for the Olympic two man bob sledding championship, was confined to bed today with a fever.

"It's just a cold," Dietrich Wortmann of New York, a member of the American Olympic committee said, and added Colgate would be all right for the opening of the championship event Friday.

"For safety's sake I've entered J. Hubert Stevens as a substitute, but I'm confident Colgate will drive," Wortmann said.

THREE DEMPSEY PROTEGES FIGHT ON STADIUM CARD

Add Pross and Lipps to Burman-Bath Bout.

Pending the scheduled arrival of Jack Dempsey today, Co-Matchmaker James C. Mullen yesterday announced supporting bouts to the ten round attraction between Hank Bath and Red Burman at Chicago Stadium tomorrow. Dempsey is headed this way in order to be in Burman's corner against Bath, who will be seconded by Jack Kearns, who managed Jack to the heavyweight title against Jess Willard July 4, 1919.

There will be five preliminary matches, each set for five rounds, on the card, a continuation of the heavyweight elimination tournament which will initiate the tieup between contenders in Dempsey's tourney in New York and the Stadium meet.

In addition to Burman, Joe Lipps, and Paul Pross will fight under the Dempsey banner. Lipps will clash with Buddy Knox, 19 year old Dayton, O., boxer, in the semi-final. Pross is matched to meet Cowboy Frankie Edgren of Cheyenne, Wyo. Other bouts involve Johnny Erjavec, Duluth, and Eddie Harcever, Cleveland; Bob Tow, Alexandria, Va., and Tom Baxter, Buffalo, and Max Zona, Chicago Heights, and Wally Elkins.

Burman, Lipps, and Knox were included among the candidates who trained at Madison Square loop gymnasium yesterday. Bath, Tow, and Edgren are among those drilling at Trafton's gym. Zona has established himself at Coulon's gymnasium on the south side.

Harvey Massey, New Orleans, La., welterweight, and Mickey O'Shea, Chicago, will be opponents in a six round semi-windup to the 12 round welterweight elimination between Billy Celebron and Harry Dublinsky at Cicero stadium next Wednesday. Tony Michaels is paired with Tommy Howell, Sammy De Pasquale will be pitted against Joe Wiley and Jack Moran is booked to face Ossie Jefferson at four rounds. . . . HAWKS ATTEMPT TO SNAP OUT OF SLUMP TONIGHT

Wavering Chicago Team Faces Americans.

Tonight's Games

Toronto at Montreal Maroons.
Chicago at New York Americans.
Boston at Detroit.

New York, Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Manager Clem Loughlin and his wavering Blackhawks, who are due to encounter the New York Americans at Madison Square Garden tomorrow, arrived here today.

The Chicago organization, in the clutch of another slump, which has sent them to a three way tie for second place in the United States section of the National Hocky league with New York and Boston in the most desperate race the league has ever known, has recalled Wildor Larochelle from the Philadelphia Ramblers of the International league to whom he was loaned Jan. 25.

Larochelle, it was announced, does not return to the Black Hawks to not return to the Blackhawks to management called for the return of the speedy right winger, who has been playing bang-up hocky for the Ramblers, for the reason that in their desperate rush for a Stanley cup play off berth they are likely to meet with injuries and they desire to be fortified. Larochelle's ten season's experience and his ability to fill in at any forward position make him extremely valuable at this stage of the race.

Thompson's Lead Increases.

The players of the Chicago team were a bit downcast over the Boston lambasting, not so much for the loss of the game, rather because it widened the goal tending race between Tiny Thompson of the Bruins and Make Karakas, major league net minding rookie who until Tuesday's Boston contest was running neck and neck with the Bruin ace for ownership of the Vezina trophy. Thompson has allowed 52 scores against 60 for Karakas, each having played in 32 games.

The completion of the Boston game saw the season exactly two-thirds over for the Blackhawks. The Chicago team's schedule of sixteen remaining games is bound to make the going particularly tough as nine of them are booked away from their own ice. However, the Hawks have risen to the heights following two previous slumps this season. Lack of scoring is the main reason for the last Blackhawks' decline. They have counted only twice in the last two encounters.

Play Bruins Sunday.

Immediately after Thursday's game the Hawks entrain for Chicago where they are due to arrive Friday. Sunday they battle the Boston Bruins at the Chicago Stadium.

Lineup for tomorrow's game.

COMMISSIONER PICKS TIGERS, CUBS TO REPEAT

New York, Feb. 12.—[Special.]—The Detroit Tigers and the Chicago Cubs are the favorites to repeat their pennant victories in major league baseball during 1936 in the book of Jack Doyle, prominent betting commissioner.

Doyle, in making his prediction today, said he would not quote any odds until next month, when the training season is well under way and the playing personnel of the clubs will be fairly well established.

Doyle ranks the Boston Red Sox second choice to the world's champion Detroit team because he believes the Tigers' pitching strength will be too much for the revamped Bostonians. He sees the Yankees, with a proper amount of buying and trading, as Boston's leading rival for second place.

ST. PAUL GETS PITCHER BETTS FROM BOSTON

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Walter [Huck] Betts, veteran right handed pitcher of the Boston Bees, will return this year to St. Paul of the American association. This was announced today by Lou McKenna, business manager of the Saints.

Betts was drafted by Boston after winning twenty-two games for St. Paul in 1931. His best season with Boston was in 1934, when the won seventeen and lost eleven.

McKenna said Betts became the outright property of the Saints in a straight cash deal.

to operate the football team alone. In 1934 this had been reduced to $34,907.75.

Since then the receipts and commitments [expenditures], following a general downward curve, have been:

Year—	Receipts.	Commitments.
1930-'31	$250,385.33	$249,621.28
1931-'32	186,304.23	*202,064.24
1932-'33	116,976.74	111,409.60
1933-'34	118,570.79	114,634.20
1934-'35	238,076.06	126,332.05

*Cash balance of other years covers this deficit.

Budget Calls for $142,309.

Athletic Director Walter E. Meanwell's budget for 1935-'36 calls for expenditure of $142,309, including the $25,000 fieldhouse payment. Toward this goes last fall's football revenue of $88,090.32, leaving a sizable amount to be brought in by other sports.

Of these basketball undoubtedly will contribute the most, for it appears no amount of blizzards and cold waves can stop the fans from setting a record attendance of more than 100,000 for this season.

Last season a total of 93,228 spectators paid to see thirteen home basketball games. That was an increase of 30,376 over the previous season.

In contrast to that boom in basketball the total attendance at five home football games last fall was only 79,414. The serious lack of public interest in what team the Badgers were losing to on any certain Saturday is brought out by the fact that in 1934 a total of 82,662 paid to see a four game home schedule. Yet with one more game on the program and attractive battles with Notre Dame, Michigan, and Purdue on the list, the attendance decreased.

Minnesota Trip Helps.

Had it not been for a trip to Minneapolis, where the Badgers absorbed a terrific beating but also took away $31,344.92 in cash, the season would have been a financial flop.

Of course, the team only won one game in 1935, upsetting Purdue in a mud fight, 8 to 0, and in 1934 the only Big Ten victories achieved were a 7 to 3 triumph over Illinois and a 10 to 0 conquest of Michigan.

This record was nothing to lure the customers away from their radios. The persistence with which they stayed home last autumn is indicated in the following comparative figures for the last two seasons:

Game—	1934 attendance.	Wisconsin's receipts.
Marquette	19,003	$12,056.43
South Dakota State	6,745	1,711.00
Illinois	24,174	16,118.33
Minnesota	32,740	23,009.20

Game—	1935 attendance.	Wisconsin's receipts.
South Dakota State	10,020	$ 3,030.00
Marquette	17,780	10,026.16
Notre Dame	19,663	10,039.10
Michigan	15,186	6,262.87
Purdue	16,795*	8,512.84

Boxing Packs 'Em In.

Even boxing, an infant sport at the university, packed 33,822 into the fieldhouse for six shows. The 1936 ring season opened tonight with preliminaries in the university tournament. The bouts drew 2,500.

The faculty athletic board's 5 to 2 decision in favor of retaining Dr. Meanwell as athletic director and dismissing Spears kept Madison rumorsmiths well in the background today.

It is rumored that a rumor will be started soon, however, to the effect that Red Grange will be the Badgers' new football coach if and when Spears loses his job.

Practice Starts Monday.

Despite the faculty's action, Dr. Spears still retains the favor of powerful members of the board of regents, who may reverse the faculty board's recommendation, thus retaining Spears and ousting Meanwell.

Neither side had any comment to make today, but battle lines are being quietly drawn for a finish fight. Possibility that the regents again will delay in taking definite action is considered remote.

Spring football practice is scheduled to start next Monday in the gymnasium annex. The athletes would like to know who's to be their coach, and while this may not carry any weight with the regents, there is a general feeling the row has been going on long enough.

NORTH CENTRAL VISITS WHEATON FLOOR TONIGHT

North-Central college basketball team travels to Wheaton tonight for the first of two game series. The second game will be played at Naperville next Thursday.

Coach Ben Bieber has been working the North-Central five all week on offensive tactics designed to penetrate the zone defense which Wheaton uses on its small floor. Gil Kieth and Walt Shank, both well over six feet, will be in the front line where their height makes them valuable on a small floor. Loser of three consecutive games, the Cards are determined to use tonight's game to get back to their winning ways before Carroll comes to Naperville Saturday night and De Paul university on Monday.

Four Records Fall in Junior A. A. U. Meet

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 12.—(AP)—A brigade of athletes shattered four marks and set up two other new ones in the annual junior national A. A. U. track and field championship meet at Convention hall tonight.

With almost 400 athletes—none of whom had ever before won a national championship — competing, records went by the boards in the high jump, 3,000 meter steeplechase, broad jump, and 16 pound shot.

New Marks Established.

In addition, Ed Siegel, New York sprinter, set up a new mark in the 50 meter dash, and Joe Robinson, of the Newark A. C., did the same in the 50 meter hurdles. Neither of these events have been on previous junior national indoor programs.

Heading the record smashers was lanky Al Threadgill, colored athlete from Temple, who boosted the high jump mark to 6 feet 6⅛ inches, from the 6 feet 3½ inches at which it had rested since 1930 when George Spitz, now of New York university, set it up.

Joining the record shattering club with Threadgill were Walt Nachoney, with a 9 minute 34 seconds mark in the 3,000 meter steeplechase; Bob Schuneman of Penn, with a leap of 21 feet 4¾ inches in the broad jump, and Larry Cohen of Temple, with a heavy of 47 feet 2 inches in the shot put.

Penn Wins Team Title.

A fifth record—the 1,500 meter walk—also was bettered by Nathan Jaeger of New York, but officials refused to recognize this because there was some question about Jaeger's heel and toeing.

Team honors went to Penn, with 19 points, with Temple, New York Curb exchange and Millrose A. A. of New York, trailing in that order.

JEWISH WOMAN FENCER STARTS FOR OLYMPICS

New York, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Helene Mayer, bonde, blue eyed girl fencer, sailed for Europe tonight to compete with the German team in next summer's Olympic games saying, "Politics is one thing and sports another —I'm going over as a sportswoman."

The German born Jewish girl who holds the American woman's fencing chamionship added, "there will be no trouble next summer." She said she had been amazed at the way her name figured in the fight against American participation in the games.

"This hullabaloo went on over my head," she explained. "I was mystified. Everyone seemed to be trying to speak for me. But I had no difficulty. I received the invitation and accepted it. There were no 'concessions.' Did I ask for full citizenship rights? No. How can I ask for something I never lost?"

Notre Dame Goes East to Battle New York Quintet

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Coach George Keogan and a squad of 13 Notre Dame basketball players left here today for New York, where the Irish will meet New York university Friday.

New York has lost only two games, both of them on the road last week, and has never lost a game in Madison Square Garden, site of Friday's game. The Irish have lost only to Purdue and tied Northwestern in 18 starts.

Following is the squad which left today: Co-Capt. Ford, Moir, Meyer, Hopkins, Crowe, forwards; Nowak and Co-Capt. Peters, centers; Ireland, Wade, Wukovits, Jordan, Allen and Sweeney, guards.

Manager Bill Gillespie, Trainer Eugene Young, Director of Athletics Elmer F. Layden and Business Manager J. Arthur Haley will leave tomorrow.

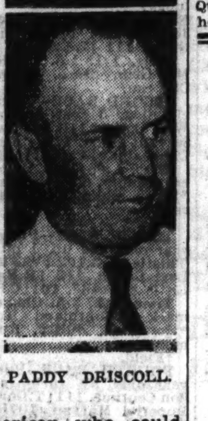
Biggest Mistake I Ever Made

[Otto Strohmeier, University of Chicago end coach, says that an athlete's chief memories are of the mistakes he made or the times he just missed doing something spectacular or smart. This is the seventh of a series of articles describing such experiences of famous athletes.]

BY PADDY DRISCOLL.

[Former Northwestern, Cardinal and Bear football star, now coach at St. Mel High school.]

Kind newspaper friends had flattered me with special mention of my open field tackling and defensive tactics as safety man. It made me feel pretty good. Then I tackled a shadow!



PADDY DRISCOLL.

It happened one Sunday afternoon at Normal Park in 1923, when the Cardinals were playing the Akron Indians. The Indians were a very fine football team led by Paul Robeson, 6 feet 4 inches and 234 pounds of All-American who could play end as well then as he can sing now, and Fritz Pollard, that other colored All-American who was one of the game's greatest ball carriers.

Late in the second half of a fiercely and closely contested game, little, slippery Fritz broke inside tackle, shook off the defensive half backs and started down the field for a touchdown with nothing between him and the goal line but myself.

Paddy Knows What to Do.

The safety man in this predicament faces the toughest assignment in football. When the ball carrier happens to be Brown university's little fantom, the task increases tenfold. Long experience and excellent coaching had taught me never to let a runner come straight down the field toward me, but to feint him to the right or left and drive him to the sidelines.

In this manner, the safety man can trap the runner and slow him up for tacklers coming up from behind. When the runner is boxed in, you must make him commit himself, that is, indicate whether he is going to cut back or go down the sidelines, before making your charge.

These fundamentals were impressed indelibly on my mind and I feinted Fritz to the sidelines perfectly. I had him trapped right where I wanted him. I would put a stop to this threat. It was a cinch. I was the best in the business at this stuff. The newspapers said so. The runner might be Pollard, the All-American, to everybody else, but to the old master he was just another mug in moleskins.

Denouement: He Wasn't There

Without waiting for Fritz to commit himself, I charged in to bounce him off the bleachers. This was just what he wanted. As I left my feet, Fritz cut back and legged it to the goal line. All I got was an armful of his shadow as I landed on my face where he had been.

I never again made the mistake of committing myself to a ball carrier.

MIAMI-NASSAU YACHT RACE WON BY WATER WITCH

NASSAU, Bahamas, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The 49 foot schooner, Water Witch, owned by C. A. Hansen of the Shore Acres Yacht club, Mamaroneck, N. Y., won the third annual Miami-to-Nassau saling race today.

The Water Witch's elapsed time for the gulf stream crossing was 22 hours 11 minutes 10 seconds, some two hours more than that of the 72 foot staysail ketch Vamarie, which finished first to establish a course record. However, the Water Witch's corrected time of 17 hours 8 minutes 36 seconds gave it first place.

The 44 foot cutter, Starlight, owned by Albert B. Fay of Houston, Tex., finished second after starting at Miami some three hours after the Water Witch.

Third place was captured by the smallest boat in the race, the 30 foot Babe, cutter owned by Commodore Hugh M. Matheson of the Biscayne Bay Yacht club. She did not arrive in Nassau until late today, long after the leaders, but her large handicap time of 10-01-04 raised her position.

HERZL PLAYS WRIGHT.

Herzl Junior college will seek its twelfth basketball victory of the season against Wright Junior college, at the Wright gymnasium, today.

HELEN STEPHENS SETS TWO MARKS IN A. A. U. MEET

Wins 50 Meter Race and Shot Put.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Helen Stephens, of Fulton, Mo., successfully defended her national A. A. U., indoor 50 meter championship tonight, outracing a brilliant field to tie the world record of 6.4 seconds.

She slipped in a preliminary race but finished second to Annette Rogers of Chicago. Again in the championship final Helen, conqueror of Stella Walsh last year, faltered slightly but she stepped out in front about middistance and she never was threatened thereafter.

Breaks National Record.

The mark, a new national indoor standard, tied the world mark held by Miss Walsh and Mejzlikova II, of Czechoslovakia. Harriette Bland and May Brady, St. Louis speedsters, fought a close battle for second place, with Miss Bland shading her teammate, both of them about eight feet behind Miss Stephens.

Helen established another record—a new American mark of 41 feet 7 inches—for the eight pound shot put. She bettered the old mark of 40 feet 11 inches, set by Rena MacDonald, Boston girl, at Brooklyn, in 1934. Kathleen Ferrara, Chicago, got second place with 33 feet 6 inches. Catherine Fellmeth, Chicago, and Sallie Core, New Orleans, won third and fourth, respectively.

Helen's third championship of the evening came in the standing broad jump, in which she beat out Nan Gindele, Chicago, with a jump of 8 feet 4½ inches.

Evelyne Hall, Olympic hurdler of Chicago, received her first setback of the season when Tidye Pickett, unattached colored runner from Chicago, defeated her by a good margin in the 50 meter hurdles.

Runs 50 Meters In 7.9.

Miss Pickett finished in 7.9 seconds, three-tenths of a second slower than the national indoor record. Weak arches, troubling Mrs. Hall recently, accounted mainly for her slow race.

The Chicago parks district entry won the team title with 22 points. Another Chicago team, the Illinois Athletic Club for Catholic Women, was second with 18.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Mrs. W. Plunkett Stewart's Chance Ray came within three-fifths of a second of the track record today when he ran one and one-eighth miles in 1:49 flat to take the grade "A" handicap, which topped the Hialeah Park card.

LOYOLA TRACK TEAM AWAITS OPENING MEET

Engages Chicago, Armour Saturday.

The Loyola university track team will open its indoor season Saturday afternoon in a triangular meet with the University of Chicago and Armour Tech at Bartlett gymnasium. The Ramblers will present a team whose strength rests in the field events.

Capt. Harry Hofherr, counted on for the dashes, will not compete during the indoor season because he is devoting his time to improving his scholastic standing for the outdoor meets. Hofherr's absence leaves Coach Alex Wilson with Bob Lyons, Bill Powers, and Johnny Nurnberger as the only experienced men in the track events.

The indoor track schedule, as announced by Wilson yesterday, follows:

Feb. 15—Chicago and Armour at Chicago.
Feb. 21—Armour Tech at Chicago.
Feb. 29—South Side Junior college at Loyola.
March 7—North Central college at Naperville.
March 14—Central Intercollegiate conference at Notre Dame.
March 21—Armour relays at Chicago.
March 28—Butler relays at Indianapolis.

Polo Teams to Play for Title Saturday

Marking the climax of the Metropolitan Indoor Polo league campaign, North Shore Polo and Hunt club will ride against the 124th Field Artillery in the latter's armory Saturday night. At stake will be the league's high goal title for which both teams now are tied.

Lineups are set and the rival teams took their final heavy workouts yesterday. Another light practice session is scheduled for tomorrow.

Detroit vs. Fort Sheridan.

Saturday night's double-header will include a game between the Detroit Riding and Driving club and Fort Sheridan. The Detroit team's ponies will reach here this evening. Members of the team, Volney Bayley, Billy Fisher, and Alfred House, are due in Chicago Saturday morning.

Still hopeful of bouncing back into the Gold Coast league scramble, the Black Horse Troop will meet Olympia Fields Saturday evening in the feature attraction of a six unit program at the Chicago Riding club, 333 East Erie street.

122d Juniors to Meet Bees.

The 122d Field Artillery Juniors will attempt to settle old scores when they meet the Riding Club Bees in the curtain raiser. Each having won one game, the artillerymen and the Bees look upon Saturday's meeting, which may be their last of the current season, as an opportunity to settle a private title battle.

MEN'S APPAREL NOT BOUGHT TO PLEASE WOMEN

Other Reasons Behind Well Chosen Garb.

BY HARRISON HOWARD.

There is a fallacy that men "dress up" chiefly to please the opposite sex and that if man lived in a world without women he still would be going around in animal skins or their equivalent.

Be that as it may, there are several reasons distinctly apart from catching the feminine eye why men take pride in their appearance. First is the fact that every normal male is born with a desire to satisfy the ego, build up confidence or improve the morale [whichever way you prefer to state it] in a world which seems constantly attempting to pull it down.

If he retains this urge, as most do, he usually turns out to be a well dressed man. If he gives up the fight he will eventually be a careless, indifferent dresser. In either event woman is not the major influence.

Secondly, some men dress well because they are born with an artistic sense which develops later in clothes as well as other pursuits or tendencies. In such a case it is heredity and can be denied no more than can a "natural born" musician be kept away from music. Again woman is not the underlying cause in arriving at sartorial satisfaction.

Trained to Dress Well.

Third, some men dress well because they have been trained to do so as a child by fastidious parents, which classifies the cause as environment. In other words, many carefully dressed male adults have absorbed it from the atmosphere surrounding their infancy.

A fourth kind of man dresses well purely to please his fellow men and business associates. He may have the selfish motive of hoping for greater business success as a result, nevertheless it is not a woman which prompts either the urge or the actuality.

To realize this we have only to think of the many details such as the height of a collar, break of the trousers, or length of the coat sleeve, to which well dressed men pay strict attention only for themselves or for other men, knowing that 99 out of 100 women will not notice them specifically.

Women may observe men's clothes on the whole and fundamentally perhaps they comprehend the value of dress more subtly than men, but few are able to apply it to the point of judging and selecting men's attire better than men themselves.

Kind Women Prefer.

That is why you seldom see a man's clothing advertisment with an appeal directed to women and that is why the smarter a woman is the less she chooses a man who dresses to please women. She prefers a man who dresses to please other men, and you never catch her buying carmine colored pajamas with fringe for the males of her family or acquaintanceship.

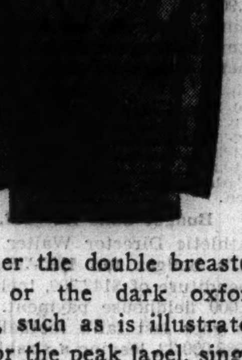
The world in general has come to prefer the well dressed man because usually it signifies more than just that. When you look at an attractively attired man you have the feeling that you are looking at some one who knows quality in all things, who has a good sense of values, who shuns false standards and who knows his way around in other matters as well.

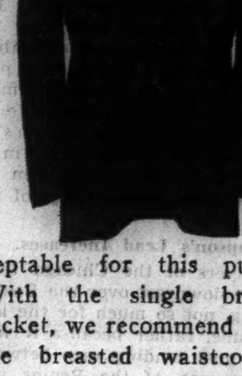
As civilization progresses and man's leisure and means increase, the art of dress is becoming more important psychologically and more and more developed culturally. As an asset to personality and popularity it cannot be ignored. Realizing this, men are giving the business of personal adornment more than ordinary time and attention.

FASHIONS FOR MEN ONLY

This fashion column for men will appear every Thursday in The Tribune. If you would like information about modes for men write to the Men's Fashion department, Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Illinois. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your letter.

WEEK-END guests returning to town in time for Sunday evening supper show perspicacity in leaving their country friends an evening to themselves. Countryside hospitality, still favoring the Sunday dinner, leaves little to be desired in the way of further viands. City week-enders, convalescing from Saturday night festivities, acclaim Sunday evening buffet suppers a satisfactory substitute for breakfast and dinner, willingly foregone. In the gathering places for the Sunday evening buffet, the men returning from the country make their appearance in clothing they have worn appropriately during their week-end sojourn, while those city dwellers dressing for the occasion substitute the black jacket and the striped trousers for the dinner coat, since Sunday evening proprieties do not call for this formality. This latter outfit is deserving of more than passing interest. Ideal in the situation we have described, it likewise serves in lieu of the formal cutaway for important business occasions, for wear by guests at weddings, for the men members of the bridal party of a less formal wedding, and for virtually all occasions on which the cutaway would appear too stilted. Capt. Anthony Eden, Britain's dashing diplomat, has favored this outfit for day wear for all except the highest state functions.





Either the double breasted black or the dark oxford jacket, such as is illustrated here, or the peak lapel, single breasted black jacket are acceptable for this purpose. With the single breasted jacket, we recommend a double breasted waistcoat of gray or faun.

White collars are highly appropriate, worn with plaited or plain bosom shirts, with the tendency, at the moment, toward a plain, deeper color which sets off the white collar to advantage. Neckwear should be of simple design, never ornate, and while black and white or gray effects are the type usually worn, there may be some harmonizing color used when the shirt, too, is colored. For headwear, the Derby hat is an excellent choice, although the black Homburg is highly desirable.

There is likewise a choice of trousers. Definitly striped black and gray generally is worn, although a moderately sized shepherd's check in black and white is equally correct.

VAN SWERINGEN TELLS HOW HE REWON 'EMPIRE'

Discloses 2 Million Stock Offer.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—How an aged Muncie, Ind., fruit jar manufacturer and a Cleveland shipping magnate came to the rescue of the Van Sweringen railroad empire a few months ago was related today by O. P. Van Sweringen at a hearing before the interstate commerce commission. The hearing was for the purpose of delving into the facts concerning the newly formed Mid-America corporation, top Van Sweringen holding company. It was conducted by C. E. Boles, assistant finance director of the I. C. C.

O. P. VAN SWERINGEN.

Mid-America was incorporated by O. P. Van Sweringen and his late brother, M. J., and others to regain control of the vast Van Sweringen rail holdings from a group headed by J. P. Morgan & Co. At an auction sale held a few months ago Mid-America bought back from creditors equity control of the Alleghany corporation, former top holding concern in the Van Sweringen system.

Gets Tomlinson Help.

Van Sweringen told the ICC representatives today that when the sale of stock and other collateral carrying control of the rail empire was announced by the banking syndicate he got in touch with George A. Tomlinson, Cleveland shipowner.

"He very kindly suggested to me that when I came around to the need of dollars I might take the matter up with him," Van Sweringen said.

Tomlinson then approached G. A. Ball, Muncie fruit jar manufacturer and former director of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, with the suggestion that Ball also produce financial aid.

"Mr. Ball said that he would go along and that we could count him in," said Van Sweringen.

Offer Two Million Dollars.

A letter from Ball and Tomlinson to the Van Sweringen brothers was produced by the witness. In this letter the two men offered to buy 20,000 shares of first preferred stock in a new Van Sweringen corporation for two million dollars and 15,000 shares of common stock at $1 per share. The letter stated that the securities offered at the Alleghany auction sale were those of companies "created and developed under your [the Van Sweringen] control, direction or management."

"These companies, in the main," the letter added, "prospered up to the time of the depression. We believe that under the same control, direction and management they will again prosper if the present improvement in business conditions shall continue, as we believe it will. We should be interested if, and only if, we could be assured that you will participate actively in their direction and management."

The letter then made suggestions for the formation of a corporation "with broad charter powers."

Avoids Word "Control."

In his testimony Van Sweringen shied away from such terms as "control" and "domination." He said that the companies in which he is interested are controled through "proxy committees."

"With the holdings of Alleghany corporation," Boles asked, "is this sufficient for Mid-America to exercise control over the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Erie, the Chicago and Eastern Illinois, the Pere Marquette, Terminal Shares, Missouri Pacific and the New York, Chicago and St. Louis?"

"That's some question," Van Sweringen replied. "You mean, do shares owned in Alleghany [by Mid-America] afford that control?"

Boles answered in the affirmative and the witness continued:

"I'd hesitate to say yes to that. You use the word 'control.' I don't like the word 'control.' We never function with that word. It's foreign to all our thoughts and actions."

Car loadings on the Illinois Central system in the week ended Jan. 28 were 28,847 as compared with 27,392 in the corresponding week of 1935.

Wheat Prices Move Higher at Winnipeg

Winnipeg, Man., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—The largest export business in Canadian wheat in any one day for several weeks, together with soaring prices at Liverpool, sent Winnipeg wheat prices up for net gain of 1⅛ cents today. The May option closed at 84⅛ cents, July at 85¾, and October at 84⅛.

Sales of Canadian wheat for foreign account were estimated at two and a half million bushels and were moved from both Atlantic and Pacific seaboards. In addition, good export business in Canadian flour was done Tuesday and today, and, although the bulk of the flour was sold from the eastern seaboard, some bookings were made at Vancouver.

Market Opens Higher.

The Winnipeg market registered fair gains at the start with most of buying coming from export houses, but active short covering developed and prices were boosted as much as 1⅝ cents over the previous close. The bulk of short coverings appeared to come from southern interests.

The range of wheat prices at Winnipeg and Liverpool follows:

WHEAT PROBE EXPECTED

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Canada's wheat venture, described here as the world's most spectacular grain gamble, will be investigated by a special committee of the house of commons, William D. Euler, minister of trade and commerce, indicated today.

Euler, who is chairman of the wheat subcommittee of the cabinet, took the floor this afternoon to defend the government's action in dispensing with John I. MacFarland, personal friend of former Prime Minister Bennett and "wheat czar" for five years.

Euler said the new wheat board had sold 65½ million bushels of wheat in the first six weeks of its operations without breaking the world price structure, whereas the MacFarland board had disposed of only 12½ million bushels in 9½ weeks of its existence.

RFC RESTS CASE IN BANK STOCK LIABILITY SUIT

Attorneys for the Reconstruction Finance corporation yesterday rested their case in the $10,000,000 lawsuit against the stockholders of the old Central Republic Bank and Trust company.

Before closing their case the RFC attorneys introduced evidence to show that the bank owes the government $109,000 in stock transfer taxes in connection with the consolidation of the various institutions which went into the Central Republic Bank and Trust company. The purpose of this evidence was to show that the bank had more than a single creditor, which is necessary to maintain the suit in a federal court of equity.

The $10,000,000 for which the stockholders are being sued represents the double liability on the shares they own. The RFC contends that the collection is necessary to make up for a deficiency in the repayment of the $90,000,000 loans advanced to the bank in 1932.

Judge Wilkerson adjourned the case until next Tuesday morning to permit defense attorneys to study the record before opening their pleas.

Jewel Tea Reports Gain of 5.4 Per Cent in Sales

An increase of 5.4 per cent in sales for the four weeks' period ended Jan. 25 over the comparable period of 1935 was reported yesterday by the Jewel Tea company. Sales for the period were $1,471,000 compared with $1,395,000 a year ago.

ROOSEVELT ASKS PLAN TO GIVE PWA WORK TO PRIVATE CONTRACTORS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt called today for details of a plan which would permit the government to allocate to private contractors some of the relief construction projects now handled solely by the Works Progress administration.

Under the plan, which was outlined to the President by G. T. Atwell, president of the General Contractors' Association of New York, a portion of the contracts will be let to contractors on a managerial basis, the contractors to receive fees of from 2½ to 5 per cent for their services.

After his conference with Roosevelt, Atwell announced that the detailed plan to be submitted to the President will be drawn up by Col. Lawrence Westbrook of the Works Progress administration, Rear Admiral Christian J. Peoples, director of the procurement division of the treasury department; Christopher Norman, president of the Building Trades Employés' association, and Atwell.

The proposal is that the government retain control of all funds used by the contractors, including pay rolls, the returns to the contractors being purely on the managerial percentage basis.

SANTA FE PLANS TO PURCHASE TEXAS RAILROAD

Samuel T. Bledsoe, president of the Santa Fe Railroad, announced yesterday stockholders have been notified of the lines, plans to purchase the Fort Worth and Rio Grande railroad.

The price under consideration is $1,520,000, Bledsoe said. The Fort Worth and Rio Grande, owned by the St. Louis-San Francisco railroad, runs 215 miles between Fort Worth and Menard, Tex.

Negotiations have been under way for months, Bledsoe said, adding: "Sufficient progress has been made toward such an agreement to justify the submission of the proposed acquisition to the annual meeting of stockholders of the Santa Fe in Topeka, Kansas, April 23."

Illinois Petroleum Group Discusses State Code

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Members of the Illinois Petroleum Marketing association met today in their annual convention and equipment show and discussed a code for state application. The code, similar in all respects to the code recently adopted by a regional meeting of all midwest states, provides for fair competition, abolition of secret rebates, and prohibition of loan or gift of equipment to retail outlets not owned or leased by the wholesaler.

Assess Banks 17 Millions for Insurance

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—The Federal Deposit Insurance corporation announced today that its assessment on 14,206 federally insured banks during the first six months of 1936 will amount to $17,345,000.

Officials of the FDIC admitted that 20 or 25 of the largest banks were sending in their checks under protest so that if the act should be declared unconstitutional they would be in a better position to demand a refund. The larger banks have complained because the assessment is based on total deposits rather than insured deposits, charging that this is an unfair burden. The percentage of insured deposits to total deposits is much less in the large banks than in smaller institutions.

Legality Not Attacked.

No suit attacking the constitutionality of FDIC has been filed.

The FDIC made the computation of the assessment on the basis of the total average daily deposits for the three closing months of 1935, amounting to approximately $41,629,000,000.

With the exception of 219 banks, the payments will take the form of a deduction from credits standing on the books of the insurance corporation from the period of the temporary insurance fund, which terminated Aug. 23, 1935. Actual remittances by the 219 banks amounts to $4,700,000.

Next Payment July 15.

The next assessment to be paid by insured banks will be due July 15, it was announced, and will have as its base average daily deposits for the first six months of this year.

The preliminary figures for the assessment, by classes of banks, were as follows:

	Average daily deposits.	Assessment.
National banks ..	$22,812,000,000	$9,505,000
State banks, members and non-members federal reserve..	17,846,000,000	7,436,000
Mutual savings banks	971,000,000	404,000

DEPARTMENT STORE SALES SHOW MORE THAN SEASONAL DIP

Preliminary figures indicate that department store sales throughout the country declined more than the seasonal amount in January as compared with December, according to the monthly report issued yesterday of the federal reserve board. The figures showed, however, that sales were running ahead of January, 1935, in eleven of the twelve reserve districts.

The board's seasonally adjusted index of sales dropped from 94 per cent of the 1923-'25 average in December to 79 per cent in January, a larger decline than usual for that period. Compared with January last year an increase of 7 per cent was recorded.

The Cleveland area was the only one of the twelve districts to report a decline in sales from January, 1935. In that district volume fell 7 per cent. Of the other eleven districts, Chicago reported the smallest gain, which amounted to 3 per cent. Richmond, with an increase of 11 per cent; Atlanta, with 10 per cent, and New York, with 9 per cent, were the biggest gainers.

The report is based on preliminary figures. The board said that most cities had the same number of business days in both years.

DOLLAR STRONG IN LONDON, EASY AGAINST FRANC

Exchange markets in the United States were closed yesterday, but the dollar was a little stronger in London and declined fractionally in Paris.

The pound closed at $4.99¼ in London, as compared with the overnight rate in New York of $5. Gold currencies were steady in London. In Paris the dollar closed at 6.66 cents, as compared with 6.68 on Tuesday.

Bar gold in London advanced 2½ pence to 140 shillings 10½ pence, or $35.27 an ounce. Bar silver was quiet in London, declining 1-16 to 19 11-16 pence, or 44.33 cents an ounce.

MOVE TO HALT TRADE IN STOCK OF MIDDLE WEST

Old Shares Expected to Be Delisted.

Steps to end the feverish speculation in the shares of the old Middle West Utilities company were taken yesterday when Daniel C. Green, trustee, obtained permission from Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson to discontinue transfer facilities for the stock. The action is expected to be followed today or tomorrow by the delisting of the stock by the Chicago Stock exchange and the New York Curb exchange.

DANIEL C. GREEN. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

The stock has been traded heavily for the last week at 25 to 37½ cents a share, more than double the price brought in the market by a similar equity in the successor concern, Middle West corporation. The result has been a puzzling market situation which has been under the scrutiny of the Chicago Stock exchange and the Securities and Exchange commission.

Traders are Baffled.

Traders are baffled at the buying in the stock most of which has been traced to a New York brokerage firm. Why any one wished to purchase the stock at the market prices when they could obtain a corresponding equity in new stock at one-third to one-half as much money is a question still unanswered. The demand was variously described as "sucker buying" by individuals, impressed by the apparently low price, and purchases to cover short sales made at higher prices.

After Judge Wilkerson authorized the action Trustee Green yesterday instructed the Illinois Stock Transfer company to discontinue transfers effective Feb. 17. Whether further trading will be permitted on the Chicago Stock exchange and the New York Curb will depend on the action today of the stock list committees of those institutions. Normally discontinuance of transfer facilities is followed immediately by delisting.

Selling Above Worth.

Attorney Thomas Dodd Healy, who requested permission for Green to take the action, told Judge Wilkerson that the "price of the old stock has run far above its worth." Attorneys Louis F. Jacobson and Robert N. Golding, the latter a director of the new company, agreed that the move would protect the investing public. There were no objections to the issuance of the order. In signing the order Judge Wilkerson said he would leave the matter to the decision of the trustee.

Hearing on the applications for fees aggregating $1,600,000 by attorneys and others in connection with the company's reorganization was put over until this morning by Judge Wilkerson.

Continental Can Earnings Set New Peak

The Continental Can company yesterday issued its report for 1935, showing the largest sales and net earnings in its history. Net profit for the year amounted to $11,224,000 after all charges and taxes, including the setting up of a $500,000 contingency reserve. The earnings equaled $4.21 a share on the outstanding capital stock and compared with 1934 net or $10,707,000, or $4.02 a share.

"Results in 1935 were the best in the history of the company, with dollar volume of can sales 19.4 per cent larger than in 1934," O. C. Huffman, president, told stockholders.

Position Is Improved.

The company's year-end balance sheet reflected an improvement in its financial position during 1935. Current assets exceeded current liabilities by $38,049,000, representing an increase in the working capital of $424,000 during the year.

Cash items listed in the balance sheet declined $7,951,000 and current receivables and inventories expanded $8,600,000. This was due to the increased volume of business done and the expansion of plant facilities. The company closed the year with $7,028,000 cash on hand and no bank loans outstanding.

Produces New Beer Can.

President Huffman said that the company expects a large production in 1936 of the new type of beer container introduced in October, 1935.

"Production facilities for beer cans are being increased," as rapidly as possible to take care of contracts already signed. The expense of developing the beer can has been charged against current operations.

At the close of 1935 the company was carrying 13,021 employés on its pay roll as compared with 11,857 a year earlier.

PACKER CHARGES LABOR BOARD ABUSES POWER

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 12.—(AP)—The good faith of the national labor relations board was attacked by the Iowa Packing company of Des Moines, a wholly owned subsidiary of Swift & Co., in an answer filed in the regional office here to a complaint charging the company with unfair labor practices.

The company said a hearing on substantially the same allegations had been originally set in Des Moines and transfer of the case to St. Louis on an amended complaint "is not in good faith and constitutes an abuse of the power which the national labor relations act undertakes to vest in the board."

"Extra hardship and additional undue expenses" were cited by the company as resulting from the transfer of the case to St. Louis, where it is set for hearing Feb. 20. The company devoted the major portion of its answer to an attack on the constitutionality of the labor relations act.

Eastman Kodak Declares 25 Cent Extra Dividend

Rochester, N.Y., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Directors of Eastman Kodak company today declared an extra dividend of 25 cents in addition to the regular quarterly $1.25 dividend on the common stock. The regular quarterly $1.50 a share also was voted on the 6 per cent preferred stock. All dividends are payable April 1 to stockholders of record March 5.

RESERVE BOARD GETS WARNING ON INFLATION

Advisers Fear Vast Idle Funds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—Members of the federal advisory council today issued a warning to the New Deal's federal reserve board on the dangers of a disastrous credit inflation based on the continued piling up of excess reserve funds in the system. The excess reserves now totaling $3,090,000,000 constitute a potential credit inflation of ten times that amount.

The advisory council, composed of private bankers, representing the twelve reserve districts, can only make recommendations, which the board of governors may aprove or disapprove. Although conferences between the council and the board are as secretive as a lodge meeting, it was learned that today's session dealt with the excess reserves question.

Advised Sale of Securities.

The advisory council first took cognizance of the question last Nov. 21 when it recommended that the board sell all or a portion of the $2,430,292,000 in government securities that are held by the reserve banks. However, the board pursued its 'do nothing' policy on excess reserves from that date to this.

That there is not the remotest possibility of the board permitting government bonds held by the reserve banks to "run off" in the open market was admitted by sources close to the reserve governors. Such action would put a serious crimp in the government bond market and raise interest rates at this time when the New Deal is forced to borrow approximately 11 billion dollars during the next sixteen months to finance its own expenditures beyond income, topped off with the veterans' bonus prepayment.

Method Is Recommended.

This method of reducing excess reserves was recommended "as strongly as possible," rather than a second alternative of increasing the reserve requirements to automatically wipe out the idle funds. The council took the position that so long as government bonds are held under the ownership of the system, either the currency of the country or the reserves of member banks to a corresponding

RAILWAY BUYING BOOSTS OUTPUT AT STEEL MILLS

Production Climbs to 53 Pct. of Capacity.

Production in the nation's steel mills rose again last week in the face of an ebbing demand from automobile manufacturing companies according to the weekly survey of the industry released yesterday by Iron Age.

Aside from the automobile industry, the major buyers of steel are continuing their purchases. It was this demand, notably from the railroads, that brought about last week's upturn in steel mill operations. Production for the country as a whole rose one point to 53 per cent of capacity. Output advanced two points in the Pittsburgh and Wheeling districts and one point in the Chicago area.

Shipbuilding Orders Grow.

Demand for steel from shipbuilding companies is growing as a market factor. Some yards are reported to be booked to capacity for the remainder of the year. Orders for steel are yet to be placed for a large ocean liner to be built at Newport News, Va., which will take 15,000 tons.

"While shipments of construction steel are almost at a standstill because of the weather, new contracts are being let regularly and inquiries are accumulating," the review said. "Fabricated and structural steel awards this week amounted to 19,650 tons, compared with 16,400 tons in the preceding week."

POWER OUTPUT LOWER

The production of electric power in the United States, which has been reaching new high levels in recent months, last week slowed up a little, according to the figures released yesterday by the Edison Electric institute. Kilowatt hour output was slightly below the preceding week and the margin of increase over the comparable period of 1935 was a little lower. Statistics for the Chicago area showed the same trend as did the figures for the entire country.

Compared with the preceding week, national production declined one-half of 1 per cent and recorded a gain over last year's corresponding period of 10.7 per cent. Production was 1,952,476,000 kilowatt hours.

The following table shows the output in Chicago for the last four weeks, with comparative figures for 1935:

Week ended.	Kilowatt-hour output. 1936.	1935.	Per cent Increase.
Feb. 8	120,983,000	109,464,000	10.5
Feb. 1	121,310,000	109,281,000	11.0
Jan. 25	120,906,000	110,250,000	9.7
Jan. 18	117,290,000	110,864,000	5.8

SEC TO REQUEST MORE FACTS ON UNLISTED STOCKS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—(AP)—The securities and exchange commission, rushing work today on legislation to extend unlisted stock trading privileges, gave thought also to the question of standards to govern the listings of large corporations whose stocks are offered in the unlisted divisions of the smaller registered exchanges. Officials estimate about 1,300 issues are affected.

Chairman James M. Landis of the commission, who was instructed by the senate banking committee yesterday to draft legislation for an indefinite extension of unlisted trading privileges, told the committee the commission hopes to find means of requiring fuller disclosure of information by 5,000 or 6,000 of the more important corporations whose stocks are traded over the counter. He did not suggest any way by which the commission might accomplish this. Some lawyers contend the commission's power in the over the counter field are doubtful.

Deere & Co.

Investors' Guide: Please give me what information you can on Deere stock.—N. O. F.

Answer: Deere & Co., originally established in 1837, is the second largest manufacturer of farm machinery. It ranks first in production of steel plows.

Earnings, naturally, are highly dependent on purchasing power of farmers. Not only does this affect sales volume, but it also is a major determinant of collections for past sales.

Sales during the year ended Oct. 31, 1935, were more than double the preceding year's sales and collections improved substantially. The company set up a reserve of 18 per cent of receivables for possible bad debts.

Net income for the year ended Oct. 31, 1935, reflecting the increased purchasing power of farmers, increased to $6,105,000, or about $3.94 per common share. This compared with net of $390,000, or only 25 cents per preferred share, for the Oct. 31, 1934, year. For the two preceding years the company lost $4,335,000 and $5,167,000 before inventory reserve aggregating about $1,400,000. The peak profits of the last decade were in 1929 when net of $15,182,000 was reported.

On Oct. 31, 1935, current assets, including cash of $3,974,000 and receivables of $35,996,000 [after reserves], were $56,716,000 and current liabilities, including $3,500,000 notes payable to banks, were $9,080,000.

Capitalization consists of 1,543,000 shares of $20 par 7 per cent preferred and 1,002,454 shares of no par common. Dividends are being paid on the preferred, but accumulations total $3.35 per share.

William Butterworth, chairman, recently stated "moisture conditions have been good this fall and winter in most regions. Fair crop prospects, the continuation of present prices for farm products, and demand for modern farm equipment give promise of satisfactory business for 1936."

FORD SEEKS NEW WAYS TO USE FARM PRODUCTS

Puts Into Practice Ideas on Agricultural Aid.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Henry Ford is putting into practice his ideas on the best way to help farmers. He already has proved that much can be accomplished if farmers and industrialists coöperate to promote the use of agricultural products in industry, according to R. H. McCarroll, chief chemist and metallurgist of the Ford Motor company, who spoke here yesterday at the annual meeting of the Farmers' Grain Dealers' association, held in the La Salle hotel.

McCarroll said it is Ford's belief that there are two outstanding measures which can help agriculture. One is wider use of farm products by industry and the other is decentralization of industry.

Has Twenty Rural Plants.

In decentralizing, McCarroll said, Ford has established twenty small plants in rural areas. Of these, seven, near Dearborn, Mich., employ 2,400 part time farmers. In addition there are fifteen supply firms in these areas, with 302 employés.

McCarroll said that the automobile industry is a good customer of the farm. Last year Ford paid out for farm products more than $27,000,000. He bought cotton from 558,000 acres, wool from 500,000 sheep, hair from 87,500 goats, corn from 11,200 acres, sugar cane from 12,500 acres, and soy beans from 61,500 acres. These are only a few of the farm products used by the Ford company, he said.

Farm Seeks New Uses.

An effort to find ways of increasing the use of farm products in industry is one of the main problems now being worked out on the Ford farm at Dearborn. Two and a half million dollars has been spent on this project, according to McCarroll.

In his annual address H. B. Grommon of Plainfield, Ill., president of the grain dealers' association, indicated that he favored a free, open, competitive grain market.

"We have traded in the open market for thirty-three years, and we want to keep on trading in the open market," he said.

Mr. Grommon told the delegates he was not in favor of the commodity exchange bill now pending in congress.

"Lack of production is the disease that is killing profits for all of us now," he declared in his criticism of the New Deal's reduction program.

INT. HARVESTER TO MOVE TO NEW HOME IN 1937

BY AL CHASE.

Negotiations were concluded yesterday by the International Harvester company in the purchase for $2,400,000 of the twenty-three story Lake-Michigan building, at the southwest corner of Michigan avenue and Lake street.

Sanford B. White, secretary of the Harvester company, announced that the general offices of that concern would remain at their present location in the Harvester building, Michigan and Harrison, until Oct. 14, 1937, when the present 30 year lease expires.

White said that the Lake Michigan building will not be renamed the Harvester building until the new owner moves in. Before moving, the International Harvester company, which will occupy approximately 65 per cent of the Lake Michigan building, will conduct an extensive remodeling and modernization program which may include the installation of air conditioning throughout the building. Judson F. Stone takes over management of the property today as agent.

extent are dependent entirely upon a government obligation.

The council pointed out that the board could let the bonds run off gradually or rapidly, according to the judgment of the open market committee of the system.

The reserve board is said to favor an increase in the reserve requirements as a solution rather than taking action that might endanger the New Deal's policy of spending for prosperity.

Can Double Requirement.

The board has the power to double the reserve requirements or increase them by any amount, up to the doubled figure. Reserve requirements, in effect, are as follows: 3 per cent on all time and savings deposits for all member banks, 13 per cent on demand deposits in the central reserve cities of Chicago and New York, 10 per cent in the reserve city banks, and 7 per cent in all others.

Increasing the requirements, the council has declared, would substitute rigidity for flexibility. Frequent changes in the requirements, the council said, would create a chaotic condition in planning for the future by member bank management.

May Take Stand on Loans.

The new recommendation of the advisory council, when and if the reserve board makes them public, are expected also to take a position on the question of regulations dealing with the control of collateral loans made by banks. Proposed regulations are now being studied by the banks.

Previously the council had asked that the board make a careful study as to the need of regulations in the light of the innumerable regulations, orders, and laws of all kinds under which the banks are operating, and pointed out that the law regarding the controls was permissive and not mandatory.

PRICES OF HOGS BREAK SHARPLY; SUPPLY LARGER

Receipts of cattle, calves, hogs, and sheep were increased to 30,500 head at the stock yards yesterday, from 25,237 on Tuesday, and 10,146 Monday, as more farmers "dug" their way into Chicago to capitalize on the high "storm markets" prevailing here the last few days.

As a result prices of hogs dipped 15 to 50 cents, averaging 35 cents lower, but the trade rallied late in the session on reports that more snow was falling in live stock sections hard hit by the last blizzard. Final prices were 10 to 15 cents higher than at the start of trading, and many orders arriving late were carried over unfilled. Some markets in the east reported further advances of as much as $1 in loins.

Lamb prices declined 10 to 15 cents, but competition was brisk and the supply was cleared quickly. The larger run of cattle stimulated demand in that branch and prices ruled strong to higher, lowest grades of stock selling at the most advance. Spots in the trade were as much as 15 to 25 cents above the previous session.
